Harold Peery Encounters Burglar in Mis Room-Accident on Train-Republican Convention.

At about 6:45 last evening Haroid Peery had a startling experience at the Peery mansion by being brought face to face with a burglar and compelled to wailt down the stair case with a pistol at his back. Mr. Peery went from the first floor to the second with the intention of going to his room, when he arrived at the top of the stairs he heard a sound in his room, but thinking it was one of his brothers, stepped close to the door and turned on the electric light, when he was startled by a man pointing a gun at his head and commanding him to lead the way down the front stairs to the first floor, and go into the library room, and the uninvited burglar made his exit out of the front door. He had in his arm some of Mr. Peery's clothing and did not discard them when he took his departure from the home, but held to them. The family has been unable to discover anything else missing but the clothing. It is supposed the burglar gained entrance to the home through the front door and quickly made his way up stairs, and had only just started on his search of the home when discovered.

The police were telephoned for and Officers Farr and Tout quickly responded, but their bird had flown. A thorough search of the premises and surrounding lots was made but with no avail. It was quite dark and the officers were handicapped thereby. Mr. Peery could not give an exact description of the burglar, but as near as he could tell in the excitement, the man was about 5 feet 7 inches tall; sina was about 5 feet 7 inches tall; build; wore a mustache, and had on dark clothes. The police are searching for the man but have as yet failed to

LOGAN.

ARGUMENTS IN MAJORS CASE Now Concluded - Injuries Prove Fatal-Liquor Traffic a Political Issue.

Special Correspondence. Logan, Cache Co., Oct. 3 .- On resuming his address to the jury Wednesday afternoon, Attorney Shropshire advanced twelve reasons why the defendant could not be guilty. They were that the bullet which killed Brown came from above; that if that bullet came from Majors, then the bullet which killed Majors would have gone clear through his body; that the bulist would have slanted upward if it had come from down the hill where Majors was; hat Majors' pistol would not shoot to and perforate Brown; that the size of the hole in the note book proves it was not made by a 45 bullet; and relative Mr. Shropshire dwelt in a athetic manner on the crime it would

to convict an innocent man.
Attorney A. J. Weber followed Mr.
Shropphire for the defense. He thanket the jurors for the patience they had shown, and expressed his belief that the jury and court were fair and hon orable. He again argued that the defendant was not guilty of murder be-cause he admitted robbery. "You, gentlemen." said he, "hold in your hands the life of that defendant. You hold a great responsibility. If one of you have a reasonable doubt of this defendant's guilt, it is his duty never to consent to a verdict of guilty. The Brown. He admits that he said that, but says now he did so because he was afraid of a lynching. I say to you that Cardon told the truth when he admitted that he did not know who killed Brown. The speaker denounced in immeasured terres the attempts of the prosecution to prove that Majors tried to esfasten ignominy on the defendant, and thereby influence the jury against him. He also spoke of Stokes in the most scathing terms, as a perjured fornicaor, whose word was worthless. He referred to the testimony of Wells, Marsh and Davis, as showing that the load Majors' body lay several feet from the rock and that the black pistol, which had been fired, lay beside him. He closed with an eloquent appeal for

I know that you are good jurymen, he said, and I know that If the evidence proves this defendant committed a cold blooded murder, you will find him guilty regardless of the consequences to him The attorneys for the detense, with out any evidence to prove their case, have attempted by specims arguments to blind your eyes to the true facts. What motive is there for Sheriff Cardon or Sheriff Belnep to testify wrongfully in this case?
