AFTER THE BATTLE.

Scene in the Senate Chamber of Last Night's Conflict.

THE BERING SEA BUSINESS.

Sir Julian Pauncefote Is Confident—Representatives Eager to Be Heard.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1.—The administration in the Senate chamber last night felt more on the proceedings today. The minute it grasp the situation owner of the fight. The time and figures to last night, Senator Chandler, Hill and others were early in their arrival. Several vacancies in leader—Gorman, Brown and others—endeared and had to draw without jeopardy the passage of the appropriation bills. On the motion to Senate business was proceeded with the usual severity. The House had provided for an extension until January 15, 1895, of the time within which claims might be made to either house was discussed at length and power.

Regal, chairman of the committee on ways and means, and one of the Democratic members of the Bering Sea commission, offered a resolution concerning the participation of the Bering Sea arbitration. He directed attention to the resolution to the foreign relations committee of the United States's message to the subject during recess. Morgan said he highly was most desirable for the protection of the United States. Turpie (Dem., Ind.) responded to the resolution consideration of the resolution and it was agreed.

THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1.—When the House met today fifty members who signed bills were called upon to answer to the call of the House. Some of the bills were called up by the committee on the subjects of the bills, and were passed without debate.
