A KENTUCKY OUTLAW'S DEATH.

[illegible]

—[illegible] in New York Herald.

THE PRODIGAL UNCLE.

My family, at the time when this story begins, lived in Havre. They were not rich, and were always hard up. Father worked in an office, and the wages were not the highest.

I had two sisters.

My mother fretted under our poverty, and she often addressed harsh words to my father—perfidious, veiled reproaches. The expression of the poor man's face always distressed me; he passed his hand over it as if to wipe away a perspiration that was not there, and said nothing. I felt his powerless sadness.

My parents economized with everything; they often ate dinners [illegible] to be served; they bought provisions at the lowest prices, and yet even as that they had often to ask for credit.

My sisters made their own dresses, and had long discussions about the price of [illegible] of lace costing fifteen centimes a yard.

I well remember many scenes about lost buttons and torn trousers.

But every Sunday we took a walk to the docks in great style. My father, in a long coat, a high hat and wearing gloves, offered his arm to my mother, who was dressed as gayly as a ship on a holiday. My sisters, always the first to be ready, awaited the signal of departure, but at the last moment a forgotten spot would be discovered on the coat of paterfamilias, and it had to be quickly effaced with a rag dipped in benzine. My father, keeping his hat on his head, waited in his shirt sleeves until the operation was done, while my mother, having adjusted her glasses—she was near-sighted—hurriedly put on her gloves.

Finally we started with great ceremony, my sisters, with linked arms, going before. They had attained a marriageable age, and made quite a respectable appearance in the city.

I walked at the left of my mother, my father at the right. And I remember the pompous air of my poor parents in these Sunday excursions, the rigidity of their features, the severity of their aspect. They advanced with a grave step, as if an affair of the greatest importance depended upon their carriage.

And every Sunday, seeing the great vessels that had returned from unknown and distant countries, my father invariably repeated the same words:

"Ah! if Jules were on one of those, what a surprise it would be!"

My Uncle Jules, my father's brother, was the only hope of the family, after having been its terror.

I did not speak of him, but since my infancy my thoughts were with him, and the first [illegible] act was always present in my mind. I knew all the details of his life up to the day of his departure for America. He had, it appears, misconducted himself—that is to say, he had squandered some money, which is a great crime if it happens in poor families. [illegible]

"August Flower"

Mr. Lorenzo F. Sleeper is very well known to the citizens of Appleton, Me., and neighborhood. He says: "Eight years ago I was taken "sick, and suffered as no one but a "dyspeptic can. I then began tak-"ing August Flower. At that time "I was a great sufferer. Every-"thing I ate distressed me so that I "had to throw it up. Then in a "few moments that horrid distress "would come on and I would have "to eat and suffer "again. I took a "little of your med-"icine, and felt much "better, and after "taking a little more "August Flower my "Dyspepsia disap-"peared, and since that time I "have never had the first sign of it. "I can eat anything without the "least fear of distress. I wish all "that are afflicted with that terrible "disease or the troubles caused by "it would try August Flower, as I "am satisfied there is no medicine "equal to it."

For that Horrid Stomach Feeling.

A Warning

To Horse-Owners.

The Split Nail in this Shoe seriously lamed the horse from which it was recently taken in Worcester, Mass. One point of the nail came out in the proper place for clenching, and so deceived the blacksmith who shod the horse. The other point went in the direction shown in the illustration, piercing the tender part of the foot called the "quick," from which the horse was made unfit for use nearly two weeks.

This is not an isolated case. [illegible] DANGEROUS [illegible]

The Putnam Nail

CANNOT SPLIT, SLIVER OR BREAK.

It is the only Hot-Forged and Hammer-Pointed Horseshoe Nail in the World made by machinery in precisely the same manner as the old fashioned hand-made nail.

The United States Government protects the process of their manufacture through patents, and other firms who make or advertise a Horseshoe Nail as here described, are guilty of infringement and Deceiving the Public.

AS YOU VALUE YOUR HORSE insist on your Blacksmith using the PUTNAM. It is absolutely safe.
