WORLD'S FAIR DORMITORIES

An Association to Provide Cheap, Homelike Quarters

FOR VISITORS TO THE EXPOSITION

A Plan at Once Ingenious and Effective.—Mrs. J. T. Gilmer Invites the Public Attention to It.

The following communication suggests a subject of such importance to prospective visitors to the World's Fair that the NEWS feels justified in giving publicity to the circular which accompanies it. It is earnestly commended to the attention of all interested in the subject:

To the Editor:

Dear Sir—Enclosed will you please find circular from the Family Dormitory association. It has been thought advisable by Mrs. President Richards, Mrs. Salisbury and myself to offer it to the papers for publication, thereby giving the knowledge to many people throughout the Territory of how they can attend the World's Fair in the most economical manner, and by having this information many more will be apt to attend. Should you accept the circular for publication, will you please add that the reliability of the association is known of and endorsed by Mr. and Mrs. Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Richards.

Yours truly,

MRS. J. T. GILMER,
Chairman of Information on Dormitory.

FAMILY DORMITORY ASSOCIATION.
Capital $100,000.
603 Rand-McNally Bldg.,
Chicago, Ill.

Incorporated under the laws of the State of Illinois.

Mrs. Mary F. Hayden, president; Mrs. Lucy D. Fake, secretary; Mr. W. D. Preston (cashier of the Metropolitan National bank), treasurer.

Associate officers—Fred. L. Fake, Jr., Harry E. Hayden, Jr.

References—Hon. Hempstead Washburn, mayor of Chicago; Mr. E. Keith, president Metropolitan National bank; Jno. R. Walsh, president Chicago National bank; Rev. L. D. Mercer, Rev. David Swing, Mr. J. McGregor Adams, Mrs. Geo. M. Pullman, Miss Francis E. Willard, Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, Mrs. Helen M. Barker, Mrs. C. D. Hamill, Mrs. J. H. McVicker, Mrs. Arthur E. Bingham, Mrs. Wm. R. Page, Mrs. Amos T. Hall, Mrs. M. C. Sanger.

The success of the Woman's Dormitory association of the World's Columbian Exposition, and the immense number of letters received by that association, expressing an earnest desire for a family dormitory, where husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, may stay economically and comfortably under the same roof, during their visit to the Columbian Exposition, was the incentive that led to the incorporation and organization of the enterprise to which your attention is called.

The promoters know that there are numberless families in every state and territory who desire to visit Chicago during the Fair, but who feel that their hopes cannot be realized because their moderate means will not permit the exorbitant prices which usually prevail at such times. Not only do slender purses stand in the way of a realization of their desires, but there are also the dangers of a great city (crowded with all sorts and conditions of people) that cannot be overlooked, when the question arises: Can we go to see the wonders of the world gathered at Chicago without too great a sacrifice of money, and feel at home there?

It is believed that the dormitory plan, as outlined below, answers these questions affirmatively.

Question. What does a share of stock cost and what are the privileges granted?

Answer. A share of stock costs $10, and entitles the holder to twenty days' occupancy of a room. Stock certificates will be issued containing twenty coupons, each good for one days' occupancy if detached at the dormitory office. This does not include meals. A dining room will be directly connected with the dormitory building, where regular meals and luncheons will be supplied at reasonable prices.

Question. Is stock assessable?

Answer. No.

Question. Is stock transferable?

Answer. Yes.

Question. Are the rooms partitioned off, or is it one immense apartment?

Answer. The rooms are all partitioned fully, forming single and double rooms.

Question. Can a child accompany its mother, and at what rates?

Answer. A child that can sleep with the mother, free. Two children in one single bed, half rates. Older children, full price.

Question. How high are the buildings?

Answer. Only two stories. I few sleeping rooms on the ground floor reserved for elderly ladies.

Question. Do all rooms have outside windows?

Answer. Yes, every room in the building will have outside windows, with transoms over the hall doors, insuring good light and circulation. Each building will be in the form of a hollow square, enclosing a spacious court, where flowers and vines will be planted in profusion.

Question. How are the buildings lighted?

Answer. By electricity.

Question. How heated?

Answer. By large, old-fashioned fireplaces in the parlors.

Question. Can stockholders receive friends?

Answer. Yes, the large parlors and reading rooms will be always open for the use and pleasure of stockholders.

Question. If there should be a failure to meet obligations, are the stockholders liable?

Answer. No.

The stockholders are not liable for any of the obligations of the association, neither are they entitled to any emolument or dividend which may accrue to it. The cost of their stock is returned to them by their occupancy of rooms in the dormitory building, or by the occupancy thereof by persons to whom their stock is transferred. When shares are purchased, it is requested that the purchasers designate the dates during which they desire apartments reserved for them.

Question. How send money?

Answer. Make all money orders or drafts payable to W. D. Preston, treasurer, enclosed in letter to Mrs. Lucy D. Fake, secretary, Chicago, Ill. Never send money unless registered.

Question. Where are the grounds situated?

Answer. Corner Seventy-fifth street and Yates avenue, seven blocks from the World's Fair gates and Sixty-seventh street. Only one block from Illinois Central Railway station, Windsor Park, and only four blocks from the Great Central Depot of the World's Fair.

Question. What transportation from dormitory to the World's Fair?

Answer. Electric cars pass the door; five minutes ride to World's Fair; five cent fee. Stone sidewalks the entire way to the Fair gates.

Question. Can a physician be summoned?

Answer. Yes, those who may need medical service will be attended by a resident house-physician at moderate cost.

For the purpose of protecting the occupants of the dormitory building from loss or damage by fire, no fires or oil lamps will be permitted in rooms.

Great attention will be paid to proper sewerage and other sanitary measures.

Special care will be given to the comfort of elderly people, meeting them at the depot, providing guides at small cost and giving all desired information.

A south porch will be built where the elderly people may congregate when the sun goes down on a wearisome day, and talk in the twilight of the wonderful sights they have seen, while the children claim the playground.

Parties who desire to take advantage of the present price for stock are requested to send their subscriptions immediately, as the first series will be closed on the 15th of March, 1893.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION.

Sale of stock extended to March 15th, at ten dollars ($10.00) per share, after which prices will be increased.

Gentlemen or ladies, married or single, may come to the family dormitory.

Shares may be transferred daily if desired.

Two or more persons may come on one share of stock as long as coupons last; one coupon will be taken each day for each person.

Child under four years sleeping with its mother free.

Price—Fifty cents per day—is for each individual, not for the room.

All beds are single, two in a double room.

Rooms fully partitioned, plastered, furnished and cared for.

No extra cots allowed in rooms.

Room 603, Rand-McNally building.
