Correspondence.

The Work in the South.

HAYWOOD VALLEY, Georgia, April 30th, 1878.

Editors Deseret News:

Spring opened earlier here this year than is common, but for all that the farmers, owing to rain, are behind in their planting. Wheat is beginning to head out, but the rust is striking in and a large crop is not looked for. In the most favorable of seasons wheat only averages seven to eight bushels per acre, corn from 15 to 30 bushels per acre. Cotton varies from 300 to 1,000 lbs. per acre.

Though there is no finer country, in the production of berries, which grow abundantly all over the mountains, yet the people never can any, but subsist year in and year out on corn bread, sorghum, hogs' meat, with now and then wheat bread and a mess of potatoes. Coffee straight, that is without sugar or cream, is now usual drink at table, unless one prefers buttermilk.

Many of the farms are on the sides of the mountains, and the mystery is how anything will grow on account of rocks being so thick. It seems incredible that people can content themselves living on such farms, when the great West, with its thousands of fat acres, can be so easily settled and obtained.

A person travelling among the Southern people realizes that though they have been whipped by the North, yet there is a feeling of enmity exising in their bosoms, which only needs a little breeze to inflame their passions to deeds of carnage and strife.

Brother A. W. Smith and myself have been traveling together several days. At Trion Factory we called on Mr. Allgood, who owns the factory and employs 250 hands, and asked him the privilege of looking through the building. This he refused, asking us at the same time where we were from. We informed him. He then said that he owned the church and all the other buildings in town and he allowed the ministers of all denominations to preach there except "Mormons," for them he had no use.

After all is it not strange that man should be so, if it were otherwise it would not be in accordance with the Scriptures. Christ himself was called a wine-bibber by those who thought they had no need of present revelations. How some men will hug the New Testament to their bosoms, claiming it to be the word of God and that it will lead them into all truth, yet denying the necessity of having the gifts of the Holy Ghosts. Darkness indeed covers the minds of the people. When light and life come into their midst, yet will they allow themselves to be turned from it and will grasp with avidity every idle story that is circulated against God's anointed.

Brother R. Rogers has just arrived in this valley from Alabama. Brothers Williams and Johnson are going to labor in Alatama. Brother Morgan is well and full of energy and is visiting among the branches of the church. All are well and desirous of spreading truth. That we may be able to do the same we ask for the prayers of the Saints.

Yours in the gospel.

Cure for Throat Disease.

FILLMORE CITY, May 7, 1878.

Editors Deseret News:

Dear Sirs—Having had considerable experience in cases of diphtheria or putrid sore throat, and noticing the numerous deaths caused by this fatal disease, I forward you the following receipt, which please insert in the columns of your paper.

When there appears swelling at the roots of the ear and glands of the throat, attended with pain in the head, and chilly sensations, make a poultice with the leaves of wild sage, boiled in water and thickened with bran, place in a thin cloth and apply to the throat. The poultice should be long enough to reach to the top of both ears, and about four inches wide and one inch thick. Change every twenty-five minutes, having another poultice in readiness, being careful lest the air should strike the throat, five or six applications will be sufficient, after removing the poultice scrape some salt pork, sprinkled with mustard or ginger, apply to the throat, keeping the ears and throat warm. This will draw the disease out, and prevent its going to the vitals. Next prepare a gargle, a half pint of strong vinegar and a handful of garden sage steeped together and strained, to this add ½ oz. alum, ½ oz. borax, ½ teaspoonful cayenne, sweeten almost to a syrup with sugar, gargle this every two or three hours, or oftener if necessary. For a child, use ginger instead of cayenne. One dose of pills or rhubarb to cleanse the stomach. Kerosene oil, camphor, hartshorn and turpentine, should never be applied outwardly to the throat, as these will drive the disease to the lungs and heart, and still these driving medicines are recommended by many of our skilled physicians, and this is the cause of so many dying of this disease. If ulcers form back of the palate, which will be known by the palate coming down on the tongue, take equal quantities of borax, alum, and sugar, pulverized, snuff through the nostrils every hour; this will remove the ulcers. If the patient has a cold on the lungs, and this disease at the same time, give inwardly from ten to twelve drops of turpentine in warm water and sugar. Mix turpentine and oil in equal quantities, put under the armpits on the breast and between the shoulders, to drive the disease from the lungs, the above receipt, if taken in time, has never been known to fail.

