Have You a Home?

If not it will pay you to investigate the advantages of Forest Dale before buying elsewhere. We have our own water system; water piped in most durable cast iron pipes, and the ownership of the water, including the extension of the pipes past your door saves purchasers in Forest Dale little if any more than laying the mains in most cities. The advantage this affords will be readily seen, for the water belongs to the residents (each purchaser of a lot being allowed his proportion of the capital stock of the Forest Dale Water Company) and it rests with them to fix the water rates charged. The expense of running the system is very small, and after the first expense of laying the mains is paid the rates need not be more than one-tenth those charged by Salt Lake City.

Have You Saved Anything?

Some people have been waiting for years for land to reach bottom prices. In the meantime they have paid rent; and if they have made any improvements or done any work on their residences, the improvements have been made, or the work done, for their landlord. Many other people have built homes, and while those first mentioned have been "waiting for something to turn up," have paid for their property and now own the house that shelters them.

Don't Get in Debt

unless you feel assured you can get out again. But if you have money saved, buy a home. If you have an income, buy a home. It pays to have an object in view, and there is no more worthy object than procuring a home for those dependent upon you.

My clerks, at room 332 Constitution Building, will give you prices and show you the property.

AN OPINION GIVEN.

Recently Mr. J. D. Thomas, of North Dakota, visited the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, and after carefully examining the country located in Winchester, he writes to Mr. V. Bieberis, Land and Immigration Agent, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Baltimore, Maryland, as follows: "I have been in nearly every state and territory of the United States, and am back to my opinion that the valley surpasses all other sections in the Union. The lands are low in price, and produce profitable crops. I thank you for directing me here, and shall those seeking pleasant and profitable homes to locate in this country."

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

TUESDAY, JULY 10, 1894.

NO TRUST IN THE "TRUST."

Middlemiss Resigns, and Berry Says "Settle the Barbicane Shortage."

The title of "Trust" appears to be a misnomer so far as the labor organization of that name is concerned. It is daily becoming more plain that very few members in the "Trust" trust each other. The society has got a sort of black eye, and there is constant quarreling among those who compose the ranks. When facts were raised for a special purpose, a certain individual, it is charged, dropped the cash into a private pocket so deep that it could not be fished out for consideration now. At a meeting last night "Cockney" Middlemiss, of college endowment fame, read the following letter from:

Mr. C. S. Berry, President of the Labor Trust:

DEAR SIR—I desire to have my name taken off the roster for Labor Trust work. I shall take such steps as are necessary today to protect my character from the lying attacks of rottenness.

And this is the way Berry answered:

FRIEND MIDDLEMISS—Your desire to have your name scratched from the roll of the Labor Trust is disclosed until all your accounts with the Barbicane are properly adjusted. C. S. BERRY.

Middlemiss also sent in a bill of particulars, according to which the Trust was indebted to him in the sum of ten cents.

W. N. Smith also made a kick in the shape of a communication in which John Wilcock, secretary, had ordered him to go to work during the strike as a "hook."

Then came the resignation of H. L. B. Jacques treasurer, William Dakey as secretary, M. S. Perry and George Willen. All were accepted.

Berry appealed to the members to pay the debts of the "Trust" that it might become a power in the land. Then "Son-of-a-Hunt . . . Kings" Hague "sympathized" with the strikers and scored those who opposed them; received thanks of the audience for services rendered and sat down. Then Henry, once a "trustee," Anstice, and others some members make fools of themselves on the Fourth it was so argument in favor of allowing the society to "come up." After a little further skirmishing an adjournment was taken for one week.

Manufacturers' Meeting.

There was a meeting of the manufacturers of the city last evening at the D. A. & M. society's rooms over which Mr. Frank Jennings presided, and for which George D. Pyper acted as secretary.

The purpose of the meeting as set forth in a little introductory talk by Mr. Jennings was to take such action as would insure the creation and keeping alive of the fullest possible amount of interest regarding exhibits to be made at the October Fair. Addresses were made by several gentlemen. The ladies, too, were represented in the persons of Mrs. Folsom and Dr. Ferguson. The latter gave a brief and instructive account of what her sex was doing, and what they proposed to do for the home industry cause, and was attentively listened to.

Fire in a Chinaman's Shack.

Last evening a two room shack, one room of which is occupied by something like a dozen Chinamen and the other which contains a cook stove and a safe, was found on fire on Second West, between Fourth and Fifth South streets. The Mongolians are all gardeners and like most of their countrymen are smokers of opium. It is claimed that the last one to woo the prince of slumber tipped over his pipe of poppy extract and the cruse lamp which always burns a part of the opium stove's paraphernalia. A moment later and the sleeping Chinamen sprang from their bamboo couches and started for the door like a band of frightened animals, as the flames filled the room. The fire was extinguished by the West Side department and the loss kept down to about $100. The house was the property of Christy Pugsley.

