(No. 10,071.) August 20, 1895.

SALARIES STILL UNFIXED.

A Deadlock in the County Court. McNally and Christopherson Stand Pat.

The county court met yesterday afternoon but did a small amount of business. The sheriff's salary has not yet been fixed and the chances are that it will not so until a different state of affairs exist in the court. While the court was under the control of Mr. W. S. Wills and Mr. Christopherson it was a stalemate and a bulgarian. He said he considered that some action should be taken immediately and predicted that a refusal to fix the salary would cause if the sheriff were not given chance to step in and do a little work.

Mr. Christopherson stated that the sheriff's salary be fixed at $7,200 a year. Receiving no second it was lost.

County Clerk Stenton flatly informed the court that unless no was paid for services as clerk in issuance warrants he would make no further records of them nor attend to the other work connected with them.

The North Point Irrigation company, through J. W. Taylor, urged the court to construct a drainage canal to carry away the waste water of the Whole lake. At present the water stands into the North Point canal, and in consequence the Water carrying a great amount of mineral matter is deposited in the land irrigated by the canal water.

The clerk's report of county funds deposited was received in Christopherson, and his return of sale of real estate confirmed.

A free license for three months was granted to John Johnson.

A requisition of the governor was granted.

Petitions of Willie and Abraham Powell, for $5,000 each, as compensation for injuries received in crossing a defective bridge, were referred to the attorney.

Adjournment was taken until Monday, Aug. 26.

AMUSEMENTS.

Charles Hoyt has written and produced a number of successful comedies in his ten years' career as a playwright, but none of his former efforts ever met with such a pronounced, emphatic and immediate endorsement as has his newest composition, A Black Sheep. The piece is built entirely on farcical lines, replete with catchy music, elaborate scenery, gorgeous scenery, and the strongest possible cast, including a host of pretty girls.

A Black Sheep has just completed a run of twelve weeks at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, where it was played to the largest receipts in the history of the house, breaking all records.

The piece comes to the Theater next Friday and Saturday evenings with the identical Chicago cast, and all produced under the personal direction of Mr. Hoyt. The indications are that A Black Sheep will be welcomed by a large and discriminating audience.

All competitors have been compelled to give way to Dr. Price's Baking Powder.

UTAH'S COAL MINE INSPECTOR.

A Graphic Story of Strange Doings on His Part While Sojourning in a Southern County.

The Iron county Record, which reached the News office with this morning's mail, is a double leaded article under the somewhat startling caption "He Has Flown," says:

Thursday afternoon J. B. Rawlings, of Salt Lake, drove into town with a fine team of horses and a two seated carriage. Monday evening he took his departure. There is nothing strange in this, yet in the interval between his arrival and departure Mr. Rawlings occupied no enviable position and our people were furnished with several subjects for interesting gossip. Mr. Rawlings is, or was, (we know nothing positive about his outer proclivities) government inspector of coal mines for the Territory of Utah, and the supposed object of his visit here was to inspect the mines in this vicinity.

Mr. Rawlings, of course, was short on cash, long on checks. On the strength of his high office he prevailed on J. H. McDonald to cash a twenty-five dollar check for him. This is not so uncommon thing to do, in fact, it is frequently done in Cedar—but with result different from the experience gained by Mr. McDonald in this instance. Were being received from the east concerning Mr. Rawlings, Mr. McDonald became fearful that he had been spoofed for a sucker. He telegraphed to the bank on which the check was drawn to know if it was good, and in answer received the surprising information that it was; there were any funds in the bank to meet it when presented.

In the meanwhile, on Saturday, Mr. Rawlings went up to the Gulf mine, accompanied by Joseph Hunter. He went into the mine about two any feet and then came back to the city. Mr. Rawlings, as would have too become of a government official, did not put up at the leading house the Curry House although he did leave his team there. On the outskirts of town there was camped a traveling outfit bound for California. Mr. Rawlings found them and had them and gave into their keeping $18 out of the $25 he had received from McDonald.

With this traveling party there was a pretty little girl, well mannered for average, who had possibly seen twelve or fourteen summers. To this little girl Mr. Rawlings seemed greatly attached. She was always with him, and they walked through the street hand in hand, and to those who made inquiries, Mr. Rawlings stated that he was her father, and he must have been a most affectionate one, for several times he fondly kissed her in public place.

Saturday afternoon the bank was again appealed to, for Mr. McDonald was anxious for his money. The telegram was sent "collect." The bank refused to receive it, and there was a large fallaway round of despondency in the McDonald-Rawlings camp. Sunday morning the pot began to thicken. The California outfit departed early by the way of Iron Springs. Rawlings got his team and started in the same direction, but missed his way and took the road into the north field. Discovering his mistake he returned and then started north on the Parowan road. Just beyond the point he was overtaken by a horseman who advised him that he was wanted in Cedar and that he would save trouble by returning. He returned. The interested parties then repaired to the Curry House, where Mr. Rawlings was informed that the team would be held until all accounts had been settled.

Mr. Rawlings then evinced a strong desire to inspect his visit in the coal mines. He had heard that the coal fields extended back towards the Colorado river for a distance of fifty miles and he wanted to trace them through. For this purpose he wanted a horse, for go he should, and go alone. No go. He was then prevailed upon to write a note to the California travelers for a refunding of the $18 given them. Armed with this and accompanied by Will Perry, McDonald took a horse and overtook the party beyond Iron Springs. The money was given them and they returned.

Still the mining inspector was in "hock," for he owed McDonald $7, besides money advanced for telegraphing. And so matters stood until Monday afternoon about 2 o'clock, when a telegram came from the bank stating that it would honor a check for $25 if presented with the telegraph message attached. This dispelled the cloud. McDonald returned the $18, less the $7 still due and the money advanced for telegraphing, to Rawlings, who at once paid his livery and hotel bill, and departed without saying good by to his admiring Cedar friends. Whether he went north or followed in the wake of his traveling friends, is not known at this writing; but we are satisfied that we shall all be pleased to read his exhaustive and correct report in the government on the coal mines of Cedar City.

Around the world go the praises of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

Mr. De Ricqles Improving.

Mr. A. E. De Ricqles, who represents Clay, Robinson & Co., and who on July 26th was operated on by Drs. Pinkerton and Meacham for appendicitis, is making a wonderful rapid recovery, when it is considered that for several days all hopes of saving his life were almost given up. He will, it is now confidently expected, get out of St. Mary's hospital, where the operation was performed, about the 1st of September.