LUCINDA H. DAME.

SHORT AND SHARP.

A Texan bride, after the conclusion of the marriage ceremony, gracefully stepped forward and requested the clergyman to give out the hymn:

This is the way I long have sought
And mourned because I found it not.

"What would you call a model Sunday school?" asked the superintendent of a mal-content pupil, who had threatened to leave. "Well, one where they pass around apple pie every Sunday, and don't have no lessons to learn. That's the hair pin of a Sunday school for me!"

The late Bishop of Winchester, Dr. Samuel Wilberforce, commonly called "Soapy Sam," could say a smart thing now and then. He was travelling by rail one day, when a lady, verging on the sixties, asked him how it happened that the Psalmist, in the following verse: "Young men and maidens, old men and children, praise the name of the Lord," neglected to mention ladies of her particular age. "Oh my dear lady," said the bishop, "if you will read a little further you will find it says 'All ye dragons and evil spirits praise his holy name.'"

"My brethren," said Swift, in a sermon, "there are three sorts of pride—of birth, of riches and of talents. I shall not now speak of the latter, none of you being liable to that abominable vice."

Said a Genesee restaurant man this morning: "When a customer calls for a five cent plate of soup and pockets ten cents worth of tooth picks, I am satisfied that Carl Schurz can't make it too hot for the timber thieves."

It may be observed that the young lady who wears a massive gold ring upon her first finger is more troubled about the set of her color than she whose hands are unadorned save by the marks of the needle.

Dentist, to old lady about purchasing some false teeth: "For mastification, my dear madam, they can only be surpassed by nature herself." Old lady: "O, laws, doctor! I don't care nothing about the mastification if I can only chaw with 'em."

A witty young lady was once remarked to by a gentleman friend of her acquaintance that "she thought he must have been born with a silver spoon in his mouth." She looked at him carefully and upon realizing the size of his mouth, replied: "I don't doubt it; but it must have been a soup ladle."

"You need not be afraid ob giving too much," the old darkey said. "If any ob you know ob any church wot died ob liberality, jest tell me what it is, an' I will make a pilgrimage to it, an' by de soft light ob de pale moon I will crawl upon its moss-covered roof, an' write upon the topmost shingle, 'blessed am de dead who die in de Lord.'"

It has just leaked out that in the northern part of the state the girls have been boiling the clippings of their toe nails in coffee, and giving it to the young men, with the hope of winning their affections, and now toe nails are very scarce in that community, and you can't get a young man within half a mile of a cup of coffee.—Ohio State Journal.

A policeman heard this joke perpetrated last winter, but it never dawned upon his mind to tell it until to-day. "I'm traveling the Jericho road," mournfully said an old bummer at the police court. "Yes," feelingly said Recorder Taylor, "the Tom and Jerry Co. road," and the man could have made a respectable start in the ice business, if he had picked up the frozen tears which fell from the spectators' eyes.—Keokuk Constitution.

When a lover leaves the house of his adored one at a late hour in the evening, and walks musingly homeward beneath the twinkling stars, his fond fancy pictures her, clothed in white samite, resting sweetly upon her pillow, with her unbound hair tossed about her sleeping face, and angels bending over her couch, whispering heavenly dreams. Perhaps at that very moment, though, she is in the pantry, gnawing hungrily upon a ham bone.

The other day such a beautiful young lady, eyes like midnight, hair like the raven's wing, brow like alabaster, lips like coral, purse like an overland mail pouch, went into a Jefferson street dry goods store and asked to see some corn-colored silk. The youngest clerk limped painfully behind the counter and handed her down a piece of scarlet. "I said corn-colored," she murmured. The young salesman hesitated and fidgeted. "Well, by dad," he exclaimed, "that's the prevailing color of my corns." And by the time the proprietor could hurry over to see what was the matter, she was out of the door and half a block away.
