THE ANVIL OF 1406.

The Mormon Owner Died in Logan, Cache County.

Information Regarding Lemuel Mallory, From Whom the Relic Was Obtained.

TUCSON, Arizona, Dec. 18, 1895.

To the Editor:

In your semi-weekly issue of Dec. 10, 1895, I notice an article, "A Mormon Relic," and a letter of a Mr. Thatcher in reference to it and to its Mormon owner, who sold the relic (an anvil made in 1406), whose name is said to be Mallory. I think that without any doubt the Mallory referred to was Lemuel Mallory, who settled in Logan, Cache county, Utah, in 1859 or 1860, when that place was first settled. Brother Mallory had two wives and a son Elisha, a man probably about 30 years of age at the time referred to, who went to California and remained there, as I suppose, for he never came back to Utah. Lemuel Mallory died in Logan a year or two ago at an advanced age, being over 80 years old. I think he had another son who went to the Bear Lake country many years ago. If this meager information is of any value it is at your service. Brother Mallory was a High Priest, lived a common Latter-day Saint, and died in full faith and fellowship.

SANTIAGO.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 17, 1895.

To the Editor:

A few days ago my attention was directed to an article in the EVENING NEWS of the 6th inst., headed "A Mormon Relic," in which was described an anvil of antiquated manufacture, as shown by the figures on it, and anvil having been left with one Mr. Phillips, near Keosauqua, Iowa, by a Mormon named Mallory (first name forgotten) while emigrating westward on the occasion of the exodus of the Latter-day Saints from the city of Nauvoo, Illinois, the relic now being in the possession of one Mr. A. H. Thatcher, of Rock Bill, Bates Co., Mo., who in said article expresses a desire for any one who is in possession of any information relative to the history of the relic, to give the same.

I am not prepared myself to give the desired information, but can refer to several of the oldest living members of the family if that will aid any in obtaining it. Whether they can give any of the desired information may be ascertained by correspondence of application otherwise.

From what is presented in the article referred to relative to the man Mallory and his family relations, I feel satisfied beyond a doubt that I was acquainted with him, not only in Nauvoo, but also after his arrival in this country. His first name was Lemuel. He came to Utah in 1850, his son Elisha coming at the same time.

After making several changes of place of residence during the first ten years of his life in Utah, he finally settled in Logan, Cache county, where he remained until his death, which occurred about three years ago, leaving a wife and several children, his wives he had when he came here having been dead many years.

His son Elisha remained here until 1861 or 1862, and then emigrated to California and located at a place called Bishop Creek, Inyo county, where he died several years ago. His widow, Mrs. Mary Mallory, is still residing there.

There is a daughter of the old gentleman's named Elisa Jane, who married a man named Jesse Akin, from whom she parted a few years ago. She lives at Winnemucca, Nevada. She was about 12 years old at the time they come west and may remember and be able to give some information desired.

There is a brother younger than her, out of his present whereabouts I have no knowledge.

Elisha was not married until after the anvil was disposed of, so if his widow knows anything about it she learned it from the members of the family.

I think Elisa Jane still bears the name of her husband and a communication addressed in that name I think would reach her.

The foregoing references are all that I am now able to give, and if there is anything in them that will be of service you are welcome to use them. With sincere regards I remain,

Yours,
H. F. CUMMINGS.

Three Hundred Warrants.

The clerks of the board of education were kept busy today preparing for tomorrow's pay roll. In all more than 300 warrants were issued; the greatest number following any single meeting during the year.

Lloyd Qualified.

B. T. Lloyd, who at the last meeting of the City Council was appointed to succeed the late J. M. Watson as councilman from the Third precinct, came in from Mercur last night. Today he went before Recorder Bannman, took the oath of office, filed his bond and prepared to enter upon his duties as a public servant.

Cold Snap Coming.

Observer Smith, of the Utah Weather Bureau, issued the following bulletin at noon today:

"For thirty-six hours, ending 8 p.m., December 21st. For Utah—Rain, changing to snow, clearing Saturday; cold wave; temperature will fall twenty degrees or more by Sunday morning, commencing tonight."

Bad Man from the Park.

Mrs. Hicks, the proprietress of a lodging house at 59 east Second South street walked into the police court this morning, and addressing herself to Clerk James, notified that official of her desire to swear out a warrant for the arrest of Emil Johnson. Said she, "Johnson came in from Park City yesterday and after getting heavily drunk, he came to my house to see a Mr. Wilson who was roaming there. His conduct at my place can be no doubt judged when I tell you that he inflicted a great damage to my furniture, carpets, etc., and I want to make him pay for it if I can."

"Madam," said the clerk, "I dare say you know that we can do anything here for you. Of course," he continued, "we can have him arrested and thrown into jail, but that wouldn't help you out any. I suppose you want to recover damages, and if so, the better way to do it is now. If you can make an amicable settlement with the aggrieved, and then, if not, sue him for damages."

Mrs. Hicks wasn't anxious to see the man thrown into jail, but she felt determined to get redress for the damage done, so she went off in search of Mr. Johnson to see if she could get a settlement with him. If not, he will likely be made defendant in a damage suit.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Louis James, after three years of profitable association with Mr. Frederick Warde, has resumed his individual starring course, presenting an attractive repertory of classic and standard plays, surrounded by a strong company, and adequate accessories. His repertory includes Othello, Virginius, Macbeth, the Merchant of Venice, Hamlet and The Robbers. He has also a novelty in Percy Sage's tragedy Marmion, adapted from Sir Walter Scott's poem, especially for Mr. James. Messrs. Wagenhals and Kemper, Mr. James's managers, have given him a strong company and a fine equipment of scenery and costumes.