WHAT AND HOW TO READ.

Interesting Lecture on That Subject By Professor Marshall.

The second lecture of the series before the summer school was delivered by Prof. Marshall at the University last evening. The subject was, "What and How to Read," and was treated substantially as follows:

The Chinese consider it a crime for children to know more than their parents. With this limitation in the education of the youth of that country to progress may be easily inferred. In the more enlightened countries of Europe substantial progress has been made by reversing the Chinese theory. Advancement is possible by taking advantage of that which is already known in the material world. The next century will be rich because of the legacy left by the present generation, in the realm of arts and sciences, and in the phenomenal products of the inventive genius. Focus is an illusion, comparatively speaking, to progress made in all lines to intelligent by advantage taken of the achievements of the past and present.

The book is to the commercial world what literature is to the reading and speaking world. The literature of the past and present is a repository from which we may draw during the long years of a busy life. From the pen of an author we may glean that which is invaluable; we may form a personal friendship, so to speak, by coming into close relationship with him through the thoughts emanating from his productions.

Literature is the chiefest of all studies—the one thing absolutely essential to the progress of enlightenment.

All men love beauty. To one who has a strong and deep sense of the beautiful, life will manifest in the person that of its obstacles those attributes that result in a contribution of a source truly divine. Should he visit picturesque nature in Nature, the beautiful in architecture, the diversion combining that which is most elevating and useful, he will revel in the beauties before him.

That which represents the best thought of the age receives a legacy to future generations, the valuable probably. In the time of Hezekiah there were more than two hundred writers. Of this number the works of only fifty remain.

No one will doubt the fact that man's history is characterized. The often is it the case that the cares of life prevent setting apart a time for study. Yet many of those whose lives seem to have been crowded with duties have found time daily to sit down and peruse a book. The busy man comes in to his music. He picks up a book and reads a few pages; in the evening he reads a few additional pages, and in a few years by adding some six months that others allow to pass he has accumulated treasures of untold value. In taking up a new line of reading, it is necessary that one choose that best adapted to his mind. Should he read history, he will find it necessary to commence with a text book on the subject, even if no more than to form an index in the mind for future reading.

Referring to the character of that which one wishes to read relative to current literature, the speaker recommended as one of the best magazines before the public today the one known as Public Opinion, next in importance he would name the Forum and North American Review; those that occupy a middle way (Review Class), The Century and Harper's Monthly; for another class of readers, Scribner's and The Cosmopolitan. Of English authors, those recommended and were: Dickens, Thackeray, Eliot, Lytton, Scott, R. D. Blackmore and George McDonald. The best American authors are: Hawthorne, Irving, Holmes, Donald Mitchell, George W. Cable, J. C. Harris, Mary E. Wilkins and Jas. Fenimore Cooper.

Court Callings.

E. C. M. I. et al, unprotected creditors of Heber A. Smith, of Draper, who a week or two since assigned, have brought suit in the Third district court, seeking that the assignment to set aside on the ground that it was made in fraud of their rights. They also pray that Hiram A. Smith, the assignee, be removed and a receiver appointed to take charge of the assets, and that Hiram A. and Heber A. Smith be restrained from disposing of any of the moneys received by them from said assignment, pending a final hearing. The restraining order has been issued and the defendants ordered to show cause why they should not be permanently enjoined.

William H. Wells and Clyde J. Dewsnup have commenced suit in the Third district court against Herbert Pembroke and Sarah J. Pembroke asking that they be declared the absolute owners of an undivided half interest in the property on Franklin avenue occupied by one Isaac Watkins, and that the alleged interest that plaintiffs are in possession and entitled to the whole of said premises and to collect the rents accruing therefrom; also that defendants be restrained and enjoined from interfering with the plaintiffs in the control of said premises and the collecting of said rents arising therefrom.

Isaac Hauter has commenced suit in the Third district court against Salt Lake city. The complaint alleges that for more than thirty-four years the plaintiff has been the owner by prior appropriation in fee of the right to the use of sufficient water flowing from City Creek during the winter season for use as ice house; that at various times during the last season the defendant shut off the supply, thus spoiling the plaintiff's ice crop, to his damage in the sum of $2,000, for which he prays judgment.

