CITY CEMETERY CAUSES MUCH TALK

Council Orders an Investigation of Sexton Simmons.

NOT MUCH TO INVESTIGATE.

That is the General Opinion—Will Pay Sergeant Emery Telephone Company's Protest.

Had City Sexton Joseph F. Simmons been guilty of some overt act in office it is doubtful whether it would have occasioned more debate than did his bill of $15.75 for sundries at one night's Council meeting. It was what one member aptly termed the proceeding "a tempest in a teapot."

The trouble began at a meeting of the committee on claims held last Tuesday night. Chairman Wolfe of the cemetery committee showed the bill to Councilman Romney, chairman of the committee on claims, who characterized it as "outrageous." He said he would vote against its allowance. It got into the daily papers and, according to statements made by certain parties, all kinds of rumors were then set flying around, which to justice to the sexton, the majority of the Council now have thought demanded an investigation.

To his bill it appears Mr. Simmons charged the city with car fare to and from the city and county building. It is expected that his visits to the building were for the purpose of having his accounts audited. Other items are charged against the city for labor performed by members of his own family. Some of the expenses incurred dates back to last March and it is contended by a few councilmen that the bills for such items should have been presented earlier.

AN INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

Under the head of "miscellaneous" Councilman Dahl introduced the following resolution:

"Inasmuch as there are rumors in the air and rumors in the public press that the city is being robbed by officials of affairs of the cemetery in a fashion like manner, be it therefore resolved, that the committee on cemetery report to this Council at its next regular meeting the irregular items of them be any of said city sexton."

Romney related the Thursday night incident and said that "rumor, rumor, rumor" he would not have done at but he gives the sexton a second thought, or has he known he was going to be quizzed in the matter of his bill, he seems to have said was the expenditure was peculiar and irregular. He felt satisfied in his own mind it is there was nothing wrong or crooked in the city sexton's department. Now that the matter had been given so much publicity he thought Mr. Simmons was entitled to a vindication and therefore favored the resolution.

Callister was opposed to the resolution. It was not a question for the Council to consider at this time, for the reason that the bill had not been reported on by the proper committee. He had heard of no rumors and for one could see no use in taking notice of what the papers said. The member would soon become grey headed if they did. As a member of the cemetery committee he had never seen or heard of any irregularity in the city sexton's department. Mr. Simmons, as the head of his department, had a right to present his bill of expenses. It was for the Council to say whether or not it should be paid.

Roeche thought a man should be so careful in his private utterances as he was when talking publicly. He would just as soon tell a man to his face what he thought of him as to go behind his back and do it. The sexton's circular had been referred to as "outrageous." This was not denied by the gentleman who made use of the language. It was also the sexton and the public that got investigation to feel.

Lynch thought so, too.

Wolfe said there was no necessity for the resolution. The committee on claims would attend to the matter when it could be gotten together.

Pendleton moved to refer the resolution to the cemetery committee.

Roeche offered the following amendment, which was accepted by Dahl:

"Be that he can be summoned before the public, if said rumors are groundless."

More discussion followed, which caused Patrick to remark that enough had been said on the question and that too much time had been wasted on such an unimportant matter.

Hess thought the bill was irregular when it was first presented, and was still of the same opinion. Wolfe he in Mr. Simmons's position he would demand an investigation.

The resolution carried with Callister, Pendleton and Wolfe voting nay.

THE HOME REBELLION AGAIN.

Mayor Clark called attention to a communication to the Council with reference to the appointment of a substitute for Louis Sargent by S. Emery, who has gone to California for the benefit of his health. Mr. Emery requested that his brother be appointed in his absence, who had agreed to pay him half the salary.

The Mayor thought it unnecessary to appoint a substitute at the present time, offhand.

The Clerk of Mr. Doyle, the lady policeman, are very limited during the winter months, and he has sufficient time and is fully qualified to perform the duties of the position, and was doubting give such books as will fully assure the city against any possible loss of money. The principal duties which must be placed in his hands while acting as such lady sergeant.

The assignment of Mr. Davis to this duty will obviate the necessity of hiring another person, a stranger to service in this position at present.

"It is for the desire of the Council to assist Mr. David S. Emery, during his sickness, I recommend that he be allowed half salary, pending his disability, or during the pleasure of the Council."

The recommendation was adopted, Roeche, Dahl and Pedestrian voting in the negative.

EMERY WILL GET HIS SALARY.

Councilman Hess informed the Council that the cases of O. P. Pratt was on the police pay roll for December, he having performed the duties of said office for the month, but had not been paid. Mr. Hess offered the following resolution:

"Whereas, Mr. Emery was detained from his duties on account of his sickness, and whereas, Mr. Emery was really a member of the police department, and yet he was unable to work on account of his sickness, be it therefore resolved, that the Mayor and recorder were authorized to execute the warrant asked for.

Clark and Pendleton C. H. Dahl of the police court submitted a report of the business transacted before Justice Timoney for the month of December as follows:

Number of cases tried, 191; amount collected in fines and forfeitures, $1,[illegible]; in costs and fees, [illegible]; in licenses and fees, [illegible].

City Engineer Lynch submitted a contract made between the board of public works and D. Ra Pulliam for both immediate repair sidewalks in the business district, and for a well made when he came to work.

Hess resigning, said he was not personally acquainted with Mr. Emery, but he was informed of his being a member of the City Council, to attack a man sick on his back is low.

Callister said Mr. Emery was in good health when he accepted the position of city sergeant and anyone who said otherwise was telling an untruth and doing a lasting injury to a great injustice. He wished to say that if City Hall rebels he thought had told Doherty that Emery was sick when he came to the office station, would work for a month he would be well enough to sign his name to the pay roll. He did not unanimously vote in the chief of police. Had other members been as careful, he would not have had his position as sergeant taken from him. Pratt was appointed to fill the place of Emery, and he was entitled to a vindication and therefore favored the resolution.

