THE YALE-PRINCETON GAME.

MANHATTAN FIELD, Nov. 23.—At noon today the conditions were favorable for a large crowd and good sport in the game between Yale and Princeton football eleven. The day was clear and the temperature about 40 degrees. Betting was generally even. The odds which a few days ago were laid on the New Haven lads vanished away. About the hotel some money was offered at very small odds on Yale. But the man was always to be found to take Princeton in the end.

The personnel of the Yale team: S. Stickelbord Thorne, left half back and captain; C. M. Fincke, quarter back; Clarence DeWitt, right half back; A. S. Jerrems, full back; Louis Hinsey, right end; Fred T. Murphy, right tackle; W. B. Cross, right guard; H. S. Cross, center; Charles Chadwick, left guard; J. G. Rogers, left tackle; Lyman Bass, left center.

Substitutes: J. J. Hamm, end; H. S. Letton, full back; H. F. Benjamin, tail back; S. Sheldon, guard; Alexander Brown, tackle; P. D. Mills, half back; M. C. Fly, quarter back.

The personnel of the Princeton team: William P. Hearn, left end; William W. Church, left tackle; Dudley Riggs, left guard; Thomas Gailey, center; Jesse M. Rhodes, right guard; A. Clinton Tyler, substitute tackle, will occupy Captain Lea's position at right tackle; Langdon Lea, right tackle and captain, was injured in the Harvard game and has not been able to enter the rankings; Garrett Cochran, right end; Harry M. Suller, quarter back; Albert H. Hoengarten, left half back; Thomas C. Armstrong, right half back; John Baird, full back.

Substitutes: William Bannard, half back; Edward Hinson, end; Samuel R. Thompson, end; J. M. Hunt, guard.

When the gates of Manhattan field were thrown open, a crowd of football enthusiasts thronged, passed the gate-keepers and rushed for the best places from which a view of the great intercollegiate football contest between the teams from Yale and Princeton could be had. The north side of the enclosure soon became lined with vehicles decorated with the colors of the respective institutions.

Never in the history of the game, one minute smiled more kindly. Perhaps it was just a little warmer than desirable. Both teams were in the very best condition.

The teams lined up as follows:

| Princeton. | Position. | Yale. |
|---|---|---|
| Hearn | Left end | Hinsey |
| Church | Left tackle | Rogers |
| Riggs | Left guard | Chadwick |
| Gailey | Center | H. Cross |
| Rhodes | Right guard | Brown |
| Tyler | Right tackle | Murphy |
| Lea | Right end | Hinsey |
| Cochran | Quarter back | Dewitt |
| Suller | Left half back | Fincke |
| Hoengarten | Right half back | Jerrems |
| Armstrong | Full back | Letton |
| Baird | Full back | Jerrems |

MANHATTAN FIELD, Nov. 23.—At 1:45 the Princetons came on the field and were greeted with cheers. At 2:05 p. m. the Yales just came on the field amid tremendous cheers from their supporters.

Yale won the toss. Princeton kicked off to Yale's thirty-yard line. Yale secured the ball on the down and by steady rushing forced it to Princeton's forty-five-yard line.

The first half was closely contested, but Yale showed superiority and was able to score two touchdowns, in which Thorne kicked a goal. Playing was serious in Yale's territory and the Princeton line did not prove as strong as expected.

Thorne, as usual, was the star player and made continued gains.

Cochran was knocked out for a minute but resumed the play. Yale secured the ball and punted to Princeton's five yard line. Princeton returned the ball. Yale lost the ball on downs on Princeton's 35-yard line. Princeton gained eight yards, then punted to Yale's 25-yard line. Yale punted to Princeton's 35-yard line, where Princeton gained another. The game is an even one, both sides punting freely. Yale cut ten yards for off side play. Time was called in order to fix up Thorne, who was knocked in the head being opened in the scrimmage. The play was resumed, Yales ball.

Rose got the ball and by a great run made a touchdown. Yale makes a goal score: Yale 6, Princeton 0.

DeWitt was hurt but resumed play. In exchange points Yale gained 10 yards. Captain Lea crumbled the ball in the middle field. Rose picked it up and ran 55 yards.

Lea kicked off Princeton. Thorne got the ball. He advanced ten yards before he was downed. Jerrems kicked to Baird, who made a brilliant run fifteen yards when he was downed. Armstrong and Hoengarten both failed to get through the line. Baird was forced to kick. Chadwick blocked the ball. Hoengarten fell on the ball. Hoengarten was forced through the left end and gained three yards. Armstrong attempted the same trick, but could not do anything. Riggs took the ball through the center three yards. Thorne makes a touch down, and kicks the goal. Score, Yale, 12; Princeton, 0.

After the kick off, the ball was punted considerably. Yale had the ball on Princeton's 35-yard line. Thorne tried the goal from the field but failed. Yale scored another touch down. Thorne, who made a touch down, also kicks a goal. Time was called. Score: Yale, 22; Princeton, 0.

At 3:25 there was no change in either team on the line up for the second half.

Captain Lea was injured and compelled to retire. Thompson is taking his place.

When Captain Lea left the field, Yale seemed to play with more vim, and soon got the ball. On punt, Captain Thorne got the ball on Yales' 35-yard line and by a most brilliant run carried the spheroid to Princeton's 15-yard line, where he was downed.