W. H. Irvine has brought suit against C. W. Aldrich et al in the Third district court to collect $1,000 on a promissory note.

PROVO SUMMER SCHOOL.

Held at the B. Y. Academy, Beginning July 9th, 1894.

Despite the derangement of the railroads, which prevented many people from reaching Provo on Monday, there was a busy scene in the office where the people were handing over their cash and getting their admits.

Benjamin Cluff, Jr., principal of the academy, made the opening address, happily impressing the students with his ability, and with his earnest desire to assist them in any and every direction where they might require it.

Twenty-six classes have been organized and eighty sections are represented.

The faculty are all present except Prof. Brimhall and Miss Ella Larsen, who have not been able to get back from Idaho, where they have been in attendance on the summer school, because of the derangement of railroad travel, but are expected at Provo tonight. Professor Christensen is now absent with the teachers in California.

The faculty holds an important meeting this evening, and by tomorrow everything will be moving along in harmonious parallels.

The commercial department, under Prof. J. H. Keeler, and the Greek and Latin class, under Professor Whitney, have been in session for the past six weeks, and will continue through the next six weeks.

Pocatello to Salt Lake.

July 8th, 1894.—Leaving Pocatello south I found the country looking well and also the crops. Passing Calvin, some ten miles south of McCammon, I heard a lively sense, some four boys hitching up a newly broken-in colt; many a misplaced word was used.

Going along I found the fields doing well and all expecting good crops. On my stay at Oxford I had some friendly talk with Bishop Lewis. I stayed with Brother and Sister Edwards, where an enjoyable time was spent. I attended Sunday school, where some thirty to forty people were present. Susie Fisher, about 13 years of age, is our organist. Minnie Faber produced some good vocal music. Edward Smith is the Sunday school superintendent. Oxford is a neat little place.

I arrived at Clayton and stayed at Bishop Gardner's. Sister Gardner is a benevolent mother and sister. There was a funeral to be held the next day of a child, a one year old daughter of Brother and Sister Moulding. The conjunct meeting at the Mutual was well attended. There are about fifty enrolled members, and one hundred members in the Sunday school. Geo. Porter is superintendent of the Mutual, with Martin F. Henderson first and E. J. Farmer second counselor; John Bent superintendent of the Sunday school, Thomas Farrell first and H. Henderson second counselor.

I called on Bishop W. F. Bingham of Treaston. They made me very welcome with a good repast. Niels Jensen is first and Brigham Benson is second counselor to the Bishop. There are about fifteen members in the ward.

The Sunday school superintendent is Elder McCombie, with Wm. Bingham first and H. P. Nelson second counselor. About fifty pupils and officers are enrolled in the Sunday school.

The crops are looking well. Water is scarce, and most of the crops are raised by dry farming. Standing on the high hills looking over the farms, the work of nature showed grandeur in all respects. The crops are looking splendid and doing nicely. I stayed a short time at the house of Brother and Sister Amos. Brother Amos had just returned from an inquest over the body of a man killed on the track. He had some papers with him found on the dead man. These stated his name as William Smith, of Kansas City.

I arrived at Clarkston, where I was entertained by Bishop John Jordan and daughter, who made me welcome. Clarkston is a very small little spot of Zion. It has about seventy families and about 110 enrolled members of the Sunday school. Thomas Godfrey is superintendent and Elisha S. Jordan secretary of the school. Joshua Rowser is superintendent of the Y. M. M. I. A., which has ninety enrolled members. Agnes Shumway is superintendent of the Y. L. M. I. A., which has fifty members.

Cache valley is a scene of beauty with her golden grain and her fruit. I called on Bishop Richards, of Fifth ward, and found him sick in bed with a bilious attack. I was received kindly by Sister Richards.

Crossing over Bear River bridge into Collinston I visited some friends and then started for Brigham City, where a big wind storm arose, indicating that rain was almost the a London November fog.

While in Brigham City I got in company with a gentleman of Elder Wyman, an Elder in the London conference, who arrived just before the writer of this article returned home from his mission.

At Willard City I was entertained by Sister Vatner at her hotel. The Bishop, Abraham Zitchell, is faithfully in all his ways. Much credit is due to the sale of Hitchem City and Willard for their labors in constructing some of the finest roads in Utah.

On my trip south I played and sang the violin practice at Box Elder, three cents into Ogden and heard a lively time with strangers—some few cars and passengers—and saw the tired of passengers awaiting to be conveyed to their respective destinations.

At Salt Lake City I saw many old friends, and my being so entertained at Brother and Sister Ganes, Amos's in the Fifteenth ward, where I was made welcome and comfortable.
