TREPOFF'S CAREER COMES TO AN END

Best Hated Man in All Russia Dies Natural Death in His Villa.

HE WAS A BORN DESPOTH.

Leader of the Reactionaries—Escaped Many Plots to Kill Him—a Remarkable Man.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 16.—Gen. Trepoff, feeling relieved of the trying duty of protecting his imperial master, who left last Thursday on a cruise to Bjorko, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He retired to his cabinet to rest, and gave orders that he should not be disturbed until dinner was served. When, at half-past 7 o'clock, dinner was announced, Gen. Trepoff did not answer the call, and finally a member of his staff at 8 o'clock knocked at the door of his cabinet. Receiving no reply, he entered and found the general lying stretched out at the foot of his couch with a newspaper in his hand, dead. It was plain that he had died shortly after he retired to his cabinet, and had been lying for three hours where he fell. Although he died a natural death, the threat of the revolutionists last winter that he would not die by being shot or blown up with a bomb, but would be killed in his own bed, is clearly brought to mind.

Gen. Orloff, who was Gen. Trepoff's temporary successor while Trepoff was taking a short rest recently, will be succeeded by Gen. De Dioulin, ex-prefect of police of St. Petersburg, as temporary commandant of the palace, the emperor having telegraphed this order from Bjorko. The appointment, however, is in no wise permanent.

The post of commandant of the imperial palace is a special appointment made by the emperor, and always is filled by a strong and loyal man. Among the candidates for the position is Gen. Trepoff, who was named to replace Gen. Skalon as governor general of Warsaw, and was anxious to leave a court post at a time so fraught with danger. Gen. Dubasoff, chief of the imperial chancellery, also is a powerful candidate, while Gen. De Dioulin, who with Gen. Trepoff has been in charge of the maintenance of order in St. Petersburg during the big strikes, seems most likely to be given the post.

Emperor Nicholas and Empress Alexandra have sent telegrams of condolence to Mme. Trepoff. It is not yet known whether the emperor will attend the funeral or whether the fetes of the Chevalier guards will be postponed. The funeral is not expected to take place until Emperor Nicholas returns to Peterhof.

HIS CAREER.

Gen. Trepoff, whose name was indelibly linked with reactionary repression in Russia, was a remarkable man. He was a natural despot, a tyrant by inclination, education and conviction. He was one of those men who have constantly appeared in Russian history just at the time when conditions were most promising for putting an end to despotism to turn the Russian rulers. It was he who became the guiding spirit of the reaction after Nicholas II had issued his manifesto in the fall of 1905, promising the people a share in the government. Holding the position of master of the palace, in league with the court intriguers who were determined to restore the old regime, he constantly had the emperor's ear.

Like his father before him, Trepoff was a police master, with all that the name involved in Russia, and the story of father and son is full of dramatic incidents. The elder was a foundling. Who his parents were was never known. He was found one morning on the back doorstep of a German family by whom he was playfully named Depo-Hof (German for doorstep). The father distinguished himself as a member of the secret police. During the height of the Nihilist conspiracies in the late '70s it was to him that Alexander II confided the task of running down terrorists plotting against his life. The fight between liberalism and reaction then, as later under Trepoff's son, was in full swing, and then, as later, the energies of the police were directed against the student agitation.

Dmitri followed his father's footsteps. He attracted the attention of Grand Duke Sergius, then governor general at Moscow, and by him was named police master of Moscow. Trepoff soon became Sergius' right arm in fighting the revolutionary student agitation, of which the ancient capital was the hotbed. When Sergius was assassinated Trepoff was named governor general of Moscow. Later he was summoned to St. Petersburg and given the command of the imperial guard and made governor general of the city. He took up his residence in the Winter palace and became in fact, if not in name, dictator of Russia. Anarchy prevailed when he arrived. An uprising on a large scale was momentarily expected. Thousands fled the city. But with Trepoff in command the aspect of affairs changed. Hops filled the streets and dead walls were plaearded with notices that the first disorders would be suppressed without mercy. And under his iron rule the city became quiet.

During those trying weeks plot after plot to kill him was discovered and frustrated. Two of his own nieces attempted to execute the sentence. Safe in his dungeon-like room in the center of the palace, where no bomb could reach him save by shattering a dozen walls, with the telephone constanly at his side, he issued orders and received reports.

His personal courage was beyond all question. He had almost a contempt for death. "I am no fool," he said to the Associated Press correspondent a few days after he assumed the dictatorship. "I am no fool to be potted in the street. I have work to do, and I propose to do it. I have given my word to my imperial master to maintain the tranquility of the city, and I will answer for the preservation of order with my life."

