Sunday School Jubilee.

RED CANYON, Wyoming,
Sept. 14, 1895.

EDITOR DESERET NEWS:

The Sabbath school children of Evanston and Almy held a grand jubilee in the Temple of Honor hall, Almy, this afternoon. The hall was well filled and a very interesting and instructive program was rendered by the children.

Bishop James Brown, of Evanston, gave some valuable and timely suggestions to the parents and teachers. He defined the different methods of teaching them in the Sabbath schools of this age with the methods of teaching them in early days. In early days the teacher held his pupils spellbound to long readings and lessons, to find as best they could the true contents of the subject it contained; but in our day the Sabbath school children were trained in short readings, with full explanations of the subject between them; so that instead of the mind worrying its mind to find out the true meaning of what he had read in early days, in our day, he is anxiously waiting full information from the teacher.

The Bishop gave also a brief address to the parents of the children and teachers on the evil habits of smoking, drinking and the use of low, distasteful language, and pointed out to them that they should be worthy examples to the rising youth in our schools and homes that will be worthy of their imitation.

Refreshments being served around to the company, the children and their friends returned home well paid for their visit to the hall.

Kanab Stake Conference.

The Kanab Stake conference was held in Kanab, September 7th and 8th, 1895. There were present of the authorities Elder F. M. Lyman, of the Apostles, the Kanab Stake presidency and a majority of the members of the High Council and Bishops. Elder A. Hatch, president of Wasatch Stake, was also present with us. During Saturday forenoon, Elder Edwin D. Woolley, president of Kanab Stake, represented the same as being on the improve spiritually and financially, after which the Bishops gave in reports of their respective wards. They were followed by Elder Lyman. He felt pleased with the reports of the Bishops, and instructed the Saints on the subject of tithing; said it was best to pay one-tenth of their income or interest derived from their labors or other sources, but at the time receiving it, then tithing would be much easier to pay.

The afternoon was occupied by Elders Hatch and Lyman. The former felt to discourage the Saints in going into bondage by bonding their towns and Stakes in order to erect public buildings. The latter spoke on the subjects of prayer, duties of Priests, Word of Wisdom, the necessity of young people marrying at the proper age, for he felt it was immoral and a reproach for the Latter-day Saints not to marry.

Directly after the afternoon meeting a Priesthood meeting was held, in which much good instruction and counsel was given. Elder William J. Jolley Sen. was released from further acting as a president in the Eighty-fifth quorum of Seventies by a unanimous vote of all the Seventies present. Elder Warren M. Johnson and Wm. A. Lowe were unanimously sustained as presidents in that quorum, meeting the council in the quorum full. Elders James Lewis, Reuben Broadhead and Thos. Chamberlain were sustained as Patriarchs in the Kanab Stake.

Sunday forenoon was occupied by Elder Lyman, on the subject of baptism. He gave many reasons why we should or ought to have statehood, and why every one should do the best they can in trying to obtain it. After his remarks, the general and local authorities were presented and unanimously sustained.

In the afternoon the Saints partook of the bread and water in remembrance of our elder Brother, the Savior; after which Elders Thomas Chamberlain and Abram Hatch occupied a short time testing faithful testimonies and encouraging the Saints to live their religion. They were followed by Elder Lyman who spoke on the subjects of morality, and the resurrection of the dead. His remarks were such as ought to be a stimulus in the hearts of all Latter-day Saints unto the Lord. Elder Woolley made a few closing remarks when the conference adjourned for three months.

The Young Ladies and Sunday School conferences were held later in the day.

The people of this Stake have been blessed with a bountiful harvest, both of grain and fruit; and the Lord is blessing us in many ways. The Saints are looking well to their educational interest, which is praiseworthy.

FRANCIS L. POTTER,
Stake Clerk.
