THE SUPPORTERS OF MONARCHY SCREENING UP.

A Few More Scandals, and Edward VIII Will Never be Crowned.

OUTSPOKEN COMMENTS.

The Prince of Wales Does Not Appreciate the After Effects.

LONDON, June 11.—The outspoken newspaper comments upon the part the Prince of Wales played in the baccarat scandal continue to be the sensation of the day in England and elsewhere. A newspaper reporter who was present said the Prince of Wales at Ascot today at the races telegraphed that the prince was in a very silly frame of mind, caused, it would appear, by the strain of extreme excitement under which his sweat and are still sweeping over the heir apparent. The Religious Press, as might be expected of a religious weekly paper, representing all the Protestant denominations, says for instance: "The throne rests upon the foundation of public opinion only. A few more scandals like that of Tranby Croft would destroy the foundation and Edward the Eighth would never be crowned."

The British Weekly remarks: "These revelations are enough to sober up the strongest supporters of monarchy."

A Vienna correspondent of the Times says the baccarat scandal has caused a sensation in army circles on the continent, especially in countries where the Prince of Wales was honorary colonel of special regiments.

The Globe this evening says both the army and navy feel most keenly the stigma which has been placed upon an honorable profession by the agreement entered into between the field marshal and the general to maintain secrecy in regard to gambling and by associating with youngsters, one of them a sailor."

The Dispute Settled.

LONDON, June 11.—A dispatch from Mozambique says the officials of the Portugal and British governments have settled in an amicable manner the question in dispute as to the navigation of the Pungwe river, the waters of which, the Portuguese claimed, were not open to the British.

Drowned During the Overflow of the Red River.

GAINESVILLE, Tex., June 11.—Near Leon, I. T., thirty miles from here, on the Red river, the dead bodies of a man, woman and a little babe were found, they having been drowned during the late overflow.

Wm. Lynn, a farmer, residing thirty miles north of here on Hickory creek, was drowned in that stream yesterday, while trying to feed it.

WIDESPREAD DESTRUCTION.

The rise in the Red river is unprecedented. At Warren's and Sivil's bends, twenty miles northwest of here, the destruction is widespread. In those two bends there were ten thousand acres of corn, cotton and small grain cultivated by about fifty families. All these crops are destroyed, most of the houses are swept away and a large number of cattle, hogs and chickens are drowned. At Yellow Banks ferry, Mr. Burlison was drowned while trying to reach the shore in an old ferry boat.

The Canadian Pacific.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 11.—The Canadian Pacific Railway company has secured terminal facilities in this city from the Oregon Improvement company. It has also secured one of the Oregon Improvement company's steamers, and next week the Canadian Pacific will put on two steamers between this city and Whatcom, connecting at the latter point with the New Westminster Railroad extension of the Canadian Pacific.

THE CROW INDIANS.

Part of the Crow Reservation Divided into Grazing Districts.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The interior department, acting upon recommendation of the Indian office, has adopted a new departure in the management of grazing matters upon the Crow Indian reservation in Montana. The Crow Indians are authorized by an act of Congress of April 11, 1882, to permit cattle grazing upon their reservation, but under previous arrangements much friction between the cattlemen resulted from the indiscriminate patronage on portions of the reservation which have been set apart for grazing, proving a fruitful source of trouble and annoyance not only to the agency management but to the department of Indian affairs. To obviate these difficulties in the future, and to give the Indians the benefit and advantages resulting from a competition between the cattlemen for these grazing privileges, the total unappropriated portions of the reservation have been divided into five grazing districts and proposals for grazing on the same invited by advertisement. The proposals received were opened at the Crow agency to permit agreements, covering each of said districts, executed by Agent Bynum, with highest bidder for each, said permits to be in force for a period of three years from July 1 ensuing. These agreements are now before the department for approval.

It is believed that these arrangements will relieve the department of much annoyance and trouble and be decidedly better for the Indians and better for the cattlemen. It brings the management of the whole business under the control of the department and by the terms of the agreement executed with the cattlemen, the cattle will be removed from the reservation at any time by the department for any violation of the stipulations in the same. The improved holding and herding of the Indians are to be at all times kept secure from interference by the stock company, or employes of cattlemen, and the grazing ranges occupied by cattle belong to the Indians are to be kept undisturbed.