The strain told upon him and during those memorable six weeks the lines of his face deepened and his hair and beard became streaked with gray. He continued at his post throughout the summer and although there was much political excitement no riot occurred.

Trepoff made a pretense of acquiescing in the manifesto of October of that year and in Witte's elevation to the premiership. But in reality he was only awaiting a favorable opportunity to give battle to the new regime. And when the orgie of liberty which followed the manifesto was in full blast, threatening to sweep away the foundations of the government even Witte was glad to turn to the great police master to restore order. He accomplished his task and was hailed by the reactionaries as the savior of the situation. The emperor was made to believe that Trepoff alone was capable of safeguarding the life of himself and imperial family. And so, with the press howling at his heels, he retired to Tsarskoe-Selo to become master of the palace. There, in a more congenial atmosphere, he took the direction of the campaign for the restoration of the old order.

Personally, Trepoff was a handsome man, tall, square shouldered, with close cropped hair and beard, his whole face and figure instinct with life and alertness.

In all six actual attempts on the life of Gen. Trepoff have been made within three years, and only last July Gen. Kozloff of the headquarters was assassinated at Peterhof by a terrorist who believed he was firing upon Trepoff.

Gen. Trepoff would have been 51 years old in December. Several months he had been suffering from heart affection and asthmatic troubles, and some time ago was forced to abandon a large amount of his routine work.

The revolutionists can claim partial responsibility for his end, as his illness was superinduced by strain due to constant fear of death, which, with the lack of exercise and recreation during the last two years, wore down his originally splendid constitution. He had become so nervous of late that recently, when a military attache of a continental power was unexpectedly ushered into his room, Gen. Trepoff sprang to his feet in an attitude of defense.

Though the gravity of his malady was recognized from the first, his death came as a great surprise. He was able to be up and around until the very last. He attended the parade of the Uavlovsky regiment Wednesday, and Thursday was at the landing stage when Emperor Nicholas and the imperial family embarked for a cruise to Bjorko. With the emperor safely at sea and out of reach of the terrorists one of Gen. Trepoff's greatest responsibility was lifted and the relief he experienced was plainly apparent.

Gen. Trepoff's death will not have any immediate influence on the policy of the government, which is firmly in Premier Stolypin's hands, but in case revolution again breaks out Emperor Nicholas will miss his strong will.

STEAMER OREGON IS A TOTAL WRECK.

Seattle, Sept. 15.—A special to the Post Intelligencer from Valdez, Alaska, says that the steamer Oregon of the Northern Commercial company's lines, is a total wreck on a perpendicular bluff off Hinchebrock island. The local officers of the company have also been advised similarly. No effort will be made to salvage her, according to the reports at hand.

The Valdez dispatch says:

The lighthouse tender Columbine has just arrived here with the passengers and crew of the Oregon. The boat was ashore on a small strip of beach off a perpendicular bluff off Hinchebrook island. The captain maintained the best discipline, not allowing the boats to leave the wreck until daylight yesterday, when all took to lifeboats and headed for Nuchek. They were picked up by the lighthouse tender Columbine. The wreck occurred on Thursday night at 11 o'clock. All mail was taken off and baggage saved. If the weather remains calm they may save some of the cargo but the least wind will raise a heavy swell and the boat will be doomed. The boat lies on ocean side of Hinchebrook, about three miles east of Cape Hinchebrook. She was three miles off her course when she struck. The revenue cutters Rush and McCulloch are on the way to the wreck, but can do nothing?

The boat is positively a wreck with her nose aground in a few feet of water, seven fathoms at the stern. She lies 50 feet from shore.

Two sailors were slightly hurt in the confusion of launching boats, but no panic occurred.

MEXICO CELEBRATES INDEPENDENCE ANNIVERSARY

Mexico City, Sept. 16.—The national holiday in celebration of the anniversary of the independence of Mexico was observed with a most enthusiastic manner here today.

The decorations were on a more elaborate scale than heretofore, and large crowds were congregated in the parks to listen to the band concerts, and those who participated in the grand civic parade numbered several thousand. The parade was three hours in passing a given point where it was reviewed by President Diaz, Vice President Corral, members of the senate and chamber of deputies, the diplomatic corps and prominent citizens.

