CATARRH

THE EYE, EAR and THROAT Successfully Treated with

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

SUCCESS is the test of merit, and success in the treatment of Catarrhal Affections, after so many miserable failures, means exceedingly much. Hundreds of testimonials in the hands of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh, some of such a character that it seems the opposite in the face of such overwhelming evidence from the most respectable people in all stations of life, must be conclusive on this point. Never, we believe, in the history of proprietary medicines has such valuable testimony been offered, freely offered, in favor of any remedy than that in the possession of the proprietors of Sanford's Radical Cure. A dozen pamphlets would not represent a thousandth part of the recommendations which are to-day offered by friends to friends in its favor. People of wealth and refinement in all parts of the country distinctly attribute their cures to any other means than this remedy, and yet we do not hesitate to publish a few of the testimonials in our possession, feeling that publicity is the best test of a published statement. Hence the testimonials in our possession represent, but a small part of those received, but they are fair samples of the following unsolicited testimonial from Hiram Wells, Esq., of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, is an outspoken endorsement of which we are justly proud.

INVALUABLE.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter, Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.: Gentlemen,—I have for some months felt it a duty that I owe to suffering humanity to write you, stating the great benefit that I have derived from the use of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh. For more than thirty years I have been afflicted with this very troublesome complaint. I have tried all the remedies that I could find, but without any permanent benefit. Last fall the disease had arrived at that state that I must have relief or die. The entire membranous system had become so broken down that I was discouraged, that it was a doubtful matter whether I could go to the Pacific coast, or if I did go whether I could live to reach my destination. I tried this, and was at once benefited by it. The changes of climate, a chronic disease of the liver, and my age—over 70—may prevent my making a permanent cure, but the benefit I derive from its daily use is no inconsiderable, and I am hoping to be completely cured, and at all events I am very thankful for it.

I will gladly pay any reasonable sum for any article of equal merit that I have seen, and enable you to bring this remedy into more general use, especially on the Pacific coast (where it is much needed), my object in writing this note will be obtained.

Very truly yours, HENRY WELLS.

THE POTTER'S SONG.

Turn, turn, my wheel! Turn round and round,
Without a pause, without a sound;
So spins the flying world away!
This clay well tempered with marl and sand,
Follows the motion of my hand;
For some must follow and some command,
Though all are made of clay.

Turn, turn, my wheel! All things must change
To something new to something strange;
Nothing that is can pause or stay;
The moon will wax, the moon will wane,
The mist and cloud will turn to rain,
To-morrow be to-day.

Turn, turn, my wheel! All life is brief;
What now is bud will soon be leaf;
What now is leaf will soon decay;
The winds blow east, the winds blow west,
The blue eggs in the robbin's nest
Will soon have wings and beak and breast,
And flutter and fly away.

Turn, turn, my wheel! This earthen jar
A touch can make, a touch can mar;
And shall it to the potter say,
What makest thou? Thou hast no hand,
As men who think to understand
A worktby their Creator planed,
Who wiser is than they.

Turn, turn, my wheel! 'Tis nature's plan
The child should grow into the man,
The man grow wrinkled, old and gray;
In youth the heart exults and sings,
The pulses leap, the feet have wings;
In age the cricket chirps and brings
The harvest home of day.

Turn, turn, my wheel! The human race
Of every tongue of every place,
Canadian, Coptic or Malay,
All that inhabit this great earth,
Whatever be his rank or worth,
Are kindred and allied by birth,
And made of the same clay.

Turn, turn, my wheel! What is begun
At breakfast must at dark be done;
To-morrow will be another day,
To-morrow the hot furnace flame
Will scatch the heart and try the frame,
And stamp with honor or with shame
These vessels made of clay.

Stop, Stop, my wheel! Too soon, too soon,
The noon will be the afternoon;
Too soon the day be yesterday;
Behind us in our path we cast
The broken potsherd's of the past,
And all are ground to dust at last,
And trodden into clay!

—From Longfellow's "Keramos."

Correspondence.

Horse Thieves and Stolen Horses.