The pecuniary advantage of the Indians is also considerable, as they receive about $3000 more under this new arrangement than under the old system, notwithstanding the fact that very little of the area of about 1,300,000 acres upon the Western portion of the reservation is relinquished to the Government.

Jewelry Stolen.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The fact has just come to light, says a morning paper, that the mammoth establishment of Hilton, Hughes and Denning was robbed last Friday night and $10,000 or more worth of diamonds in the jewelry department were stolen. The fact was kept a secret with the intention of catching the burglars, but so far the police has been unable to do so.

In the note the powers are appealed to by the insurgents to be recognized as belligerents.

The Lloyd Strikers Riotous.

BREMEN, June 11.—A serious riot has occurred here today upon the part of the dockers of the North-German Lloyd Steamship company, who are on a strike.

The police charged the mob with drawn swords and a desperate fight took place before the strikers were subdued. A number of strikers were injured and several arrests made by the police.

Trouble in Africa.

LONDON, June 11.—Dispatches received here from Mozambique announce that great excitement prevails owing to the fact that Chief Gouvera, with 600 followers, have revolted against the Portuguese authorities in favor of British protectorate. Chief Gouvera rules over the territory between Zambesi and Pungwe rivers. The Portuguese authorities are hastily dispatching troops to quell the revolt.

Students of the Servant Problem.

Lucy M. Salmon, professor of history in Vassar college, has devoted much time during the last three or four years to a study of the domestic service problem from a scientific standpoint. The results of her investigations are embodied in a series of four lectures, which she has delivered in Boston and vicinity to very appreciative audiences. In the statistical work, which is remarkably thorough, she had the benefit of suggestions from Hon. Carroll D. Wright, United States commissioner of labor. Probably no two women in the country are doing more to untangle the difficulties in this knotty problem of domestic service than Miss Salmon and Miss Marion Talbot, of Boston, who have made the matter science as an abstract study among the embers at Wellesley college.—Harper's Bazar.

Two Young Women Who Earn $18,000.

Two young ladies in this city are making a great deal of money in a very novel way. They are quite respectable indeed, they move in excellent circles. In their youth their fathers taught them to ride horses, and now they teach the exercise of the same and earn between $10,000 and $15,000 a year apiece. They do not teach individuals (they take classes, and these are generally formed of six persons, who pay more than three dollars each for a course of a dozen lessons. The classes have always been in fashionable schools, and as some school has been, they work hard, for they earn money, and they have not had their social standing. Their fees will be at least equivalent board up to date.—New York Sun.

One of the Flock "Labor Women."

The Knights of Labor have appointed two women editors or local correspondents. Women organizers in the labor movement have always been rare. One who has gained prominence in the United States is Mrs. Leonora Barry. In the position duties of the order of the Knights of Labor her rich voice was familiar to every one who attended its labor meetings. She was employed by a carpet mill for years herself and knew the practical needs of women who toil. A couple of years ago she married Henry Lake, a printer and active motor workman of the Knights of Labor of St. Louis, and has retired from the rostrum.—New York Sun.

A Remarkable Change in Sentiment.

When Dr. Jacobi, then Mary Putnam, sailed from New York to pursue in Paris the study denied to her in the United States, she encountered difficulty and opposition. When Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, the first woman to take a medical degree, begins practice in New York, she could not hire a house in New York, so great was the prejudice against women doctors, and was obliged to buy one before she could hang out her medical shingle. Now there are 4000 women practicing in the world and dealing with mankind.—New York Sun.

Blonde versus Brunette.

A statistical inquiry undertaken by Dr. Beddoe has brought out the curious fact that in England a brunette is far less chance of being wedded to the chances if she is a blonde, and the English women are gradually losing their fairness of skin and hair to darker tints, clearly showing how powerful is selecting the darker haired women for wives. The same thing is happening in Germany, France and Scandinavia, and it would seem that the reign of the fair haired girls is doomed.—Exchange.