President Diaz opened congress and delivered his annual message. The utmost tranquility prevailed in this city, not a single arrest having been made. The saloons have all been closed since yesterday at noon, a precaution taken by the municipal authorities to circumvent any possibility of trouble. Reports from all points throughout the country, including the cities of Saltillo, San Luis Potosi, Tampico, Torreon and hundreds of other towns, show that not the slightest disturbance marred the celebration. Patriotic speeches were on the program in the majority of the towns and cities, platforms having been erected in most instances on the main plaza or in front of the municipal buildings.

DAY AT CANANEA.

Naco, Ariz., Sept. 16.—A special from Cananea, Mex., says everything was quiet there today. This afternoon 10,000 Americans and Mexicans marched side by side from one end of the city to the other. The American flags were as conspicuous as the Mexican, and the Americans generally wore Mexican colors.

Although there were 25,000 people in town during the day there was not even a case of drunkenness to disturb the perfect harmony of the celebration.

WHY GIBBONS RESIGNED.

New York, Sept. 17.—The Herald today publishes a letter from Cardinal Gibbons to W. A. Gallagher of Baltimore, in reply to a letter from Mr. Gallagher asking the cardinal the reasons for his resignation from the international policyholders' committee.

Cardinal Gibbons' letter follows:

"Baltimore, Sept. 14, 1906.—Mr. W. A. Gallagher, New York Life Insurance company, Baltimore, Md.:—My Dear Sir—In reply to your communication this morning I beg to say that when I accepted the position on the international policyholders' committee, I did not adequately comprehend the duties, responsibilities and scope of its members. I therefore resigned.

"I do not enjoy an acquaintance with a considerable number of the members nominated on the administration ticket of the New York Life, and the Mutual Life Insurance companies. As to those whom I know perfectly, I am happy to say they possess my fullest confidence as gentlemen of the highest financial integrity.

"Yours very truly,

"JAMES, CARDINAL GIBBONS."

DIAZ OPENS THE MEXICAN CONGRESS

Mentions With Satisfaction Settlement of the Rio Grande Water Question.

GOLD STANDARD A SUCCESS.

Labor Strike on Mexican Central Was Limited to Men Leaving Their Work.

Mexico City, Sept. 16.—President Diaz opened the autumn session of congress tonight in the presence of senators and deputies and a brilliant audience.

He said in his message that with almost all civilized nations Mexico was on the most friendly terms, while with no nation was any question existing which even remotely threatened conflict.

The long discussed question of an international dam in order to insure an equitable distribution of the waters of the Rio Grande has taken satisfactory form in a treaty signed at Washington. This treaty will be submitted to the Mexican senators for ratification.

The president mentioned the recent revolution in Guatemala and said that strict neutrality was enforced.

The president merely mentioned the pan-American conference and said that it was to be hoped that its resolutions would produce a good effect.

Respecting the labor riot at Cananea in June, the president said it began as a labor movement, degenerating quickly into grave perturbation of public order. Fortunately it was quickly suppressed, thus avoiding what might have been very serious consequences.

The president also took up the recent labor strikes, principally that which occurred on the Mexican Central railway. The strike was limited to the men leaving their work in the shops with a view to obtaining certain concessions from the company. As they were clearly in their right, the authorities respected it and an official effort was limited to preventing any breach of peace. The executive expects on the part of both capitalists and working men regard for each other's rights.

Sanitary precautions against yellow fever continue.

The railways now have a total extension of 21,611 kilometers.

The finances of the nation are in a most satisfactory condition. The total revenues of the federation in the fiscal year were more than $101,000,000. There will be a substantial surplus when accounts are made up to be applied to port work at Salina Cruze and Coatzacoalcos.

The president note with satisfaction the entire success of the gold standard. There has been coined and is now in circulation gold money to the value of $43,000,000, while the monetary commission still has gold on hand to the amount of $16,000,000 yet to be coined. The gold standard has been attained without any sacrifices having been needed on the part of the nation.

In line of material progress the results achieved are amply demonstrated by a tax and show conclusively an astonishing movement on every line of business activity confirming the belief that the country has fully entered on a brilliant policy of progress.

ELECTRIC CAR COLLISION.

Ten Persons Injured in Los Angeles, One of Whom May Die.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 15.—Ten persons were injured, one of whom may die, in a collision tonight of two electric cars at the intersection of Fourteenth street and Long Beach Ave. near the city limits. The injured:

J. H. Nonemaker, two ribs fractured.

Ben Craft, right arm fractured, rib broken, internal injuries.

Sam Lloyd, motorman, internal injuries.

Frank Carter, colored, internal injuries, condition critical.