Callister was opposed to the resolution. It was not a question for the Council to consider at this time, for the reason that the bill had not been reported on by the proper committee. He had heard of no rumors and for one could see no use in taking notice of what the papers said. The member would soon become grey headed if they did. As a member of the cemetery committee he had never seen or heard of any irregularity in the city sexton's department. Mr. Simmons, as the head of his department, had a right to present his bill of expenses. It was for the Council to say whether or not it should be paid.

Roeche thought a man should be so careful in his private utterances as he was when talking publicly. He would just as soon tell a man to his face what he thought of him as to go behind his back and do it. The sexton's circular had been referred to as "outrageous." This was not denied by the gentleman who made use of the language. It was

Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company, in a communication addressed to City Recorder Hickman, admonished receipt of a copy of the ordinance thereof, and the rates thereunder, and in the city, and said:

"We think the ordinance is not legal, and think that the courts should be asked to pass on the validity of the ordinance. We have no notified our subscribers, and would the further please see of the Council.

Pendleton moved that the communication be received and filed. Carried.

WILL EXPIRATE THE RELEASE.

James Sharp, chairman of the board of regents of the University of Utah, called attention to the fact that the release of all the conditions to the University square, was now expected, as though a resolution of the Council, passed on the 28th of March, 1895, provided for the same. The conditions, on motion of Romney was ratified and the Mayor and recorder were authorized to execute the release asked for.

Clark and Pendleton C. H. Dahl of the police court submitted a report of the business transacted before Justice Timoney for the month of December as follows:

Number of cases tried, 191; amount collected in fines and forfeitures, $[illegible]; in licenses and fees, [illegible].

City Engineer Lynch submitted a contract made between the board of public works and D. Ra Pulliam for both immediate repair sidewalks in the business district, and for a well made when he came to work.

The Alice Hoyt company, by its attorney, T. Ellis Duncan, asked for the transfer of its license to J. E. Butler. On motion of Councilman Morris the request was granted.

Pendleton introduced a resolution providing that the street sprinkling commence on the first day of the present month's work by day labor. An amendment was offered by Hess and Robertson, and the question was referred to the sanitary committee.

Pendleton also introduced a resolution calling upon the city engineer to report at the next meeting the cost to take and the future expense of completing the surveys and reports of on the City Creek and Mill Creek sheds. Carried.

Pedestrians on Center street were entertained last evening with a holiday scene that threatened to develop into a full fledged police court case.

Two holiday reporters on their way home, full of frolic, and other things, conceived the idea of putting a couple of real mean boys through with snowballs. With legitimate ammunition that did not all well on one side of a block one of the boys proceeded to smile the innocent bystander behind the neck with a hard and cold snowball. The John shocked his mean friend and began to dance around in the dazed the show off a sequestering picket fence. His remarks were punctuated with similar missiles until the victim was forced to dodge. Not by his companion proceeded to argue the matter out on terra firma. Words were given flower and soon reminiscences of the Donnybrook fair were recalled. The fun round terminated in the acquaintance dish decidedly in the favor of the first named party. He proceeded to climb back into their seats. At the end of the row the reporters proceeded to return the citadel and seize the off side wagon wheel. At this point a couple of the majority of his seats and lay on with his smile while they carried lustily around the side wagon to rendezvous with the other two. The pedestrians continued strongly and all parties concerned beat a hasty retreat owing mutual exhaustion.

FROM THE CHICAGO SCHOOLS.

(New York Tribune.)

Here are some answers to examination papers collected by a Chicago school teacher.

"A doctrine of evolution begins with the beginning of life and ever higher and higher until it at last regenerated into mother. This process was so slow that neither the mother nor the man knew anything about it."

"A germ is a name applied to a particular particle, tiny animalcular organism which, when demonstrated, causes disease."

"A germ is a tiny insect, sometimes found in disease or organs. It is so very small that it can only be seen by a lifelike one. That is why diseases are contagious. At times it appears like the head of a pin, but it goes floating around in the atmosphere."

"Hydrophobia is a disease that you have the head and will have the body."

"The germ theory of disease is continually floating around in the air and is very dangerous, especially when the atmosphere is unclean."

"A divorcee is a widow without joints." (Dentures?)

CORRESPONDENCE.

Tribute to Henry Hayes as a Master Workman in Boiler-making.

Salt Lake City, Jan. 2, 1899.—On Thursday last I attended the funeral of one of my old friends, Henry Hayes, who was well known as a leader of boilers in this city for a number of years past and the thought came to me of how much influence that man's work has had on the construction of boilers in this city. Conservatively and inflexibly honest in his work, he has made a mark, not only in the shape his own hands but by influence on that of others. The more that I have heard complimentary remarks that this work would be as good as Hayes's, it could not be better.

Compare the status of this kind of work here prior to his advent, when it was considered unnecessary perilous for expending a new boiler to be tight, and for refusing to accept one that was not, with what it has now come to be considered the correct practice. We use a boiler based according to the U. S. government rule, viz.: to pay cent above the working pressure without even a pin hole, whereas, I have often, back two or more men at the point frantically endeavoring to keep up the pressure while the men in the boiler, notwithstanding a plentiful supply of brass and other packing material on the inside.

I remember that to this result, without anything else, Brother Hayes has done a good work for our brotherhood and hope that his mantle may fall on that head, who will continue the work for best, with as much further advancement as they are able to accomplish.

Yours respectfully,

W. J. SILVER.
