BEAR LAKE STAKE.

Quite a Fund of Information Furnished by Elder Andrew Jenson.

Editor Deseret News:

On Monday, Sept. 7, 1891, I left Salt Lake City by team bound for the Bear Lake Stake of Zion and returned on the 20th of October following, after traveling 639 miles, visiting twenty-nine settlements of the Saints in the interest of Church history, and preaching thirty-six times. Of the settlements visited twenty-seven were in the Bear Lake Stake, and two, namely Alma and Evanston, Wyoming, in the Summit Stake. Almost without exception I was well received and cared for by the presiding officers and leading men of the different settlements, who nearly all seemed to understand the importance of improving the method of keeping ward records, and promised to act upon the suggestions given in this regard.

Among the places visited were Star Valley and Salt River Valley. Most readers of the NEWS undoubtedly know something about Star Valley, Wyoming, where five flourishing settlements of the Saints constitute an important part of the Bear Lake Stake of Zion; but there are perhaps many who have never heard much of Salt River Valley, lying immediately north of the former, partly in Wyoming and partly in Idaho. In order to reach this valley from Auburn, or Grover, the traveler passes through a canyon bordering the course of Salt river, which here is both deep and wide in places, and has to be forded twice. Formerly the road crossed the mountains. Emerging from the canyon, a broad and attractive valley greets the gaze of the traveler, and on the different streams which put into Salt river from the snow-capped mountains on the east, a number of ranches and farms, recently opened, convinces the stranger that he is still on the borders of civilization. These scattered settlers constitute the newly organized Glenns ward, over which John W. Thomas presides as Bishop, with Hans J. Emmett and Henry Allen as counselors. The numerical strength of this ward, which was first organized June 17, 1888, is 23 families, or 110 souls. The centre of the ward, or the point where the meeting house stands, is section 25, township 14 north of range 119 west, is on the east side of Salt river, about eighteen miles southwest of Afton, in Star Valley.

Freedom is the other settlement in Salt River Valley. The township of that name is on the State line of Wyoming and Idaho, and centers at mile post No. 136. It is surveyed into blocks of ten acres each, with streets six rods wide, which cross each other at right angles. Each block contains four lots. The east half of the town is in Wyoming and the west half in Idaho, but only a few families reside on the Idaho side, as the majority of the settlers still live where they first located in a crooked condition on the Government survey, which is on the west side of Salt River extend up and down for a distance of about eight miles. There are also a number of settlers on the east side. Those on the west side irrigate their lands principally from Tin Cup creek and Jack Knife creek, two streams which put into Salt River from the mountain range on the west. The township of Freedom is about twenty-five miles northwest of Afton, in Star Valley; twelve miles southeast of the point where Salt river empties into Snake river, and sixty-five miles by a trail or rough mountain road northeast of Soda Springs. The Freedom ward, which consists of about thirty families, or 150 souls, embraces the most central part of Salt River Valley, and contains thousands upon thousands of good, level and fertile land, with splendid water facilities and other natural advantages, but it will require years of patient toil and labor to wrest the country from its present wild and desolate state, and turn it into well cultivated fields. I am, however, of the opinion that this valley possesses as many attractions and natural facilities for the formation of new settlements as any in the west part of Wyoming.

The Salt River Valley, formerly called the lower Salt River Valley, to distinguish it from the upper Salt River Valley, not called Star Valley, is about twenty miles long from southeast to northwest, reaching from the low mountain ridge which separates it from Star Valley, on the south, to the point where Salt River empties into the Snake on the north. Its width varies and the way from one to eight miles, the widest part being near the center, where Freedom is situated, on the west side of the river. The mountains on the east are northerly and lofty and their summits and shady sides are covered with snow a great portion of the year, which makes water plentiful, and the mountain streams putting into Salt river from both sides are numerous and some of them quite large; the water is also good and clear and the climate not too warm or cold. Hence I do not hesitate to recommend this valley to the kind attention of latter-day Saints who are seeking for a home and are not afraid to brave the dangers of the mountain wilds and pioneer life generally. In fact, this valley is capable of giving the settlers who choose to locate within its borders nearly all the experience that the Utah Pioneers passed through over forty years ago. Here, indeed, is still an opportunity to kill snakes and build bridges, and to achieve the glory and fame connected with being the first settlers.