Yale's ball is on Princeton's 5-yard line.

Jerrems made a touch down. Hoengarten was ruled out for slugging Hinsey.

Captain Thorne failed to kick a goal. Score: Yale, 16; Princeton, 0.

PRATT WILL NOT RESIGN.

On the Contrary He Will Remain and Attempt to Restore Harmony in the Force.

"Certainly not. I shall remain where I am and endeavor to do what I can towards restoring harmony to the police department and at the same time increase its efficiency."

That was the answer of Chief of Police Arthur Pratt to the query of a News representative this afternoon as to whether the statement that he would resign on account of the reinstatement of Captain Donovan was true.

Continuing the chief said, "No, I see no reason why I should step down and out. I think I was vindicated in my charges to a very satisfactory degree. Five out of the seven counts were sustained on a unanimous vote, which I consider very good. Had none of the charges been sustained, then there would have been but one thing left to do—get out.

Then reverting to the department, the chief said: "We have an excellent force. It's record is one that the city may well be proud of, and it will be my aim to make it still better. All forms of lawlessness must be suppressed. The gambling halls will be closed up and saloons must suspend all business on Sunday."

This is carrying out the order of the commission, which yesterday passed a resolution to that effect. Saloon and gaming house proprietors and bailiffs and slot machine men were notified of the order today, and as a result, in some quarters there were some pretty strong mutterings of dissatisfaction, and threats to test the matter in the courts.

Funeral Services.

The cases of L. R. Steele and P. W. Jackson, the two colored gentlemen who were the principals in a shooting affray some weeks back, should have been heard today but at the request of Attorney McCallum for a continuance, the hearing was deferred until December 7th at 2 p.m.

Charles Mitchell alias "Old Red Apple" was arraigned for drunkenness this afternoon.

"What do you say to that charge, sir?" queried the court.

"Well, your honor, I'm guilty, judge, but I've got a job of work I can go to, if you'll let me go."

"What did I do to you the last time you were here?"

"Why you let me go, but I had to pay for it."

"Did I not let you go on your own recognizance and you failed to appear?"

"No, sir, your honor, judge, I paid for it, and if you'll let me go this time so that I can finish that job of work, I'll—

"Ten dollars or ten days," put in the court, and Charley sailed forth to jail, all the while exclaiming, "You've knocked me out of that job of work."

Two young shavers of tender years who had been brought in by officer Johnson for stealing hackmen, were given a talking to by Judge Smith and after promising to go home and behave themselves in the future, they were given their liberty.

An appeal has been taken in the case of Pat Coughlin, sentenced to be executed on Dec. 10, for the murder of Edward Dawes in Echo canyon. It is now stated that should the decision of the lower court be affirmed, the U. S. marshal will not have to inflict the death penalty, but that that duty will fall, under the State administration, upon the sheriff of the county wherein the conviction took place.

PROVO, UTAH, Nov. 23, 1895.

Failed to Agree.

This morning the jury in the Hague case filed into court creating fired from their 24 hours labors endeavoring to agree upon a verdict. Judge Merritt said, "Gentlemen, have you agreed upon a verdict?"

Foreman Sargent answered that they had not, and that he thought it impossible for them to do so, the other jurors also agreed with this statement. Judge Merritt regretted that they were unable to agree as the trial had taken a long time and had been conducted at great expense, but did not desire to compel them to agree and then discharged them. On the first ballot the jury stood seven for conviction and five for acquittal, on every succeeding ballot they have stood seven for conviction and one for acquittal.

Arthur Brown asked that the books and papers introduced in evidence in the case be left in the custody of the clerk so that the defense could have access to them. Judge Merritt refused to grant the request unless Prosecuting Attorney could be consulted. He was not present and the records were left with the clerk temporarily till the request can be passed upon.

About Carp, Etc.

In a late issue of the News the statement appears that carp caught in the Sevier river are better flavored than those in Utah Lake. As to this the News representative asked Mr. M. P. Madsen of Lakeview, who knows all about Utah fish, the reason for this. He explained that most of the carp taken from Utah Lake are caught on the east side, which is very sloughy, and gives the fish a muddy taste. Those on the west side of the lake, where there are no sloughs, are, he says, free from this objectionable flavor, except in cases where they are late arrivals from the sloughs and have not had time to get the impurities there imbibed out of their system, as it were. This will explain differences of opinion often expressed about Utah Lake carp. Some persons claim they are not fit to eat and should be exterminated in order to make room for better fish; others will take up the argument for the carp and say he is a very decent kind of fish and should be encouraged. According to Mr. Madsen's explanation, which seems reasonable, it is simply a question of "east side" and "west side."

In support of his statement Mr. Madsen says that if trout is placed in a mud hole he will, in a short time, become unfit for food. The reason why trout are not affected by the mud on the east side of the lake is because he will not stay there; but the carp seem to enjoy the getting in the sloughs, and when they get to eating down the rushes in sufficient number, they make as much noise as a mowing machine at work. The carp is highly esteemed as a food fish in Europe and will no doubt be able to keep up his reputation here, when people see the injustice of condemning the whole tribe on account of the bad habits of a few disreputable east siders. By the way, why would the east side of Utah lake not furnish an ideal home for itself? There is a tradition that at one time some fishes in the lake, but none can be found now—except in railroad bottles.
