THE EVENING NEWS.

Thursday, - - June 13, 1872.

A LIVE AGENT.

The following rich story is related by a Sonora paper at the expense of a queer genius who vibrated between the town of Oregon, as "advance" agent of a concert troupe, and who, though pretty clever in "selling" the curiously inclined, does not always come off first best.

Frank Ball, traveling in a vehicle bearing a strong resemblance to a peddler's cart. Old lady rushes out from a house by the road-side. The following colloquy ensues:

Old Lady—"Say, what have you got to sell?"

Ball — "I am a traveling agent, madam, for the greatest menagerie of ancient or modern times, which is shortly to be exhibited in this section, affording to the inhabitants thereof an opportunity of viewing the most stupendous collection of animals ever before exhibited."

Old Lady — "You don't say. Have you any elephants?"

Ball — "We have, madam, six elephants; but these constitute a comparatively unimportant part of the show. We have living specimens of bipeds and quadrupeds, who roamed over the earth, not only in the antediluvian, but also in pliocene and postmiocene periods, embracing the megatherium, with six legs and two tails; the ichthyosaurus, with four eyes and three tails; the gyasticus, with no eyes, two noses and four tails; the plesiosaurus, resembling Satan in shape, which spits fire and breathes sulphur, and many other species, too numerous to mention. We have also a pious lawyer."

Old Lady—"Well, I declare!"

Ball — "But, madame, the greatest curiosity by far of our exhibition, is a learned and classical educated monkey, who was brought up by a Mohammedan priest in the mysterious regions of the Great Desert of Sahara. This monkey talks with fluency all the modern languages, besides Latin, Greek and Hebrew. He can repeat the ten commandments, the emancipation proclamation, President Lincoln's last message, and performs the most intricate examples in mathematics with rapidity, ease and accuracy. While being exhibited in Washington he actually repeated a long speech of the president's. This monkey corresponds—

Beautiful young lady suddenly sticks her head from the window and calls out:—

"Mother! mother! ask him why they let the monkey travel so far ahead of the other animals!"

The Landlady of "Brig o' Turk Inn."

Mrs Ferguson, landlady of the "Brig o' Turk Inn," Scotland, and well and faborably known to all tourists in the land of Wallace, Burns and Scott, has died at her wayside residence, in the seventy-fifth year of her age. She had been often ailing for some years, and had been attended by Dr. McNab, of Callander, for several weeks, on account of an increase of unfavorable symptoms. No immediate danger was, however, apprehended, and her death was quite unexpected. Mrs. Ferguson was a well-known public character in Britain, and it is no exaggeration to say that the tidings of her decease will be read with sympathy in both hemispheres. For fully thirty-five years she was the lessee of the Dunchraggin or "Brig o' Turk" Inn, and by her long residence, her stout professional appearance, and most of all by her remarkable force of character, her fame was spread far and wide. Her father, Mr. Daniel Stewart, was a respectable farmer in Lendrick, and Mrs. Ferguson, during her long and active life, was hardly over a couple of miles distant from the place of her birth. Her inn was a favorite resort of anglers, pedestrians and other habitues of the romantic region of the Trosachs; and her frank, kindly disposition and attention to the comforts of her guests gave to her hostelry very much the character of a home. She was a woman of very generous nature, and notwithstanding certain peculiarities of character, such as Scott described in his "Meg Dods," was much and deservedly respected throughout the district. When Queen Victoria was residing for a time at Invertroseach she presented Mrs. Ferguson with her portrait, and a couple of bright sovereigns, the latter of which the good lady perforated and hung upon her bosom for ornaments. Mrs. Ferguson was never blessed with children, and had been long a widow. Her woman's wit and selfpossession enabled her to conduct her business in a secluded spot with as much security as if she had been in the midst of a populous city. On one occasion she admitted that she had been rather annoyed with a party of "navvies," who had knocked her up out of bed at an untimeous hour, demanding whisky. But she said she "just ca'ed them 'air,' ane an' a', an' they went away as quiet as lambs." Mrs. Ferguson's inn was on the property of the Earl of Moray, who had a great regard for her.—Ex.

HORACE GREELEY hits the nail on the head when he says:

"It is strange how closely men read the papers. We never say anything that anybody don't like but we soon hear of it, and everybody is telling us about it. If, however, once in a while, we happen to say a good thing, we never hear of that—nobody seems to notice that. We may pay a man a hundred compliments, and give him a dozen puffs, and he takes it as a tribute to his greatness and never thinks of it—never thinks it does him any good. But if we should say anything this man don't like, or something that he considers is a reflection on him or his character, see how quickly he flares up and gets mad about it. All of our evils are duly charged to us, but we never apparently get any credit for what good we do."

IT WOULD sometimes seem as if motherhood were a lovely artifice of the great Father, to wean the heart from selfishness by a peaceful and gradual process. The babe is self in another form. It is so interwoven and identified with the mother's life, that she passes by almost insensible gradations from herself to it; and day by day the instinctive love of self wanes as the child love waxes, filling the heart with a thousand new springs of tenderness.—Harriet Beecher Stowe.