There is no doubt but what Salt River Valley in some future day will teem with thousands of families and be dotted with towns and villages throughout its entire length. And when the Lord shall have tempered the elements here to the extent that He has in many other parts of the great inter-mountain region (where the Latter-day Saints in former years have commenced their settlements under the most discouraging circumstances) this extensive valley of the south will undoubtedly contain a prosperous Stake of Zion fully organized, and the soil produce all that is necessary to sustain life and give comfort to its inhabitants. But now it is cold and dreary, especially in the winter season, and many of the people so far have had to leave their homes for several months in the year and go elsewhere to earn bread for their families, their own crops having been destroyed by the frosts.

The first settlers in Salt River Valley were Wm. Hogg (then of St. Charles, Bear Lake County, Idaho), John S. Relph and four sons, and John Hill and Mount Hunt, with their families, whom arrived on the present site of Freedom in May, 1879. They went to work immediately and put up four log cabins on the south side of Tin Cup Creek, four miles from the mouth of the canyon, and put up four log stables on the south side of Tin Cup Creek, four miles from the mouth of the canyon. This first location was in Idaho about a mile northwest of the present township of Freedom, and these first settlers came in by way of Montpelier over the mountains to Star Valley, and had to make the first road down Tin Cup Creek for a distance of about fifteen miles. For several years the four families named lived in the valley alone, making their living by ranching, and no attempts were made at forming organized into a ward, which other settlers began to come in and the first grain was raised. Since then there has been a slow but gradual increase in the population, and there are at present about sixty families or between three and four hundred people residing in the valley. Who, in June, 1887, were organized into a ward, out of the Bear Lake Stake of Zion, namely the Freedom ward with A. B. Clark as Bishop, and the Glenns ward, previously described.

NEW AMUSEMENT HALL.

Items of Interest from the Settlement of Charleston.

The people of Charleston, Wasatch county, are to be congratulated over the completion of a fine theatre erected during the past season. The hall is constructed of a soft lime stone rock, obtained at Midway, four miles distant. A room has been provided under the stage for school purposes, in which 100 students can be accommodated. Miss Vina Baker is teaching the primary department of the school in this hall.

The main building is 34x60, the stage 20x32. The floor is made from Oregon pitch pine six inches thick, and has a very smooth surface. The hall will be formally opened tomorrow night with a public ball. Complimentary invitations have been sent to all officials in the county and it is expected to be the event of the season. The hall was built by the enterprising Bishop N. C. Murdock, costing the last with $1000.

The Home Dramatic Association are rehearsing a play entitled "Jack Long and Captain Jim," which will be put upon the boards during the holidays.

Sleighing is fine in this valley and the "beautiful" is still falling.

THE TOURNAMENT, TONIGHT.

The Great International Tug of War Contest in Walker's Pavilion.

The last rehearsal of the great tug of war tournament was held last night. In the final pull the Irish gained a slight advance of the Danes and the Italians slightly outpulled the Scots.

Tonight the contest will open in Walker's Pavilion on Second South street, at 8 o'clock. The first teams to measure strength will be the Americans, under Captain Longe, and the Norwegians, under Captain Bannerud. The second contest will be between the Germans and Danes, under the direction of captains Jasper and Petersen. The third pull is announced to take place between the Swedes and English, under Captains Eckland and Reynolds.

The building has been nicely decorated for the occasion and desire that they will see that the best of order is maintained during the progress of the tournament.

The tug-of-war teams paraded the following streets today in their tournament uniforms: From the Pavilion west to West Temple, north to First South, east to Main, south to South Temple, south to First South, east to Commercial, south to Second South, east to State street, south to Third South, west to Main, north to First South, south to Second South, thence west to point of commencement.

THE NEXT PRESIDENT.

Tinkling over the Pulley of the Government of the United States.

Correspondence of the DESERET NEWS.

