A Colorado man went to Arriba, north, New Mexico, last week and bought 1500 old watches at $2.25 a piece.

From one to six pounds of gold are, running from two to three ounces to the ton, being taken from the placer mines at Eureka.

On the 15th of the present month the Bay mining company at Park City will pay its 69th monthly dividend of $375,000.

Mike Brown and George Hank, two cowboys in Wyoming, were found dead a few days ago by their employer. Vigilantes are at work and intend to put a stop to cattlewing in that state.

Frank Yeager, one of the Trowbridge's electricians at Denver, has had his spine terribly injured by an electric fish while in the discharge of his duties in the electric power station at Grand avenue.

In the United States court at Cheyenne the Shoshone Indian Pocheanah, on trial for murdering Pamunkey while drunk, has been convicted. The evidence was purely circumstantial. The jury, after four hours' deliberation, brought in a verdict of manslaughter.

A large force of men, employed by W. H. Sherman of Los Angeles, have commenced putting in the poles and wires along Washington street at Phoenix, Arizona, preparatory to turning the lines out there into an electric road. The work will be completed in thirty days.

A report comes from Sierra county, New Mexico, that very heavy rains have fallen all over the range in that section, the water holes being filled and the district well soaked. Rain also fell plentifully last week in southern San Miguel county, also down along the Pecos, and the grass is showing the benefit of it already.

Stock raising is becoming an important industry in North Dakota and large herds of cattle, herds of sheep and droves of horses flourish and increase rapidly, even when having only the natural grasses for their sustenance. Quite a number of the cattle and sheep are pure bred, which is a good sign for the future of the quality of the stock of that state.

The Scruggs-Stanley Cattle company, at one time the owners of the largest and best stocked ranges in southern New Mexico, have disposed of all their stock within the past few days at $8 per head. They have decided to abandon the cattle business, owing to the condition of the industry in these parts.—Stockman.

A freak in the way of a sugar beet was exhibited in Norfolk, Nebraska, last week. When small the beet had run up through a beef steak bone. As it grew the bone acted as a circling band about the center of the beet, the upper bottom bulging out to three or four times the size of the bone, which it still carries with it. It is from the field of C. B. Hazen and is quite a curiosity.

The Logan hotel at Shoshone, Idaho, has been burned to the ground. The loss is $5000 and was covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective flue in the kitchen, and there being no water works the building was soon at the mercy of the flames. Most of the furniture was saved. Fortunately for the Union Pacific Railroad the wind was favorable, otherwise the depot building opposite would undoubtedly have been consumed also.

In many districts of Colorado coal is so plentiful in the foothills contiguous to the agricultural districts says Field and Farm, that the farmers are now engaged hauling their winter supply. The coal is mined in a crude way and hauled when the farmers' teams are not required for other farm work, and in many cases farmers haul enough coal to last the year through. The counties in which farmers are thus blessed with such cheap fuel are Larimer, Boulder, Jefferson, Gunnison, Routt, Rio Blanco and Las Animas counties.

Last Thursday the mines at White Hills, known as the Shafer group, were sold to C. W. Berry and R. T. Rood, two well known mining men of Denver, Colorado, for $250,000. These mines are the most valuable discoveries made on the Pacific coast in recent years, and are worth much more than the sum paid for them. The mines are now on a steady paying basis, and the erection of reduction works on the ground will greatly augment the output. The management will immediately erect a large boarding and bunk house for workmen.—Mohave Miner.

Cheyenne Leader: Judge Scott has granted restraining orders in the White case. The parties restrained were the Penn Cattle company, Clerk Silas A. Guthrie, of Converse county, the General Trust company of New York, the Ogallala Land and Cattle company and the Union Mercantile company. They are all denied the privilege of disposing in any way of the White securities given by C. A. White by his wife to secure the payment of a note for $75,000. This is the case which created such a sensation recently at Cheyenne.

Hugh McDonald brought in and presented today to Colonel Halford a human head that he found near the spot where a man's remains were discovered in the Sulphur Spring valley a few months ago by W. H. Finley. He states the Arizona Prospector. It will be remembered that Mr. Finley did not find the head but all the other bones were scattered around. Mr. McDonald issued a quite a few days ago and in the skirmish pulled up a bunch of bear grass on which he tripped over the head of a man. Upon examination he found it complete and brought it in yesterday and presented it to Col. Halford. There is a bullet hole through it directly over the ear, leaving no doubt but that the unfortunate unknown traveler was murdered. The coyotes had carried his head to the spot where it was found.

Christine Sorenson, a young Swedish girl who has been a consumptive patient at the city and county hospital for several months, made two unsuccessful attempts last night to end her life, first by suffocation and then by hanging herself. About a week ago she went to the kitchen of the hospital, procured a knife and threatened the lives of a number of patients and nurses. She was subdued and confined in a room by herself, and the physicians waited for developments of insanity. Last evening one of the nurses discovered an odor of escaping gas, and upon investigation found that the girl had turned on the jet in her room. The nurse sent for Dr. May, the resident physician, but before he reached the ward the Swedish girl had fastened a bandage tightly about her neck and tied it to a door knob, and lay there slowly suffocating. She was rescued by prompt treatment, and the doctor orders her strapped down to prevent a recurrence of the attempts.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Ben Blanchard, who came to Cheyenne well recommended about six months since, is now being hunted by Sheriff Kelley of that city. In Kansas Blanchard undertook to organize a company that would construct and operate a street car line. The citizens contributed $200,000 in cash and property, but it was not turned over to him, as the committee in charge of it grew suspicious of his motives and power to carry out his promises. As the agent of a mythical eastern syndicate he began operations contracting for many things which he paid for in promises, and in one instance forged a draft for over $300 on a Terre Haute, Ind., bank. The draft was rejected, and the man to whom it was given swore out a warrant for Blanchard's arrest. It is on this charge that Sheriff Kelley is now endeavoring to arrest him in Kansas. Had Blanchard been successful in his plans, which were very ingenious, he would have bunceed the city out of $250,000.—Carbon (Wyoming) Journal.

In irrigating in New Mexico the usual plan is to take water from the stream at a point several miles above where it is to be used. The work is done by the people of the whole neighborhood, each individual having his subdivision connecting with the main ditch and a particular time allotted him to use the water. The main ditch is in care of the interested party, who see that it is kept in repair. At any time he is privileged to call out all those using the water to clean or repair the ditch. The fields to be irrigated are cut up into long, narrow beds, with ridges of earth six or eight inches high all round. The water is let in from the ditch at the end of the bed, to a depth of two to four inches, according to the crop. The bright warm sunshine that prevails in the Rio Grande valley, causes everything to grow with a luxuriance from the same land every year. A good illustration of the happy results of irrigation can be seen in New Mexico, in the Rio Grande valley, for twenty miles on either side of Albuquerque. The land is mainly devoted to gardens, orchards and vineyards, which depend entirely on the ditch for water.—Agricultural Engineer.
