NEWS OF THE WEST.

The Son of an Ex-City Marshal Arrested for Train Robbery.

CATTLE RUSTLERS IN COLORADO.

A Chinaman Tries "Burgling," with Serious Results to Himself.

A movement is on foot to organize an Indian anti-liquor party, composed of the best members of Lodge, says the Cedar City Record.

The Lewiston (Idaho) Tribune, of September, says: Government $50,000 for Camas prairie this season for outside entertainers.

A Chinaman who had taken up the "profession" of a burglar was shot a few nights ago by the head of the family while burglarizing a house in Sacramento, Cal.

George Worthington and others passed through Nephi the other day, says the Courier with 15,000 head of sheep, which they were taking to Beaver county for the winter. They were the property of Juab county sheepmen.

Henry Reinelt, a member of the Woodman mine and prominently connected of Denver, fell from the top of an outgoing coach at Cripple Creek, Colo. When picked up he was unconscious, and has been in that condition ever since.

The Virginia (Nevada) Enterprise says: Probably Lieutenant Governor Wheat will run on the Democratic ticket this year. He is now on exhibition at the store of R. Nevin. It was raised on the ranch of L. W. Largamarsino. The minimum vegetable weighs 13 pounds.

The largest lumber deal ever made in British Columbia is said to have been just arranged by the R. S. McLaren Lumber company, which is reported to have contracted with a South African mining company for 100,000,000 feet of lumber.

Most of the ministers in Helena, Mont., devoted their sermons Sunday largely to the capital fight. Some warned their hearers against bribery and corruption, but others declared that the church people should actively oppose the Anaconda corporation.

Last Saturday morning the body of a large dead whale floated into San Francisco harbor. The large sea monster is likely to prove a valuable acquisition, as the stench arising from it is described as being sufficiently detestable. Just what will be done with the carcass has not been determined.

Two young men while hunting grouse about seven miles above Valley, Cal., were startled by seeing stocking out of a bushes in a back two feet around to a pair shoes and woolen socks. It was the body of a man. Nothing is known of his identity or the manner of his death.

The authorities at Greeley, Colo., have been quite active lately in getting after the cattle thieves, who have been operating in that vicinity. On Monday Robert Chestnut and John P. King, two prominent ranchmen, were given hearings in Justice Morris's court and held to appear at the district court.

Frank Kiles, son of ex-City Marshal Kiles, and Otto Savage, whose father was circuit judge of the Dallas (Oregon) district for years, have been arrested for the Pacific Express robbery of $2,000. All but $8 of the loot has been recovered. Five thousand was found in the house of the young men. The street is said to have caused a tremendous sensation. The police were first put on the track by a prisoner in the Portland jail. He confessed to having been a party to the conspiracy to rob, and said that the arrangements were made several months ago. He received the officers to a cache in the state penitentiary at Salem, who had been sent up since the plan was first concocted. Officers at once went to Salem, and the story being confirmed, the arrest and recovery of the money followed.

A GALLANT THIEF.

He Tried to Divulge Him, but He Wasn't Easily Fooled.

A lady went to the theater. On returning home after the performance she discovered that her bracelet, which was a valuable one, had been stolen. She was very sorry, for the jewelry was a present. A few days afterward the young lady received the following letter:

"The writer of this note has the honor to inform you that he knows where your bracelet is and will return it cheerfully under certain conditions. I do not expect to receive a reward in money, since I regard it as something unjust to accept money from a lady whom I delight so much as I do you. On the other hand, it would be very grateful to me to see you your jewelry without getting some equivalent. Taking into consideration my excessive love for you, I'll return the talisman of success for a single kiss from your ruby lips. Tomorrow morning I will be at the corner of —— street with the missing jewelry. If you are willing to put my price, I will, after pressing a kiss on the adorned lips, pass the bracelet in your hand. No questions asked."

The young lady did not know what to do. She wanted to get her bracelet back, but she did not care to pay the price. She hit upon the idea of sending her servant girl in her place.

The servant girl put in an appearance at the appointed hour and place. She was heartily veiled. A well dressed gentleman approached and asked:

"Do you accept the terms?"

"I do."

The stranger familiarly embraced her after the most approved style, and simultaneously imprinted a huge smack on her mouth that caused the policeman on the corner to start. He thought it was a pistol shot.

"Here is what I promised," he remarked after the formality had been complied with, "but," he added, "you will find it like the kiss, not quite what it was represented to be, as you are only the servant, not the mistress," handing her something wrapped up in a paper.

After he had retired, which he did immediately, the servant examined the paper and found that it only contained a piece of wood.—Chicago Times.