Mr. James will be seen at the Salt Lake Theater Christmas matinee and night, presenting Virginius and Macbeth, Thursday night Marmion, and Friday night Hamlet.

AT THE GRAND.

There was another large and delighted audience at the Grand last night, where Lynwood is being presented.

AT THE LYCEUM.

The attendance at the Lyceum is all that can be expected this time of the year. The new company is steadily gaining in favor.

Mr. Wagenhals, manager of the Louis James company, attended the performance at the Lyceum last night. He leaves today or tomorrow for San Francisco.

Permitted to Marry.

Clerk Stanton issued marriage licenses today to James Martello, aged 40, and Annie McGuirk, aged 29, both of this city; to Wallace G. Casper, aged 22, of Mill Creek, and Adeline G. Burgon, aged 20, Salt Lake.

Bikuben.

Bikuben's Christmas number is just out. It is a creditable number full of interesting reading suitable for the season. Bikuben is a Danish paper published in this city and widely circulated among the Scandinavian population in Utah and elsewhere. Its numerous readers are sure to appreciate the Christmas number.

TERRITORIAL ITEMS.

American Fork Item: We are pained to be called upon to record a case of diphtheria in our midst in the person of Miss Cady Dunkley, who was to have been married on Wednesday to Mr. Fred Hertzog. The lady took down on Sunday last and on Tuesday Dr. Allen, of Provo, was summoned. He at once pronounced the case diphtheria, and accordingly locked two yellow flags. At last report the lady is doing better. The wedding reception was postponed till a future date.....James Chipman, in whose hands lies the Creamery company, some time ago, has disposed of the plant to the Kaysville Creamery Co., who will carry on the business. More machinery will be added, to make it one of the best equipped plants in Utah. The new proprietors have taken hold.

Reports of new gold finds continue to come in from Mercur.

A mass meeting of citizens of Ephraim, Sanpete county, was held at the Central school house Thursday evening to arrange for the proper celebration of the day on which Utah is admitted into the Union.

Lehi Banner: The sugar company paid out on the 10th and 11th $50,000; $14,000 for wages and $36,000 for beets. The company has a large number of teams hauling gravel from the beach above town to the factory to put in the cattle corrals and it has quite a number of teams working on the reservoir.

SUGAR BEETS AS STOCK FOOD.

THE SUGAR BEET INDUSTRY LIABLE TO STIMULATE CATTLE FEEDING IN NEBRASKA.

Aside from its undoubted value to agriculture of the state in the diversification of crops the raising of sugar beets promises to develop the industries of the state in several other directions. Mr. R. M. Allen, of the Hanscard Cattle company, at Ames, in speaking of the advantages of sugar beets in feeding operations, says:

This year we are feeding to cattle the product of 150 acres, partly of forage beets and partly of distillery beets or low grade sugar beets, analyzing about 10 per cent of sugar, and some regular sugar beets, supposed to be of a higher quality.

We are now feeding about ninety tons a day of beets of all kinds, which are pulled whole out of the ground and tossed into the boxes with the corn fodder. We have cut and put into stack the entire crop of 1,800 acres of corn, and this is carried from the field directly to cutting and shredding machinery and then directly to the feed lots, where, as I say, the beets and corn fodder, including the grain, are fed to the same steers. The actual cost of feeding our cattle in this way we figure at about $2 per month for each animal, and we believe it to be about as good a method of feeding as any until the weather gets too cold.

We shall begin at once to feed ground feed, so that the cattle will be transferred to the dry feed when we can no longer feed beets. This method of feeding we believe to be effective and really economical.

Another point of interest is that the high to all of our feed lots eat with great relish large quantities of beets which are pulled out of the box by the cattle, and the thrifty condition of the lots, indicating best of health, causes me believe that the beets are a most excellent thing for hogs in the warm, malarial days of our Indian summer, when hog cholera is usually most virulent.

I believe that the practice of growing roots, involving the rotation of land, even if beets are only used to feed cattle, will prove to be a most valuable acquisition to the agriculture of the state, and that it will greatly assist in the production of beef and pork at a cost that will enable us to withstand very powerful competition.

As to the value per ton of sugar beets as a cattle food, it is not easy to tell just what this should be. Our cattle on beet all kinds are costing this year about $1 per ton, the yield being high. The cost of any such commodity must vary greatly, because the yield and the cost per acre to different individuals will always vary greatly. — Omaha Stockman.

This town is situated at the head of the bay known as Port Lazaroff, upon which the Russians are believed to have cast envious eyes for some years, as it would form an ideal side terminus for the Trans-Siberian railway. Further inquiries are directed as to Russians surveying in the neighborhood of Port Lazaroff. According to the Yokohama China, a letter from a Japanese at Gensan has been received which states positively that five Russians are engaged in the survey of the country in the neighborhood of Port Lazaroff.

The Egypt Mine Disaster.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 20.—An Associated Press correspondent has just returned from Gamsonia, the scene of the terrible explosion in the Egypt coal mines. The work of rescue began late yesterday afternoon. Twenty-four bodies were brought up by the rescuers this morning. Eight bodies are lying at the foot of the shaft. Two more bodies almost buried are now being dug out.

The report as to the amount of dynamite in the mine conflict. Some miners say there were five cases of 250 pounds, while the superintendent thinks there were only five pounds of explosives there. The theory generally held is that the first explosion was of coal gas, then the dynamite exploded and after this came the stifling "after damp," that suffocated all who remained alive.