Editors Deseret News:

Last evening, about an hour after dark, we were favored with a call from Peter Huntsman, Sheriff of Millard County, Utah, and his two deputies, Wise Cropper and Joseph Ray, having in custody two horse thieves and three stolen horses, captured at Desert Springs, Iron County, Utah. Mr. Huntsman upon arriving at Desert Springs, found the negro wench playing cards with one of the thieves, and upon Mr. H. going to the stables, he discovered one of the stolen horses, when the thief took the wench's warning hint and left for the mountains on foot, until he met the famous "Ben" Tasker, whose kind and sympathetic nature prompted him to loan his own mare to the thief so as to evade the pursuit of the officers. But neither horse flesh nor the beneficient sympathy of "Ben" Tasker proved available. The almost incredible efficiency of Mr. Huntsman and party was too much for guilty shrewdness.

He tracked the thieves on horseback to where the cedars were so closely compact that one of the thieves had to dismount and secrete himself, in company with his "pard" among the rocks, where Mr. Huntsman captured them.

Upon the return of the officers to the Desert Springs, the courageous "Ben" Tasker swore vengeance against them, so that they felt themselves almost necessitated "to flee the coach" to get possession of the stolen horse; "Ben" refusing to give up the coveted booty without a great deal of persuasive argument.

I cannot but regret that a similarly efficient officer did not pursue my own Flag and Nell, black and grey mares, July 30, or 31, 1876, when they were taken to Duck Creek, Nevada; two ungrateful men giving the necessary assistance for their exit. The guilty conscience of one while under the influence of liquor impelling him to partially confess his participations in this theft to the highest executive officer of this county a few days after its occurrence. Let justice assert its dignity.

Very respectfully yours, HENRY CROUSE.

Hot Springs, Beaver Co., Utah, Nov. 8, 1878.

Infant Baptism.

A Methodist living in the State of Georgia became dissatisfied on the subject of infant baptism. He frequently urged his preacher to tell where in the Bible it must be found: but the preacher, like all other preachers, could not produce the scripture. At last the preacher hit on a happy plan; he told each member of his class at their next general meeting, to bring the best proof text on infant baptism—the dissatisfied brother among the others. The time arrived and all appeared equipped as directed.

The first brother read, "Suffer little children to come unto me." "Well," said the dissatisfied brother, "what has that to do with infant baptism?" "Oh!" said the preacher, "the inference is that Christ baptized them." The next read, "And when she (Lydia) was baptized, and her household." "Wall," said the brother, "there are no infants mentioned here." "But stop," said the preacher, "the inference is that Lydia had children in her household." So they continued until every text that Methodist skill could warp was exhausted.

Then the dissatisfied brother's turn came. He arose and said, "And Balaam rose up early in the morning and saddled his ass." "My brother, "what has that to do with infant baptism?" "Don't you see," said the dissatisfied brother, "the inference is that Balaam saddled his ass to carry his children to church to have them baptized!" The convention adjourned, sine die.

The Perils of Bachelordom.

The advantages of marriage over celibacy have been presented by promatrimonialists from time immemorial; but one advantage not yet touched upon has been revealed of late by sundry suits at law. This is purely moral, and not to be despised because post-mortuary. It has become plain that now no man can die a bachelor and be accepted as such in the full sense. He is hardly in his grave before somebody turns up claiming to be his son or daughter through an illegitimate connection. Usually there are several of these claimants, and they are apt to concoct a story that is plausible enough to be to a certain extent believed. The world is censorious; it seems determined to doubt that any man of common mould can or will lead a strictly moral life, particularly if he be unmarried. When a bachelor of property has passed away, and an effort is made by one or more scoundrels to establish their legitimate illegitimacy, those are not wanting who will say: "Quite probably. He was no doubt a sly old fox. Mighty hard to trust men," etc. When a man has been a husband and leaves children, it is very rare that a second family is invented. But a bachelor's memory is always exposed to this kind of scandal. The saintliest saint who has ever breathed could not be guaranteed against such assault. If the Cardiff Giant had left any money, somebody would have appeared to call him Lothario. The sole security to one's reputation after death is marriage.—N. Y. Times.
