NEWS OF THE WEST.

How Boyes Opium is Made and Sold in San Francisco.

DYNAMITE-USING DIVER FOUND.

Frank Kruger Drops Dead in San Francisco—Shot by a Chinaman—Footed With a Fiend.

Within the next ninety days the street railway will extend to the Presidio in San Francisco. Two cars will be used in the service, and the men will be employed in the construction.

Mrs. Sylvia Emmons, a young woman who was deserted by her husband a year or thereabouts and left without means, jumped into the bay at San Francisco on Monday, but was taken out before she was drowned.

Y. B. Hirschi, a drummer for the Hardware and Agricultural Implement house of H. K. Mott, Seattle, Wash., was the victim of an accident Saturday. He was riding with a friend when he was thrown, it was discovered, in the wound in his side which only proved fatal.

Saturday afternoon a man about 30 years of age, who gave his name as Frank Kruger, and said he was a native of Germany, entered a San Francisco police station and asked for a place to die alone. He said he had taken a dose of morphine and had drunk a few glasses of whiskey. A few minutes later Kruger fell dead on the floor of the station. He was a stranger in the city.

The body of Peter Pesaro, the man who, two months ago, got seventy-six stabs of opium under the hook of the 'Pi smuggling vessel Lady of Fort Townsend, Wash., and then stood on an immovable rock almost immediately over to where the crash was found floating floating 100 yards from the scene of the explosion. The corpse still wore all the dirty paraphernalia when found.

William Barry, a river, came down from the north a week ago and stayed at the Union House, San Francisco. Saturday, while intoxicated, he wandered out to the neighborhood of the Pioneer Rope-Walk and became involved in a quarrel with a Chinaman, who shot him in the back of the neck. Barry is now in the receiving hospital and is expected to die as the bullet passed through the vertebrae. It ranges downward. The Chinaman escaped.

For some time past the custom officers in San Francisco have had under surveillance a house, in the belief that the proprietors, F. H. Hirst & Co., were in some way connected with the illicit sale of opium. Their suspicions being confirmed in some natural, a raid was planned and successfully executed Saturday afternoon. The result, however, was somewhat of a disappointment to the officers, for although over 100 lbs of a preparation which appeared to be opium were discovered in the basement of the house, the most of an examination proved to be nothing but molasses and flour. Mr. Hirst claimed to be turning out the best brands of opium he was famed, including the regulation stamps, labels and sealing compound used upon the imperial packages of the drug. The operator was arrested on a charge of illicitly manufacturing opium, and with customers, who he admitted to the basement through a grating in the sidewalk of an alley adjoining, showed them a sample of real opium, and covered for spot cash any quantity required of the alleged smuggled goods. He claimed that they had been swindled, and could the authorities interfere with him if deceived, as the compound he turned out was not opium.

Lady Blessington.

"The most gorgeous Lady Blessington," as she was christened by her very old admirer, Dr. Parr, has long since passed into the respectable oblivion for the general world. As an authoress she never succeeded in outlive any mark, though she worked at the business to last to any of her successors of the present day. Her novels were nasty and feebly-drawn. Her life, like their method, was filled with strange and wandering scraps of Fleetit Bloodbird books of beauty for fancy dresses and of fancy prices, and when The News was first started under the editorship of Charles Dickens she was offered an engagement as a purveyor of fashionable intelligence and asked $300 a year for it. She was offered either $400 as a certainty, or $200 for six months on approval, and suddenly chose the latter, with the unobservable result at the end of the term—Dickens having in the meantime retired from his uncongenial work, and John Forster having accepted his post as editor—she was informed that her services no longer wanted.

She fought for her hold long enough in later days, poor lady, after years of "Arabian Nights" luxury with her magnificent husband, but we fear that her position in the literary world was not at any time one of solid security. Pen only one lived under a cloud from the scandal which always connected her name with Count d'Orsay, and, we suppose, not without reason. At all events, they never appear to have taken any steps to defend themselves against the charges of papers like The Age, which anticipated a similar class of journals that crawl up in our own day, and rather suffered judgment by default.—London Spectator.

Objection.

Mr. Waller—Is your sister Alice an Abolitionist?

Willie—Oh!no! she ain't no more for it than all the time stealing me to do what I don't like.—Omaha Bee Journal.

Hard Work.

White—What is the matter with Green? I saw him just now, and he looks pretty hard.

Gray—Yes, poor fellow, he is suffering from overwork.

White—I wouldn't think that he ever did any work.

Gray—That's where you make a mistake. He tore up the track the other day, and he tried to open three different car windows for as many different ladies.—Boston Transcript.

The first paper made in western Europe was manufactured in Spain in 711. It is said that the process came from the east, being brought into Spain by the Moors.

AND OUT GOES THE CLOTHING!

YOU is a little early in the season for such a complaint, but we have cut our hours from the old farmer who said, "The time to kill bugs is when they are fat," and our clothing bargains are surely fat now. The time to advertise when spring rains should almost all be gone, but the weather has blocked things in great style and the only way we have of playing even with the weather is to cut the life out of prices.

We are offering a fine line of all wool spring and summer suitings that sell for $15 and $18.

At $10.95

We defy any other dealer in the city to buy them at the above price, wholesale.

A other lot all-wool and stylish garments made to fit. You never bought a better suit for $12. Our slaughter price—

$9.95.

A third lot all-wool, well made and made to wear. A suit of which the most fastidious would not complain. You can't get a better one for $12 any place else in the city. Our price—

Be sure and see our Show Windows.
