NEWS OF THE WEST.

A Jailbird Who Drank a Quart of Coal Oil.

MARRIAGE OF A BLIND SINGER.

Cut in Two by a Circular Saw—Drank Laudanum for Cough Mixture—Took off an Extra Thumb.

The Mexican man-of-war Zaragoza is docked for repairs at the Union Iron works yard, San Francisco.

California papers state that Rev. Orpa W. Herbert, who recently arrived from Salt Lake, has begun work with Bethlehem church, Los Angeles.

Mrs. MacKinne, of Oakland, Cal., deserted her husband a few weeks ago for Fred Beattie, a machinist. Last Saturday Beattie deserted her and she committed suicide.

George B. Larkin, a San Francisco drayman, took a dose of laudanum Sunday in mistake for cough mixture. The result was death. He leaves a wife and one child.

The third of the trio of giant redwoods from the Mariposa county, Cal., has been named for Susan B. Anthony. The other two were named for George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

Miss Edna Helmbold, the young prima donna upon whom blindness came recently, was married on Sunday to Willie Edmiston, at San Francisco. Edmiston is connected with the [illegible].

A three-weeks-old baby of Mrs. Marks, San Francisco, had two thumbs on one hand, the extra one growing out of the joint of the right thumb, and being a perfect counterpart of the [illegible]. On Saturday the extra thumb was removed by a surgeon.

Wesley Scott, a well known steamboat engineer, fell overboard from the steamer Ocean Wave, at Portland, Oregon, Sunday morning and was drowned. No one saw the accident, and he was not missed until his hat was found floating near the steamer. His body was recovered.

Three boys in a house in San Francisco searched for a gas jet, on Saturday night. They had noticed the odor of escaping gas, and with lighted matches looked for the cause. They found it, in a gas explosion which laid all three of them up for repairs, thankful they had escaped with their lives.

The remains of twenty-eight soldiers buried on the military reservation at Fort Townsend, Wash., were shipped on Saturday to Benicia, Cal., where they were buried in the National cemetery. Some of the bodies had been buried thirty-five years, and only the bones were got together for shipment.

Frank Madison was instantly killed Sunday morning at the Colmanson lumbering camp on the Great Northern Railroad, eleven miles west of Leavenworth, Wash., by being cut in twain with a circular saw. He was riding on a log carriage and failed to notice his approach to the saw. He was a highly respected citizen and leaves a wife and four children.

Teddy Williams, a prisoner in the Los Angeles, Cal., city jail, drank a quart of kerosene Sunday with presumably suicidal intent. No damage was done, save the loss of the kerosene. Williams was arrested about five months ago on a charge of petit larceny. He was found guilty and sentenced to a term in jail. Ever since his term began he has been a source of great annoyance, and three months ago he attempted to break jail, but his efforts proved unsuccessful. On many occasions he has tried to commit suicide by choking himself with a handkerchief, but the watchfulness of the jailers has prevented the consummation of his purpose. He has made two or three attempts in the past three days, and for over a week has refused to eat any food. It is thought that he is demented.

TWO CUTE FOXES.

They Had Fun While Baffled Hunters Wondered Where They Were Hiding.

In Outing is told the story of a pair of foxes that for a time, at any rate, enjoyed the sport of a fox hunt. The dogs jumped them, but after awhile the trail ended at a pond.

About the center of the pond was a bent tree, the two ends of which were in the water, while the highest point of the curve was perhaps 10 feet above the pond. The dogs were working about the pond, looking for the trail, and the men were looking, too, and they were beginning to feel rather curious, especially as every few moments they would hear a fox yelp sharply. It seemed to be a derisive bark, which it probably was. After awhile a movement in the top of the curve of the tree in the pond attracted attention.

"Upon this tree," the account continues, "seated comfortably at the point of its highest curve, was an old dog fox. The cunning rascal had traveled across the pond on the logs, then scaled the bent tree, and while we watched he jerked his grizzly brush up and down and barked his derision at the whole performance. After awhile we saw his vixen seated on an adjacent log. They were simply watching the futile efforts of our pack to locate them, and, likely enough, they enjoyed the experience."

One of the men got up to[illegible] from the animals and [illegible] drove them out. The dogs took the [illegible] fox's trail and drove it at last to a log spanning a ditch, on which a man was sitting. The fox did not see the motionless man till close enough to be reached, when, with a frantic leap sideways into the water, he escaped the grab. The race did not last long then. The wet fox gave off a strong, easily followed scent, and the wet brush was like a piece of lead, so the animal was killed by the dogs while the men rushed in after to get a closer [illegible].

Battle Ax PLUG

The largest piece of good tobacco ever sold for 10 cents and The 5 cent piece is nearly as large as you get of other high grades for 10 cents

Say, Here is A Pointer!

Money is the root of all evil. Just a desire to save a few cents is the root of all clothing evils. We buy our clothing from manufacturers who have a reputation for making honest goods. We buy good goods just as cheap as we know how—for cash—and then put a close cash price upon them. There is no saving of a few cents here and there to make the goods squeeze into the price. The goods are made right first and the price made right afterward.

No Squeeze in the Tailoring.
No Squeeze in the Trimmings.
The only Squeeze is on the Price.
One Price to all—that the Lowest—consistent with Honest Quality.

This policy is pursued in not only the clothing department, but in every department as well—Gents' Furnishings, Boys' Department, Shoe Department, Hats, Caps, etc.

Promises may get Customers
But Performances Keep Them.

We protect our customers and shatter all possible competition—this is the newest and nobbiest in all departments.