Having been born of honorable parents in Oneida County, state of New York, and breathing the air of our general climate, I always feel an interest in the welfare of the United States of this great Republic. I desire, therefore, to express my views on general principles and call the attention of the political sons of noble sires who fought and died in order to establish a free and independent government on this North American continent. I allude to history and the wise sayings of Benjamin Franklin, General, or President George Washington, J. Q. Adams, T. Jefferson, Monroe and many others who founded and supported our glorious Union, Constitution and Declaration of Independence.

The political party spirit is agitating the mind of all politicians, and the question is asked, "Who is to be our next President?" My wisdom, if I have any, says "Decidedly select an American born citizen, whose loyalty to God can be found on Union principles, whether educated or not, poor or rich—the man who will act and conduct wisely for the benefit of all classes of the people."

Wisdom dictates no tangling alliances, but peaceable and kind legislation in every case possible. Erect substantial forts at every seaport on the coast, from the Gulf of St. Lawrence around to the European possessions on the Pacific ocean, especially at San Francisco. I have viewed its surroundings on Mare Island and it seems to me more like boys' play than engineering work of wise men. Its inland boundaries are too far from the coast for effective service. My view is to strongly fortify the northern land at the Golden Gate, to protect the entrance into the bay, and build strong forts six miles south of the Golden Gate, on the Pacific shore.

Support and strengthen the army and navy, and if a soldier or sailor runs away hunt him up, pay his wages, and tell him the government has no use for him. Consider every able-bodied man from 24 to 41 years of age as a soldier, to be called into service by legal authority if required.

Organize and support institutions of learning for the instruction of the rising generation, of every grade, from the day school to the highest college course.

Repeal all legislation on high tariff acts, as they tend to encourage smuggling by land and water, and are a stigma on Republican institutions.

Whoever saw a nation with no rich a circulating currency? Coin all the gold and silver bars and bullion in the United States' treasury, strike off ten hundred million dollars in paper money and pass a decree that a gold, silver and paper dollar shall be of the same value, and a legal tender, in any amount throughout the United States Dominion. The time is near when the nations also will pay a premium on gold and silver for American paper money and bonds, with the United States stamp officially placed on it.

Organize a national Bank at Washington, D. C., and a branch bank in every State and Territory in the union, with money to loan at low interest on real estate security.

Assess rich and poor equally on money, bonds and property of every description without regard to millionaires. Lay a small per cent. on tax; it will raise a revenue sufficient for all governmental purposes.

Instruct Congress to make it an offense, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, to convert so much grain into intoxicating liquor that will cause the greatest death blow to intemperance ever thought of by man.

Wisdom would dictate no litigation, but that all classes adhere to the national constitutional decree, that Congress shall have no power to legislate on the subject.

Enlarge canals and dredge the shallows of navigable rivers in order to create ample facilities for carrying goods and products.

Encourage home manufactures in all manners of fabrics, fine and coarse. It will furnish employment for the poor and give great revenue.

Extend a generous, fatherly hand and care to the aged, the blind, lame and afflicted. No man knows but he may be sought for in this condition.

Bring out all prisoners except those guilty of the worst crimes known to men. Place them to work on the public highways, teach them morality and righteousness. It will be revenue in place of debt to the government.

Wisdom suggests the building of granaries in all prairie grazing districts and the storing up of grain against famine, want and cases of emergency, etc.

Much might be said on the protection of timber, animals, birds, fowls and fishes, also on corruption in cities, towns and hamlets, as gambling dens and houses of ill fame, but I close my eyes on this for the present.

I have outlined my ideas, but believe they are plain to the understanding of wise men, whom I ask to weigh them in the balance of reason and truth, and thereby decide who shall fill the Presidential chair in 1892.

A Preventive for Croup.

We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. True croup never appears without a warning. The first symptom is hoarseness; then the child appears to have taken a cold or a cold may have accompanied the hoarseness from the start. After that a peculiar rough cough is developed, which is followed by the croup. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse; a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will prevent the attack. Even after a rough cough has appeared the disease may be prevented by using this remedy as directed. It has never been known to fail. 50 cent and $1 bottles for sale by Z. C. M. I. Drug Store Dept.