R. L. Morris, conductor of the car, slight bruises.

—— Brown, motorman, southbound car, bruised and cut.

All of the injured are of Los Angeles. Four passengers were slightly bruised.

An eastbound car of the Los Angeles railway collided with a Long Beach car of the Pacific Electric railway, the two coming together with great force at right angles. The passengers most severely hurt were seated in the front vestibule of the eastbound car.

A misunderstanding as to the right of way is said to have been responsible for the accident. That there were no more fatalities is attributed to the fact that eastbound car was thrown from the track and thus prevented from overturning.

STEAMER MAGNOLIA AGROUND ON MIDWAY REEF

Midway Island, North Pacific Ocean, Sept. 16.—The Pacific mail steamship Mongolia, a sister ship of the Manchuria, is aground on Midway reef. The ship is being lightered and her passengers are being landed safely. The weather is fine and the sea smooth.

NO PRESENT AID.

Honolulu, Sept. 16.—It will be impossible to send immediate assistance from here towards salving the Mongolia. All the wrecking tackle here has been used in floating the Manchuria and attempting to save the transport Sheridan.

Midway Island being so little above the sea level affords no protection from any side from heavy seas. The position of the Mongolia is not known here, but a storm coming from any direction would affect her. Storms may be expected soon.

THE MANCHURIA'S SISTER SHIP.

San Francisco, Sept. 16.—The Pacific Mail company's steamship Mongolia is commanded by Capt. Porter. She is a sister ship of the Manchuria, which went ashore near Honolulu Aug. 20, and which was successfully floated today. The Mongolia is the fourth large transpacific vessel to be stranded within the last two months. The other three were the U. S. transports Thomas and Sheridan and the Manchuria. The Thomas was gotten off, but the Sheridan is still aground.

SHOT IN A RACE WAR.

Granite City, Ill., Sept. 16.—As the result of a race war between American and Macedonian employes of the American Steel Foundry last night, Christo Tolo, a Macedonian, was shot in the back today, and is in a serious condition. It is said that 500 men took part in the general fight here last night, resulting from ill feeling that has been brewing for a long time between the American and foreign employes. None of the Americans was injured, but four foreigners were hurt.

The injured were:

Stano Pedro, rib broken.

E. Fernando, scalp wounds.

H. Kukankos, broken wrist.

EUREKA PUTS UP A LOADED GAME

Park City's Reformed Team Caught Monkeying With Buzz Saw.

WILL PLAY AGAIN TODAY.

But Prospect is for Eureka to Win Second Series as Well as First.

No dynamite that was ever exploded in Park City has had quite the tremendous effect that a little matter of Eureka's winning the baseball game yesterday afternoon produced.

Park City went in for a post season series convinced that Eureka was out of the running and that the eastward camp could haul in a pennant in the latter half as well as the Eureka people did in the first series. Hence the betting, and also a large display of "neck feathers" in the Park City camp.

Yesterday the two clans mixed at Eureka. There was plenty doing from the start, and when it was over Park City had lost the game it more desired to win than any played to date, by a score of 5 to 2. Park City has an excuse in that there was one man short, and a Eureka resident helped out in center field. But the real credit of winning the game must go to Graves. Park City couldn't find him, and their total of hits was only three. Osbourne of Park City was much easier to locate, and his support was ragged, the errors piling up to a total of five.

Eureka was a winner from the first inning. Beck, who was first to bat, knocked out a two-bagger and came home on Northup's single. Park City equalized matters in the third by bringing Patterson home on Kritz's two-bagger that sent them both home and brought him in on a wild throw. Park City made its final run in the sixth, when Kritz scored on Clark's single, and Eureka followed with its final run in the same inning.

Today the two teams play at 2 o'clock in order to let the night shift men see the game. The Eureka miners are well worked up over the unexpected success, and will attend in force.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP.

Bryan Makes His Position on Question More Explicit.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 16.—In a letter to Gov. Jas. A. Vardaman, W. J. Bryan declared that the main thing which led him to believe in the government ownership of railroads was the corruption in politics brought about by private ownership.

"You are right in saying I prefer private ownership if I thought private ownership consistent with our politics and justice to the public. I came reluctantly to my present position and I believe that you and other Democrats will be brought reluctantly to the same position. As for the party it can only act when the voters are ready to act, and it is impossible at this time to say how far public opinion will support this suggestion I have made."

The letter was relative to a statement given out by Gov. Vardaman in which he stated that he would prefer private ownership of railroads with governmental supervision.
