WHY PREST. TAFT GOES TRAVELING

Because He Believes it Will Enable Him to be a Much More Efficient President.

WILL NOT BE A PLEASURE TRIP

It Will Involve Much Hard Work and Much Mental Effort to Think of Things to Say.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 14.—President Taft in addressing a banquet of the Boston chamber of commerce tonight said he was going to take his western trip because he believed it would enable him to be a much more efficient president and make him better acquainted with the needs of that great section. He also outlined some of the matters to be submitted to the next congress.

WHY HE TRAVELS.

"I am on the eve of beginning a journey of 13,000 miles in length," said Mr. Taft, "which will enable me to see tens and hundreds of thousands of my fellow citizens and enable them, I hope, to see me. Occasionally I hear a query why I should start off on such a trip and what particular good does it do to anybody? Well, it certainly is not going to be a pleasure trip, although I shall enjoy it. It will involve much hard work and a great deal of mental effort to think of things to say and to say them simply and clearly, so that they can be understood.

"On the other hand it will certainly give me a very much more accurate impression as to the views of the people in the sections I visit. I will bring closely to me the needs of particular sections so far as national legislation is concerned, and I believe it will make me a wiser man and a better public officer.

"I ought to be able to explain to the people some of the difficulties of government and some of the problems for solution from the standpoint of executive and the legislator as distinguished from that of the honest but irresponsible critics. The personal touch between the people and the men to whom they temporarily delegate power, of course, conduces to a better understanding between them.

"This is the second week in September. We are all ending our vacations and going home. This is the time of year rather than the first of the calendar year, when good resolutions ought to be made—and kept, as far as possible. This is the time when, looking forward to the coming again of the congress in December, one must consider the needs of the country so far as they may be relieved by congressional legislation and attempt to state what that legislation should be.

MONETARY QUESTION.

"Our chairman has made some reference to the number of subjects to which the attention of Congress may be well directed. In the first place, there is the monetary situation. While it is probable that the Vreeland bill would aid in case of another financial crash it is certain that our banking and monetary system is a patched up affair which satisfies nobody and least of all those who are clear headed and have a knowledge of what a financial system should be.

"The matter has been referred by Congress to a monetary commission, which has been studying the financial and banking systems of the great governments of Europe and has embodied and will publish in interesting and attractive form the best accounts of the financial systems of the world.

"It is quite apparent from the statements of Mr. Vreeland, now the head of the committee on banking and currency in the house and from the conventions of Mr. Aldrich, chairman of the monetary commission and of the finance committee of the senate, that the idea of the monetary commission is for some sort of arrangement for a central bank of issue which shall control the reserve and exercise a power to meet and control the casual stringency which from time to time will come in the circulating medium of the country and the world.

"Mr. Aldrich states that there are two indispensable requirements in any plan involving a central bank of issue. The one that the control of the monetary system shall be kept free from Wall street is first, and the other that it shall not be manipulated for political purposes. These are two principles to which we can all subscribe. It is quite possible that the report of a definite decision may be delayed beyond the next Congress. Meantime the members of the commission intend to institute a campaign of education to arouse public opinion to the necessity of a change in our monetary and banking system and to the advantages that will arise from placing some form of control over the money market and the reserve in the hands of an intelligent body of financiers responsible to the government.

"I am told that Mr. Aldrich will 'bring around the circle' this fall and will lecture in many of the cities of the middle west on the defects and needs of our monetary system.

"I cannot too strongly approve of this proposal. Mr. Aldrich, who is the leader of the senate and certainly one of the ablest statesmen in financial matters in either house has been regarded with deep suspicion by many people, especially in the west. If, with his clear-cut ideas and simple but effective style of speaking, he makes apparent to the western people what I believe to be his earnest desire to aid the people and to crown his political career by the preparation and passage of a bill which shall give us a sound and safe monetary and banking system, it would be a long step toward removing the political obstacles in a proper solution of the question.

