That the legislative committee of the Chicago Federation of Women's Clubs is an effective one is evident, comments a Chicago paper, "judging from the great number of new bills, backed by the federation, which have been passed in their original state, or with slight modifications. This week two bills, for which much lobbying has been done, passed Wednesday; one introduced by Mr. Church, for the purpose of establishing a department of forestry in the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois, and to provide for its maintenance. This bill provides for a professor of forestry who will organize courses of instruction in forestry, address farmers institutes and public meetings throughout the state, and discuss practical problems in forest management and tree planting, and to plan means to protect, preserve, and restore the forests. Mrs. J. H. Bown of Morgan Park, chairman of the forestry committee, spent some weeks in Springfield lobbying for the bill, and secured the services of many eminent authorities on forestry to speak before the committee, among whom were Prof. E. E. Bogie, professor of forestry at the Michigan Agricultural college.

"Another bill, providing for the drastic punishment of crimes against children, was also passed Wednesday, and has gone to the governor for signature. When it is signed it will become a law and go into effect July 1. The measure was sent by the Society for the Prevention of Crimes Against Children, and had the support of Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs."

Boston is to have a new clubhouse for the sole use of women. The College Women's club has purchased a handsome house on Commonwealth avenue, and is refitting it throughout for a clubhouse. There will be sleeping rooms for out-of-town members, a cafe, and other features possessed by men's clubs. The College club has some 400 members, among whom are many of the most prominent women in Massachusetts. Miss Alice Brown is president of the club.

A very important movement has recently been set on foot, mainly through the instrumentality of the Women's Trades Union League, which has for its object an investigation by the United States Bureau of Labor of women and children in industry, with special reference to the economic effect of their labor and the reactionary effect of the change in conditions upon the home and domestic life of the country. Miss Jane Adams, Miss Mary E. McDowell of the University of Chicago Settlement, and Miss Lillian L. Wald of the Nurses' Settlement, recently visited Washington for the purpose of consulting President Roosevelt and others in the matter. It was learned that the department of labor was willing and anxious to undertake the work, but that there were no funds available for the work, nor was it possible for the department to ask Congress for an appropriation. It was agreed that the only way to secure such an investigation was through pressure brought to bear on Congress by organizations of women. The industrial committee of the General Federation has been asked to make an appeal to clubwomen in behalf of the movement, and has sent out a circular letter to all clubs having an industrial committee, directing them how to go to work. The chairman of each committee has been asked to write a letter to the senators from her state or the representatives in her district, asking them to support the movement. The letter should be signed by every member of the club. There has been no official investigation of women in industry for 10 years, and the results gathered at that time are valueless today.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

How many know how to steam velvet which has become crushed? Heat a flat iron and stand it up on end, cover it with a cloth which you have dipped in water and wrung out, and while it is steaming, as it will do, draw your velvet over its face with the wrong side down. Afterward brush carefully with a velvet brush.

An original fancy for summer cottages is described in the Scientific American. A broad window or bow facing a flowered lawn was fitted with large panes of glass, which made that side of the room seem almost a part of the lawn and fruit orchard outside. "It is a fancy of mine," writes the owner of the scheme, "to have the cushions of that particular window seat match the flowers in the bed beyond. I have them made like pillowslips, buttoned on, and change them several times during the season. In June, when the tulips are gone, I have June roses, and after the June roses the gay annuals, ending up with chrysanthemums, which last until frost, and with each change I have cushions of the same color."

German Souffle—Boil a cabbage and chop into bits, season well with salt pepper and a little nutmeg. Put a layer of bread crumbs into a dish, and over it a layer of the cabbage; pour over the whole a thick, white sauce made by mixing a cupful of milk with a little flour, a piece of butter and allow it to boil until it thickens. Then add a thick layer of grated cheese, a layer of cabbage, and so on, pouring over the last layer, which should be of the crumbs, a goodly portion of the sauce. Bake 20 minutes in a quick oven.
