THE SPRINGVILLE POISON CASE.

An Awful Attempt of a Boy to Administer Strychnine to a Number of People.

In the case of young Oakley, of Springville, telegraphed on Saturday's NEWS, an error was made in the report brought over from Springville. The boy was bound over to await the action of the district court (and not the grand jury as stated in the telegram) Justice Boyer ordered him to be taken before the district court for the purpose of having him committed to the reform school. There was also a typographical error in stating the amount of the bond, which was $500.

Marshal George A. Ivie brought the boy over Saturday afternoon and he is now in the county jail. It is certainly a wonder that someone was not poisoned. Mr. Moore says that when he came in the office Oakley remarked to him: "Hey, George, that stuff I put in your tea and something in the water, do eat; I took a drink of it and it's made me sick." Mr. Moore replied he thought the water was alright; but he did not taste it, and fortunately none of it was thrown out and some of it drank. A bottle containing a small amount of liquor in the office was positively taken hold of by a visitor, who remarked he would take a drink, but put the bottle down without doing so. Mr. Scott found that young Oakley had an simply strychnine vial in jail with him, and at first thought the boy had poisoned himself; but when he found the bottle had been taken from the office and that young Oakley was not poisoned, he remembered the remark about the water being bad, and was a test made of a small quantity remaining in the bucket, which was found to contain strychnine; the liquor in the bottle was also poisoned, and some bread, left in the cell where tramps are usually given lodging, had strychnine sentences over it.

Young Oakley admits that he is guilty. At first he said that he was angry that he did not know what he was doing. Afterwards he said that he did it for "fun," and came to treat the whole affair as a trivial matter.

The Grand Jury System.

The Bar association of the First judicial district met Saturday evening; there was a good attendance and several delegates elected to the Constitutional Convention were present. President Moyle presided.

Judge W. N. Dunsbierry, who had been appointed to prepare a paper on the grand and petit jury systems, presented a dissertation on the grand jury system, which he denominated an ancient fossil and venerable humbug.

Following the reading of Judge Dunsberry's paper the resolution presented by D. O. Hoyt at the last meeting, and published in last Monday's NEWS, was discussed, or at least that portion of it relating to the manner of selecting and the tenure of office of the Supreme court justices.

Mr. Hoyt spoke in favor of the resolution, which provides for the election, by the people, of three justices of the Supreme Court whose term of office is to be six years, one justice to be retired every two years. He was in favor of election by the people for the reason, among others, that competent men would be selected, which was less certain if they were appointed by the governor, where he thought favoritism might influence the appointment. He also argued that a short term of office would be more conducive to a proper discharge of duties than if the justices were elected or appointed for life or during good behavior.

S. R. Thurman opposed Mr. Hoyt's position, although he stated that he would not wish to be bound by his arguments at this meeting if he saw fit to change his views. In the Convention he had now he [illegible] the governor with the advice and consent of the senate would [illegible] men better qualified for the important position of chief justice than would be the people. He was also in favor of at least a ten years' term of office for the reason that it was unjust considering that the new State could afford to pay as large salary as a man qualified for the position could earn in his profession, to ask a man to leave his profession for so short a term as six years, and then retire him, when he would find the practice, which he had previously conducted, in other hands. As a matter of justice the tenure of office should be during good behavior. In that case, however, he would be in favor of a justice being subject to removal by a two-thirds vote of the house of representatives, without any cause for removal being assigned, should the house so decree.

Several speakers advanced their views upon the subject and a number of diverse opinions were expressed. The suggestion of having the supreme court consist of judges of the district court, as now, was advocated on economic grounds. And, if the office is made elective, the advantage of having the qualifications of candidate made by attorneys, on account of their superior judgment as to the qualifications required in a judge, was suggested.

The gentlemen who took part in the discussion were D. O. Hoyt, S. R. Thurman, J. R. Moyle, W. N. Dunsberry, Chas. D. Ridley, E. A. Wedgewood, Wm. Creer, R. A. King and J. D. Jones, and the views and speeches advanced were interesting and instructive.

Further discussion of the judiciary system will be the order of business at the next meeting, Saturday, 2nd Feb.

Priesthood Meeting.

Among other matters discussed at the priesthood meeting held Saturday, was the question of the Brigham Young memorial fund, and President Smoot requested the Bishops to lay the matter before the people in the various wards. Upon motion of Elder V. L. Halliday the Bishops were authorized to receive subscriptions to be forwarded by them to the treasurer, H. B. Wells. President Smoot also urged the Bishops to impress the people with the necessity of liquidating the debt now standing against the Stake Tabernacle, and to make a start in the collection of a Church library for the B. Y. Academy.

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, FEB. 4, 1895.

List of Accidents.

Mrs. Rawlins, an elderly lady of Paradise, was badly hurt while returning home from a ward reunion that she had been held there. She was carrying one of her infant grandchildren in her arms, when she was run down by a team. She was taken from under the horses badly bruised and with her left arm broken in two places between the wrist and elbow, the account of her age her security is now.

A girl named Stellenwafer was brought in from the northwest part of the county on Saturday, a few days from a spree. Her arm was broken.

A small boy named John Leishman, cut a severe gash in his hand on Friday. Had the saw been sharp he lifeblood and thumb would have been amputated.

Notes and Personals.

The audience gathered to see the Passion on Thursday evening was so small that the company decided not to play. Katie Putnam plays here tomorrow night, and as she is well known here, will probably draw a good house.

The committee on agriculture of the chamber of commerce has taken the initiatory steps towards the holding of a "Farmer's Congress" on Saturday, Feb. 16th.

Probate Judge Warren, Attorney Rich and Statesman Hayden viewed the beauties of Logan canyon at a different season than that usually chosen by tourists, during the week. One night was spent in the canyon. On the return trip a wildcat was killed by one of the members of the party.

The jurors for the February term have arrived, and all preliminaries will be arranged today, preparatory to the trial of cases, the first of which is set for tomorrow.

Lack of sufficient business has caused the removal of the uptown express office to the depot. The free express delivery has been discontinued.

At a meeting held by the Stake Presidency at Avon on Wednesday, George Davis was appointed and ordained to Bishop, vice H. W. Jackson, who had removed. On the same day William H. Hill was presented to and sustained as the bishop of the new Meeting ward.

A Bowling farewell benefit party was given under the auspices of the Ninth Ward M. I. association in honor of Oliver, son of Bishop Hendricks, who is on the eve of departure on a mission to Norway, on Friday evening. The ladies of the ward had provided a feast, worthy of the occasion, and the resulting of a pleasing program and dancing occupied the remainder of the evening.

A concert and ball was given by the Professors band on Friday evening, and at Hyrum a temperance drama was played by the local company, the object being to establish a nucleus for a fund to provide a parish school library.

Mrs. John Temple presented her husband with a bounding boy, and Prof. Fogelstang's wife has given birth to a daughter.

The lady cadets of the Agricultural College purpose giving a ball in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Moyle, of Salt Lake, are visitors of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Smithson's.

Henry Rowe, of Wyoming, is visiting his father, Dutch Rowe, for the first time in eight years.

Miss Ione Thompson, of Fillmore, Neb., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cole.
