Convicts Buying Freedom.

FILLMORE, May 20, 1878.

Editors Deseret News:

There is considerable being said by those who are not directly interested, about the laxity of Mormon morals, their propensity to commit crimes, and the difficulty met with by the United States officials in meeting out to offenders the just reward of their demerits. A notorious criminal who was sent by the Second District Court to serve a term of ten years in the penitentiary for grand larceny, and who was known to be a desperado and a supposed murderer, has just gone back to his former place of residence in Beaver County, after serving 18 months of his term. He informed certain parties that he had bought his freedom, which cost him $500, and that it is a common occurrence for convicts to buy themselves out of the penitentiary, the price of release varying according to the financial ability of the applicant.

Of course, we don't put much credence in the statement of characters of this sort. And who would suspect for a moment the honesty of imported officials, when everybody knows that according to the statements of their enemies the "Mormons" are the only ones who do any wrong in this Territory. It is not possible that such a money-making business has been and is still carried on to make that institution a self-sustaining concern. It must be a trick of the "Mormons."

When convicts are turned loose it seems but an act of justice that the public should be informed, that by increased vigilance they may protect their lives and property from the depredations of these unscrupulous pests, who make their living off the labors of the honest poor.

Very respectfully, CONSTANT.

Cheering from Cache.

LOGAN, May 20, 1878.

The copious rains which have descended upon Cache Valley within the last few days are doing immense benefit to the young and tender crops. Throughout this entire valley a greater breadth of grain has been sown this season than has been for many years past; grass upon meadow and bench land is excellent. Orchard and garden crops promise fair for an abundant yield. The general impression is that Cache valley will, this season, more than recover her usual prestige for abundant and excellent harvests. In consequence of the depredations of the grasshoppers last season, hundreds of acres necessarily raised no crop, thereby obtaining rest, the benefits of which are already noticeable in the vigorous appearance of crops and grass upon the ranges.

The extension of the U. N. R. R. has added greatly to the commerce of that road. The labor incident to the extension referred to has given employment to many who were unfortunate last season in losing their crops, giving such the necessary means to procure bread and seed for the present season.

The work upon the Logan Temple has begun for the season, although in point of fact the labor in some of the departments pertaining to it has never ceased since its inception, the laying and hauling of rock being more particularly the labor meant in this connection.

The apportionment of labor for Cache Valley Stake of Zion is 81 men and 27 teams; for Bear Lake Stake, 28 men and 6 teams; for Box Elder Stake, 35 men and 12 teams, making a total of 144 men and 45 teams. In this number are included masons, carpenters, quarrymen, tenders, teamsters and lumbermen.

An excellent spirit prevails in reference to building the Temple, and from the complete and thorough arrangements in all the departments of labor pertaining to this great work, coupled with the willingness and alacrity on the part of the people of the Stakes mentioned to aid all in their power, in the prosecution of the work in hand, we may reasonably expect the work will be well forwarded the present season.
