OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, - SEPT. 15, 1894.

ACCUSED OF FRAUD.

Serious Charges Against the Mayor of the Junction City.

Thursday a complaint was filed in the Fourth district court, Logan, by a number of the stockholders of the Citizens' bank against the cashier, C. M. Brough, and the vice president, Thomas Robinson, charging them with fraudulent handling of the funds of said institution.

Thursday evening Judge King appointed J. C. Armstrong receiver of the property and effects of the Citizens' bank now in the possession of Assignee C. M. Brough. Bond was fixed at $50,000.

The complaint is a very long one. It charges that the financial embarrassment of the bank in the year 1893 was brought about by the acts C. M. Brough and Theodore Robinson by loaning large sums of money to themselves and to corporations in which they were directors and stockholders; that $10,000 was loaned to the Cache Valley Canal company, of which Theodore Robinson and Charles M. Brough were directors and stockholders; that $21,000 was loaned the Anderson Pressed Brick company of which Theodore Robinson was a stockholder and it is believed now that Charles M. Brough was and is a stockholder in said Anderson Pressed Brick company; that $20,000 was loaned to Corey Bros., of whom Hyrum Warren Corey is a partner; that said loan was made to Corey Bros. while Warren Corey was a partner and a director of the said Citizens' bank; that $5,000 was loaned to said Theodore Robinson just before the bank came to an assignment; that the expenses of electing Charles M. Brough as treasurer of Ogden City were paid by said bank. The complaint continues at length to cite miscellaneous other frauds in connection with the bank's business. C. M. Brough is mayor of Ogden City.

Notes.

A suit for $5,000 was filed in the Fourth district court by Charles E. and Frederick Jensen vs. Sage Creek, Rich county, as damages from Peter J. Jensen for alleged defamation of character.

Every copy of the News was bought within a very few minutes after the arrival of the mail train last evening, much interest being taken in the execution of Enoch Davis.

PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, - SEPT. 15, 1894.

TO DISSOLVE PARTNERSHIP.

A Receiver Asked for a Deseret, Millard County, Firm.

Caroline Black and six other residents of Deseret have commenced a suit in the First district court against Hyrum Dewsnip and John Dewsnip, also of Deseret. Plaintiffs set forth that in April, 1892, they and defendants entered into a partnership under the firm name of The Deseret Co-op. for the purpose of conducting a general merchandise business in Deseret, Millard county, Utah; that merchandise and other property to the value of $15,000 has been accumulated by the firm, which is in the possession of Hyrum Dewsnip, who refuses the plaintiffs access to the books of the business and refuses to permit them to have any share in the management. Therefore they pray for judgment, that the partnership be dissolved; that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the property; that defendants be enjoined from interfering with the property and be required to render an account of the partnership property; that the proceeds realized from the sale of the partnership property be used, first, to liquidate claims against the firm, and that the remainder be divided pro rata among the partners. D. O. Hoyt, H. Anderson and Joshua Greenwood are attorneys for plaintiffs.

Justice's Court Business.

John H. Doblaller of the Provo Soda works, has filed a complaint to Justice Wedgewood's court against six boys, charging them with stealing soda water to the value of $15, from the Provo Soda Works on the 9th of this month.

Sidney Bird, of Benjamin, and Chris Jensen, of Spanish Fork, were taken before Justice Wedgewood charged with unlawfully seining in Utah lake. The case was continued for one month.

Samuel H. Jeppesen has filed a complaint against Chas. H. Nelson in Justice Wedgwood's court, charging Nelson with permitting a foul and filthy ditch to run from his premises into the premises of the complainant, within the limits of Provo city.

Notes.

A number of people went from Provo to Lehi over the Union Pacific yesterday morning. They expected to be able to find the place where Davis would be executed, but they were unable to do so and returned disappointed.

Deputy Marshal Bean, of Richfield, came up yesterday. He says crops in Sevier county are unusually good, and the people, in consequence, feel prosperous and happy.

A severe frost visited Provo on the night of the 11th, causing some damage to tomatoes and such vegetables as have not been gathered.

J. R. Maguire, a young man of Draper, who has been herding sheep for J. Igan, near E. V. Jacobsen, came to Provo the other day and intended to bring suit against J. A. Cunningham of Salt Lake City, who he say claims, had forcibly deprived him from his position as shepherd. The sheep had been loaned by Mr. Egan from Mr. Cunningham and when the latter took possession of the flock Maguire objected to leaving till he was paid wages due him from Egan, but was compelled to vacate by Mr. Cunningham. The boy consulted an attorney and was advised not to bring suit.

The board of directors of the Territorial Insane asylum held their regular meeting yesterday. All the managers were present. The report of the medical superintendent on the movements of patients from the 16th of August to the 14th of September shows the present number of females to be 112 males and 92 females. The treasurer was authorized to renew, for six months, a $10,000 note now due the Deseret National bank. Other routine business was transacted.

Their Houses are Warm.

The Corsons may be a very unclothed people, but it is said that they know something about warming their houses. Even the meanest of their shacks is furnished with a furnace, called king, which, while very primitive, is extremely effective and succeeds all the best points of the most approved contrivance for house-warming. The furnace is situated at one side of the house, or generally at one end.

It burns with a down draft, and the heat and smoke are conveyed through numerous flues under the sand floors to a chimney at the opposite side of the building. No smoke or foul air gets into the house, and the floors are kept very warm. It is said that a small fire of brushwood in the furnace will thoroughly heat a large house. So far, the only fault that is found with Corson house-dwelling is that it is too effective, and the disease of the people are largely due to their keeping their houses too hot. Indeed, they are accustomed to maintain a temperature of 70 or 80 degrees, while outside the weather is at zero or below.
