DESERET EVENING NEWS

Monday, . . March 22, 1897.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Elders Hashmer, Romney and Goddard the Speakers at the Tabernacle.

Elder Joseph E. Taylor of the Stake Presidency was the presiding officer at the Tabernacle services Sunday afternoon, March 21, 1897. The choir sang the hymn:

Behold the Great Redeemer die,
A broken law to satisfy.

Prayer was offered by Elder Wm. B. Barton. The choir sang the anthem:

From star streams Lord
Thou hast gathered Thy flock.

Elder James E. Fishburn addressed the congregation. He began by referring to the covenants which the Latter-day Saints make when they become members of the Church. They promised on going down into the waters of baptism to follow Him through good and through evil report. It followed them then to be ever on the alert to do His bidding and to testify to the world concerning the truth and divinity of the work in which they were engaged. If the Saints would set out in this manner and hold themselves in readiness to obey God and keep His commandments, they would be led through the spirit, to concentrate their minds on the things of God and to look into the future and see the salvation and glory to which mankind could attain, through walking in the straight and narrow path.

The speaker read the words of Alma in the Book of Mormon, wherein that servant showed unto the people that which was required of them to plead in themselves a disposition to receive the Father's blessings. The same salvation was made in our day. Mankind must be born again, or of the water and of the Spirit, if they desired to enter into His Kingdom. The birth referred to was the baptism of the water, such as Jesus Christ had administered unto Him by John the Baptist, when the Savior said it should be done to fulfill all righteousness. Following this baptism came the laying on of hands, through which the applicant for heavenly favors received the gift of the Holy Ghost, otherwise known as the Comforter. The receipt of the spirit opened up the way for blessings to those who would apply themselves to the work of the ministry, and seek with sincere hearts to serve God in very deed. It was in this condition that the Saints when assembling together would seek to concentrate their minds on the purposes of God, and thereby call down blessings on their own heads, through the speakers called upon to address them from time to time.

Elder Fishburn admonished the Saints to live up to the covenants which they had entered into, that by so doing they might eventually reap the reward promised unto all the faithful.

Elder George Romney was the next speaker. He expressed great surprise at being called upon to address the Saints, but like the preceding speaker he realized that it was his duty to respond to the call. The sound of the everlasting Gospel found its speaker in the old country—Great Britain—and through his position obedience to the same, many blessings had been conferred upon him. The Gospel was calculated to make man and better able to attend to all duties devolving upon them. It was a Gospel of purity—a Gospel which embraced everything that was good and true; and if the Saints applied themselves therein with all diligence and for the purpose of both, a membership in the Church of Christ would count for something. Mormonism was not a religion calculated only for Sunday adherence to it. N. it was an every-day religion and a religion which emanated from its devotees, their attention every day of the week, month and year. God was watching the movements of His people and was blessing them according to their faithfulness. He had placed the proper authorities at the head of His Church and through them His word flowed into the Saints from time to time. The point of safety was that which dictated obedience to the Priesthood of God, for the Father would never allow any one man or set of men to lead His people astray.

Elder Romney borne testimony to the divinity of the work of God he engaged in by the Latter-day Saints. He knew that Joseph Smith was a true Prophet of God; that Brigham Young was his legal successor; that John Taylor properly followed him and that Wilford Woodruff was the mouthpiece of God upon the earth today. The Priesthood was on the earth for a purpose and it behooved all mankind to pay obedience to it. God Almighty had set His hand once the earth for the last time, and He would see to it that His purposes were accomplished. Blessings and been promised to those who would obey Him and keep His commandments, therefore mankind could not well afford to ignore the word of God and cut themselves off from His favors.

Elder Benjamin Goddard was the closing speaker. He said he rejoiced in the Gospel for he knew it to be the plan of salvation as revealed from heaven. He heart was made to swell with joy when he gazed upon so many of the brethren and sisters, gathered together in worship. Him who was the author of so many blessings unto them. The Latter-day Saints had been gathered from afar, in units with each other in building temples and attend to ordinances for the salvation of the human family as well as to indulge in general worship unto the Father of all.