"I am not going to discuss the merits and demerits of the new tariff bill with you. I shall have often to refer to that before my journey is ended and I must save something for other occasions. Suffice it to say that the passage of the bill has removed a disturbing element in business.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

"Nor shall I dwell at length on the necessity for amendments to the interstate commerce laws, to the anti-trust law and the organization of the department in Washington, with a view to promoting greater efficiency and expedition in the settlement of controversies arising under them. During Mr. Roosevelt's administration we were all struck with the necessity for reform in business methods, for more scrupulous attention to the conduct of business in accordance with the law and for the necessity of amending the law so as to make it clear to corporate managers what they can do and what they cannot do. We are, I believe, on the eve of some great expansion, an era of prosperity indeed it is already here in many branches of business. The wave of prosperity and great profits are likely to dull interest in these reforms and to lead us back again to the old abuses, unless we insist upon legislation which shall clinch those standards by positive law. Nothing revolutionary, nothing disturbing to legitimate business is needed, but we must set the marks clear in the statutes by which the lines can be drawn and the properly legitimate paths be laid down upon which all business shall proceed, and must have it understood by means of prompt prosecution and punishment that the law is for all and is to be enforced even against the most powerful.

"Then, too, the needs in respect to conserving our natural resources, the amendment to the public land system, the execution of the pure food law and other important matters that should demand attention, make the legislative and executive labor of the next three years heavy enough, if our purposes are carried out, to exhaust the energy of the most enthusiastic and hopeful.

SECTIONALISM.

"Still, the world is making progress—our country is making progress. Occasionally one hears a note like that of Gov. Johnson denouncing the east and calling upon the west to organize in a sectional way against the east, because the east is deriving more benefit from the governmental policy than the west, and at the expense of the west.

"It is difficult for one to treat such an appeal seriously. Throughout this country there is free trade of the freest character and on account of this the prosperity of the west, especially the agricultural west, is even more pronounced than that of the east. Moreover, the east is too close to the Pacific coast, too close to the middle west, too close to the Rocky mountains because all the people of these western stretches have eastern ancestry and eastern connections, because they have eastern markets in enhancing the prices which their products bring, to make such an attempt at sectionalism successful.

"It is true that at times public questions will be given a local color by what is thought to be a local benefit, as distinguished from the general and the national benefit. But such attitude is generally temporary, and it takes but a few years of business experience, it takes but a panic or two, to present the most convincing evidence that in this country we are all in the same business boat and that the prosperity of one section adds to the prosperity of the other and that business disaster in one section is only the forerunner of business depression and disaster in another.

"I was born and brought up in the middle west. I have had a New England ancestry and New England associations. Fortune sent me out to the Pacific slope so that I know something of the feelings of the west coast. Jurisdiction as a judge gave me a somewhat intimate knowledge of southern feelings and southern aspirations. I feel, therefore, as if I could speak with confidence in respect to the whole nation and as president of the United States, may well lift up my voice to protest against any effort to arouse section against section and Americans against Americans. Not in the history of the country since the war has the feeling between the north and south been more cordial and friendly than today, and a political attempt to make cleavage between New England and the east on one side and the west on the other will be found to be so utterly hopeless as to confound those who propose it.

TO THE WEST, TO THE WEST.

"And now, as I take my departure for the west I feel that I carry from you to every citizen and inhabitant of the United States whom I shall meet the cordial greetings of New England and the east, your congratulations on the prospective prosperity in the whole country and an earnest wish that the national government shall be conducted in such a way as to insure peace with all the nations of the world and tranquility and prosperity at home, growing out of the conduct of business on lines of commercial integrity and within the law which forbids the organization and maintenance of monopolies and the systematic suppression of competition. Things are not perfect, but we have made progress. We have a right to be optimistic and believe further progress is likely; that conditions are improving and that we may continue to maintain for all sections of the country that equality of opportunity which it is the highest object of a well-conducted government to preserve."

BEGINNING OF HIS TOUR.

