TALK THEMSELVES DRY

But the Water Problem did not Prove to be a Dry Subject.

COUNCIL VOTES ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS

For Roughing of Slippery Sidewalks—Francis Armstrong Appears before the Council in behalf of Utah Power Co.

At the meeting of the City Council last evening the water problem was discussed in all its phases and was stirred up by Councilman Robertson. A sentiment favorable to prompt and intelligent action was stirred up and the special committee appointed a month ago to devise ways and means for getting more water received a little prodding.

The following resolution was introduced by Councilman Robertson:

That the city engineer be directed to make the necessary surveys and measurements for reporting as soon as possible on the following matters:

1. The necessary changes to be made in the present pipe distribution system and the estimated cost of correcting the defective and unsatisfactory conditions in the system of water distribution.

2. By what means an additional supply of water sufficient for present needs can be procured next season as a temporary.

3. The most desirable method of obtaining an increased supply of water for the needs of the city, and an estimate of the cost thereof.

This precipitated a well-nigh disconnected and Pyrrhonic thought in a characteristic fashion of the resolution as a wicked scheme. In his opinion there was no necessity for making measures.

Francis Armstrong, the incorporator and suffering horse by the unbridling in the eastern part of the city for the last three months because of the scarcity of water and to expound the motion which was made to refer the resolution to the special committee, became so bad on table in the committee's good intentions.

Chairman Shaw replied that he had good his best efforts to get his committee together, but there was no hope of getting any relief this year.

In the matter of unequal distribution of water Mr. Wallace thought that it should be referred to the waterworks committee.

Allen then spoke for the adoption of the resolution.

Mr. Wallace's recommendation brought Robertson to his feet, and he announced his opposition to referring any part of the resolution to the waterworks committee. It was the special committee's duty to look into the question of additional supply, and the engineer was the only one qualified to ascertain if any of the several proposed plans were feasible. It will be next year, and probably later, be contended, before a supply from new sources can be brought to the city, but sources already owned by the municipality can be developed and protected. Before surveys are made it will be impossible know how and where to obtain more new water is to be obtained.

Calliere also opposed reference of the resolution to the special committee, because it had done nothing in the premises and had to bones full of plans to be considered.

That part of the resolution relating to faulty distribution of water through the pipe system was referred to the waterworks committee and the remainder to the special committee. Allen, Buckle, Calliere, Dahl, Robertson and Siddoway protested with their negative votes.

Following this Councilman Robertson supplemented his previous effort by offering another resolution, to wit:

Whereas, on Aug. 26, the city engineer submitted to the Council a set of recommendations for the protection of the city's water rights and the increasing of the water supply, which recommendations were referred to the special committee having the subject in hand, and

Whereas, said committee has not seen fit to investigate nor to make a report on said matter; therefore be it

Resolved, That the report of the engineer be taken from the special committee and be referred to the committee on waterworks.

At this junction Councilman Buckle again arraigned the special committee for its dilatory tactics, and Hoss took it at his duty to make a speech. Pendleton Sorensen wanted to blame the farmers who use Parley's canyon water by theft and otherwise for the famine in the city.

The various means by which water was wasted were given due attention by Robertson, and a sharp threat was given by him to Wallace, whom, he averred, could always depend upon having his biscuit factory alive watered even though the rest of the city should suffer.

The Colgrichian canyon folly—that was what it was termed by Weiner—was discussed and the unlawful taking of water from the farmers of the southeast bench criticised.

Armstrong, who was against having any surveys made, as he fully confided in the ability of the special committee to propose what is wanted without it.

Then Mr. Barnes took a hand. He explained why there had been a loss of a million gallons a day from the Deseret division incident and other causes, and thoroughly informed the city whether the diversion and farmers were entitled to any of the water from the city's sources of supply. Barnes asserted: "Not one inch of water of their respective rights cannot be determined without a measurement after rights are adjudicated."

The resolution was then put to a vote and lost by a vote of 5 to 7. The vote was: Ayes—Allen, Buckle, Calliere, Dahl, Furniston, Siddoway and Robertson—nine—Hoss, Hyde, Morris, Patrick, Weiner, Wallace and Barnes.

E. B. Wicks, Joseph Lippman, Charles Langmaid and Henry H. Harris, stockholders in the Pleasant View Irrigation company, represented that the abandonment of the Parley's canal by the city last month left the company's ditch in a vastly different condition than what was required by the terms of the contract between the city and the irrigation company in October, 1896, and for this and other reasons the company demanded satisfaction.

A resolution was then adopted which directs the Mayor to issue a proclamation limiting the use of water for sprinkling lawns, etc., to the morning hours for the upper part of town and to the evening in the lower district.

Francis Armstrong took the opportunity to answer the Council's citation to show cause why the Utah Power company's franchise of Dec. 24, 1896, should not be forfeited because of alleged non-compliance with its requirements. He denied specifically and generally the charge made, as the proofs of both sides of the question will be taken tomorrow night.

Among other minor matters the Council voted $1,000 to rough up the slippery sidewalk pavements in the business district before frosty weather arrives.
