any prosecution for sigamy, polygamy, or unlawful cohabitation.

The case has been argued here entirely upon the supposition as I understand it, that there is some necessity for this very stringent rule in order to get at the secrets of Mormon marriages. The Senator from Alkansas [Mr. Garland] informed us that they were conducted in secrecy, and not even the light of a dark lantern was allowed to shine upon them; that a priest officiated behind some screen or vell, and was not permitted often to see the persons who were making the contract before him.

That does not apply to a lawful marriage, and it makes no difference if it does apply to a lawful Mormon marriage; the amendment offered by the Senator from Missouri makes the wife a competent witness for the purpose of proving the first marriage, the lawful marriage, and puts her under the power of law, so that she can be compelled to attend court and testify to the lawful marriage. The secrecy, therefore, which may attend the subsequent relations or pretensions of marriage between a Mormon and his subsequent alliances seems to have no effect upon the proposition as it is now before the Senate.

We are not trying by this feature of this full to remove the difficulty of the proposition as it is now before the Senate:

We are not trying by this feature of this bill to remove the difficulty of proving the second marriage, as I understand the argument of the Senator from Arkansas, but to remove the difficulty of proving the first marriage; and the amendment of the Senator from Missouri expressly makes the wife a competent witness to prove the power of the law so that she can be compelled to testify to it.

Now, I maintain that is as far as we ought to go in reversal of the laws as they have been recognized in Christendom. It is very true that no court in the United States, whether a State court or a Federal court, has any authority under the common law or under any statute to recognize a bigamous or polygamous marriage as being in any sense valid. That has not been done in any court except by an act of Congress. The Congress of the United States is the only body, so far as I know, that has ever directly and in terms recognized a bigamous or polygamous marriage as being in any sense valid, and it did so in what is called the Edmunds act by providing that the listue of such marriage should be legitimate. I read the seventh section:

Sec. 7. That the issue of bigamous or polygamous marriages, known as Mormon of this bill. provides that the colon of this bill. Sec. 7. That the issue of bigamous or polygamous marriages, known as Mormon marriages, in cases in which such marriages have been solemnized according to the ceremonies of the Mormon sect, in any Territory of the United States, and such Issue shall have been born before the 1st day of January, A. D., 1883, are hereby legitimated.

EVENING NEW

THE UTAH BILL IN THE SENATE.

This body, therefore, is the only one, I think, in Christendom that has ever admitted the fact of the statute itself that a marriage could be bigamous or could be polygamous and could be valid to any extent whatever. But this body and the party of which the Sen-permissible to compel the wife or permissible the wife or permissible to compel the body and the party of which the Sentor from New York was speaking so boastfully as having placed its feet upon the first placed in the sum the first placed its feet upon the first placed In all its branches, well and promptly done LUMBER YARD HALF-A-BLOCK EAST OF DEPOT.

compel her to testify upon her oath in respect to the conduct of her husband. I maintain that as we are here for the purpose a particular eril in a particular piece, tailed Mormonism or polygamy in Utah, we ought to confine the operation of the bill to that Territory and to that sect, and not come in here with a universal bill which enables any malicious person who chooses to do it to compel the wife of any citizen residing in the District of Columbia or in any Territory of this Union or in any proceedings or in any proceeding instituted in consequence of adulery.

And it may be said to be universally true, with some modifications which are conceded to be in the legislation of the States to-day, that the principle adopted in this amendment of a compulsion on the part of the husband or the houser and sanctity of her own family.

Reformers, Mr. President, sometimes ingities are conceded to be in the legislation of the States to-day, that the principle adopted in this amendment of a compulsion on the part of the husband or the wife of a committee on the Judiciary, and their cade: They sometimes forget the boundaries which the law and which the experience of mankind have the most should find the protection of the most should be adopted in this amendment of every member of the communative who sees it to bring a criminal charge, that either shall read the part of the charge of indedity, of the adultery, of the criminal cenduct of the one toward the other, is without precedent except in the legislation now proposed. Such a law will be more designed to the mark to the committee of the criminal cenduct of the one toward the other, is without preceding so in any proceeding in any encounter the husband competency of adultery.

And it may be said to be universally true, with some modifications which are conceded to be in the legislation of the wife, at the demand of every member of the criminal cenduct of the one of the co

I will never vote for a bill which exposes exery married woman in the District of Columbia to the power of subprema to be carried before the grand jury of this District to testify as to the conduct of her husband in respect to his relations to her; and alphanough the committee may not have though the committee may not have been a Senate, and that, too, as they say, upon authority—authority which consists in a series of books that have been read which do not really bear upon the question.

There has not been a State in the American Unior which has so far relaxed the raies of evidence as to put the wife of any married man in the United States in the power of an informer and compel her to go before a grand jury and testify in regard to the marital conduct of her husband. That degree of relaxation is left to the Congress of the United States, which, while it relaxes in the direction that is speak of and withdraws all protection from society of the chracter to which it refer, at the same time in the Ed-from society of the chrracter to which I refer, at the same time in the Edmunds act itself legitimated the issue of bigamous and polygamous marriages; calls them bigamous and polygamous marriages; gamous marriages in the very act Now, let us have some respect for our own consistency. I will go along with this committee in their effort to extirpate polygamy among the Mormons. This is the object we are trying to accomplish; but in doing that I am not to be expected to break down all the harriers of the common law which surround individuals and societies in this country and to expose the people of this land to the impertinent and intrusive influence of those thousands of pimps and informers who swarm around the capital of the United States; for God knows there never was a com-THE SPENCER HOUSE the barriers of the common law which surround individuals and societies in this country and to expose the people of this land to the impertinent and intrusive influence of those thousands of pimps and informers who swarm around the capital of the United States; for God knows there never was a community, I do not care where you find it in the world, where there is so much of heartless, malicious, and impertiof heartless, malicious, and imperti-nent interference with private charac-ter and private rights as there is in the