The hymns sung by the Latter-day Saints, and the speakers, were inspiring and full of meaning. One of them, How Firm a Foundation, was especially significant, in that it portrayed the strength of the work and unchanging resolutions, so it were, to bring to the end of time, throughout all time and eternity. The foundation of the Church of Christ was indeed firm. It was founded upon a rock as spoken of by Christ to the Apostle Peter. The Gospel had been restored to the earth for the benefit of the human family, God Himself speaking from the heavens and giving instructions unto a mere boy as to the organization of His Church upon the earth, but the last time Israel was now being gathered from the four quarters of the universe and the prediction of Isaiah was meeting fulfillment in the fact of those who were numbered among His chosen few.

Elder Goddard in conclusion pointed out the manner in which the Saints should live to enjoy the all blessings of the Gospel and testified to his knowledge of the divinity of the work. He had tested it and knew that to live as it bent to him those who yielded obedience.

Choir sang the anthem:

Glory to God on high.

Benediction was pronounced by Elder Arthur Winter.

"Art and Artists."

The following is a synopsis of Mr. Harwood's lecture given in the Senate wand meeting house Friday night on Art and Artists. Some will tell you that the greatest productions in art were done during the Italian and Dutch renaissance period, and that nothing done since that time can approach them. No doubt there were people living then who were just as dissatisfied as those of today, and who believed that there was nothing to value produced that the Greeks did not do. No one can understand or appreciate an old master if he be student art for twenty years, neither can he appreciate a great artist of today, and it has greatness equal to his own life. When art thought and effort is directed to one channel, as it was in the fifteenth century, the result must be great in that direction but when the effort is directed in several channels the result is not so appreciable. Take, for example, the painting by Leonardo de Vinci in the Louvre, Alone Alert there is no modern living artist who can paint a head with more art embodied in it, but there are many who paint just as good a figure and a much better background. The tendency of art for several centuries was painting Saints, Madonnas and Holy Families. Each artist went through the set of subjects painted at that period, and it lists the artists that followed did the same thing. We have such artists as Leonardo da Vinci, Michael Angelo, Titian, Raphael and others. It was simply a challenge, till a certain degree of perfection was reached. If Leonardo or Raphael had been born five hundred years earlier their works would have been great, but comparatively inferior. With people of today their individuality is maintained.

The lecturer here illustrated the methods in his under the old masters, and compared them with the methods of study pursued by the people in modern Lehi, and Mount Pleasant. He pointed out the great differences in training pursued by W. H. Hyde, F. V. Dumond, Mr. Richardson and Seymour B. Thomas, and by assigning some of their productions explained how they, though taught by the same master, followed some diversified directions.

The lecturer related in a pleasing and amusing manner how he was initiated into the mysteries of student life in Paris. He spoke about the examinations, and had about the questions the student had to painting his "masterpiece." He closed by enjoining the modern artist and recommended that all develop a taste for fine criticism and encourage honest endeavor.

Mr. Percy Goddard recited, and Miss Elsie Barrow and Miss Maud Pratt rendered a number of vocal selections, greatly appreciated by the audience.

Mr. Wm. G. Rayliness will deliver the next lecture, which is the last of the course, on Friday evening, April 2d. It is expected that Mr. H. A. Quattlebaum will appear on that occasion.

Farms in Locomotives.

Four locomotives, each weighing ninety-three tons, without counting the tender, which was weighed in two cars, are being built at Schenectady, N. Y., for the Northern Pacific railroad. The mammoth machines are what are known as the engines for compound inside-cylinder locomotives. They are not regular road engines, but are for service as helpers for freight trains on the Rocky Mountains, where they will be coupled on ahead of the trains and not used as pushers. They are provided with eight driving wheels and four truck wheels. The cylinders have the exceptionally great stroke of thirty inches and the boiler is six feet in diameter at its smallest ring. The total length of engine and tender is sixty-two feet one inch.

Dangers of the Grip.

The greatest danger from La Grippe is of its resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for la grippe, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that this remedy is a certain preventive of that dread disease. It will effect a permanent cure in less time than any other treatment. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by Druggists.

From Cripple Creek.

After the big fire in Cripple Creek, I took a very severe cold and tried many remedies without help, the cold only becoming more settled. After using three small bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, both the cough and cold left me, and in this high altitude it takes a medicine of high capacity to do any good.—S. B.