The address marked the beginning of Mr. Taft's 13,000-mile tour, which will carry him through two-thirds of the states, and will extend from Boston to Seattle, from St. Louis to New Orleans and El Paso, Texas, back to Washington.

The dinner celebrated the merging of Boston's three leading commercial bodies, the merchants' association, the associated board of trade, and the chamber of commerce into one big organization with 2,000 members.

Distinguished guests from national and state political life, from the judiciary of the nation and state, from army and navy and congressional, and from local church, civic and business circles were present. Among the invited guests were:

Gen. Carlos Garcia Velez, Cuban minister; Secy. Meyer, Secy. Nagel, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States supreme court; Senator Crane, Gov. Draper, Archbishop O'Connell of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Boston; Bishop Willard F. Mallalieau of the Methodist Episcopal church; William Nelson Cromwell, counsel for Panama commission.

HAD NO COLOR OR STRENGTH

Back and Limbs Ached and Breath Was Short.

Condition of a Kansas Woman Before She Was Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The symptoms of general debility vary according to the cause but weakness is always present, a tendency to perspire and fatigue easily, ringing in the ears, sometimes black spots passing before the eyes, weak back, vertigo, wakefulness caused by inability to stop thinking and unrefreshing sleep. The cause of the trouble may be some drain on the system or it may be mental or physical overwork, sometimes insufficient nutrition due to digestive disturbance.

The case of Mrs. Edward Long, of Cunningham, Kansas, which was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is good proof of the value of this blood-building medicine.

"About four years ago," she says, "I was suffering with a general breakdown due to overwork. There was a dull, steady ache in my back. I had hot flashes and at times a high fever. My limbs ached and were swollen. At times the pains were so severe that I would have to take morphine to relieve them. I was so weak that I had to lean against things for support. The least unexpected noise made me extremely nervous. My heart palpitated upon the slightest exertion and I became so sick that I was finally confined to bed and was only a shadow of my former self I had no color or strength.

"I was treated by doctors at Wichita and at last was taken to a hospital. The doctors were undecided as to my trouble at first but finally advised an operation. I would not consent to this and was taken home, where I was in bed for five weeks. A friend advised that I give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial. I was benefited by them almost at once and took the pills until cured. I am in good health now and work every day. My complexion is healthy and I have gained several pounds in weight. Every one says I have completely changed. I shall always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for what they have done for me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be mailed, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

AEROPLANE ENTHUSIASTS.

New York, Sept. 15.—Col. John Jacob Astor, and his son Vincent, who returned from Europe yesterday, have both become aeroplane enthusiasts as a result of their presence at the flying machine contests at Rheims. Col. Astor says that he believes the aeroplanes have a wonderful future, and that as a sport aeroplaning is destined to take a high place in this country.

Vincent Astor, who has been studying in Germany, and who will enter Harvard this fall, plans to devote considerable time to the study of the problem of heavier-than-air flights.

HITCHCOCK STRAIGHTENING OUT POSTAL MATTERS

Washington, Sept. 15.—Already engaged in an overhauling of the registry system of the postal service, Postmaster General Hitchcock has gone a step further and set a number of experts at work to eradicate some of the kinks of the money order system with a view of obtaining greater efficiency and less expenditure.

This committee of experts is to report not later than Dec. 1. It consists of Arthur M. Travers, chief clerk in the office of Third Assistant Postmaster General Frank E. Little; Edwin Sands, assistant superintendent of the division of foreign mails; Henry D. Temple, assistant superintendent of the division of registered mail, and Robert S. Wood, chief of the division of correspondence.

The advisability of dispensing with mail advices to postmasters after a money order has been issued will be one of the economies considered. It is estimated this would save $500,000 a year. The wisdom of reviving the postal note, abolished by Congress in 1894, will also receive attention.

Constipation causes headache, nausea, dizziness, languor, heart palpitation. Drastic physics, gripe, sicken, weaken the bowels and don't cure. Doan's Regulets act gently and cure constipation. 25 cents. Ask your druggist.
