Great People's Canal to be Opened Next Spring—Prospects for Settlers—Other Items.

BLACKFOOT, Dec. 30, 1895.

To the Editor:

In September, 1894, a few of our brethren conceived the project of taking out a canal on the west side of Snake river, opposite the town of Blackfoot, and on the 28th of September the idea took tangible shape. The work moved but slowly for the first six months, for want of numerical strength and means to overcome difficulties; but by patient and united effort all obstacles were mastered and the People's canal became an assured fact. It is 60 feet wide on the bottom and will carry four feet of water. The first two miles of canal has a fall of nine feet and the balance an average of about two and a half feet to the mile.

The canal follows close to the lava bed that stretches back for miles to the north and west, leaving a broad strip of land between it and the river. This land is mostly a sandy loam which is covered with sagebrush, but that will be very pliable when brought under cultivation. There are thousands of acres of ground that this canal project will bring the water on. The canal is owned by the people who have taken land, and there is yet excellent opportunity for the right kind of people to get good homes with excellent water privileges. It is expected that the water will be in the first twenty miles of the canal by April, in time to begin irrigation.

The work has been progressing favorably for some time, and to encourage the workers—a feast and entertainment was got up for them on the afternoon and evening of the 28th of December. In the afternoon an interesting program was rendered, consisting of encouraging speeches, reports of those in charge of construction, songs and recitations; after which over 200 partook of the feast of good things that had been prepared. The evening was spent in the social dance. It was a time of rejoicing and one to be long remembered by all who participated.

The Saints of this region relish at the success in their members. On the Lowmile that has been laid out there has been erected about sixteen houses and they have just completed the erection of a neat log meeting house, where the feasting and dancing was conducted. It is only a few years since the first Latter-day Saint settled in this region; and that under great difficulties. But by their energy and perseverance they have changed the sagebrush plain to fruitful fields, and in nearly forty miles southwest of Blackfoot can be found the heavy pioneer's cabin and land claims.

The People's Canal is projected to extend about forty miles—twenty miles of which is now nearly completed, and the other extension will be pushed to the early spring. This is a splendid chance for good industrious frugal Latter-day Saints who have no homes of their own, to secure comfort and independence. But they must not come out to this country expecting to find cultivated farms awaiting them. On the contrary they must be prepared to equal down on a sage brush plain, grub the brush, dig the ditches, make the levees, construct canals, level the land—build from the ground up. This requires nerve, frugality, industry and no little self-denial. Yet the practice of these virtues brings a great reward and insures independence.

The climate on this part of the Snake river is much milder than farther north, and all the more hardy fruits will prosper. There is no ward organization at the present in Riverside, as this district is called, but it is expected that an organization will be perfected in the near future by the appointment of a Bishop. There are a number of excellent people living in the region, and the next year will see a great change. A post office will be established after the 1st of January at Sou township, which is called Moreland; and as the stage passes there daily the people will have a daily mail.

There is a great change in the town of Blackfoot, which was once a radical anti-Mormon town, where no mercy was shown a Mormon, but where they are now welcome and acceptable neighbors, the old-timers realizing that this industrious class brings prosperity.

POULTRY FOR PROFIT.

Cost of Keeping Hens on the Farm—Demand and Supply.

There are very few farmers who realize how much money comes from the poultry and eggs that are produced on the farm, says a writer in Farm News. If they will study the matter up, they will find that the hens in the barnyard pay more for the food they use than almost anything else, in fact, except the indispensable horse, whose value is hard to compute, so much depends on him.

The farmer can keep a hen a year for less than 50 cents. This has been proved time and again, and it is a poor sort of a hen that will not produce ten dozen eggs a year, and the average price is above 10 cents. Allowing that the cost of keep is 50 cents and eggs are but 10 cents a dozen average the year through, and it will be seen that the farmer gets a dollar for an expenditure of 50 cents.

If he keeps his poultry as he should, the average price will be nearer 20 cents a dozen than 10 cents, for he will get eggs in winter, when prices are always high.

With all this increase in the products of the poultry yards of the country there has never been a year when we did not import eggs, and this importation has not fallen off, except as the tariff affected it, and a tariff of 5 cents a dozen did not cut off importation entirely.

The United States is rapidly becoming a nation of poultry and egg eaters, because the wholesomeness of poultry and the relative cheapness of eggs as compared with meats are becoming better understood all the time, and the result is that the demand for poultry grows faster than the supply is increased, and the average rises slowly year by year. No one need hesitate about going into the business of raising poultry from any fear that there will be an oversupply. A low price always meets an increased demand, and this fosters an appetite for eggs and poultry, which is satisfied when prices go up again, and the business keeps on growing. It will keep on indefinitely, for poultry can be kept and will be kept with profit when the country is much more thickly populated than it now is.

Poultry Notes.

A handsome appearance is worth 1 or 2 cents a pound in selling poultry.

Short legged fowls fatten quickly. Long legged ones are hard to fatten.

If the hens or pullets are thin with pale combs, examine them carefully for lice.

When the fowls have a good range at this time, care must be taken not to overfeed them.

Feed hens only as much as they will eat up clean at certain hours; otherwise they will get too fat.

If a pullet is hatched and does not get a good start, she will remain useless until nearly a year old.

Fowls should not be killed when they have full crops, or the flesh will turn blue and dark around the crop.

Stomach and Bladder Trouble Cured.

Mrs. Hiram Yeager of Acadia, Salt Lake City, Happy.

"My little boy when three years old," writes Mrs. Hiram Yeager of Acadia, Salt Lake City, Utah, "suffered from some unknown trouble and sometimes at the time of the stomach and bladder, the attending physician pronounced an operation upon him, but it did not produce the desired effect and found the patient no easier recovery has been hopeless.

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Was at this critical time suggested and used with the most remarkable result. The pains in the back ceased, the urine resumed its natural color and condition, the heavy distressed feeling in the stomach and head "that makes my heart ache when I think of his sufferings," disappeared and the use of but a few bottles of Favorite Remedy completely cured him. He now attends school one mile from home and walks back and forth daily."

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy restores the disordered liver to a healthy condition, corrects the worst cases of constipation, it is a certain cure for the disease and weaknesses peculiar to women. It cures scrofula, salt rheum and erysipelas. For nervousness, loss of sleep, or that worn out feeling, it has no equal. In cases of rheumatism, dyspepsia, gravel, Bright's disease, diabetes, and bladder troubles it has cured where all else failed. $1 a bottle.
