SOBER THOUGHTS.

[illegible]

You can not repent too soon, because you do not know how soon it may be too late.—Thomas Fuller.

To all that you can in stand, and then for lot you may fall, and by the grace of God you are safe.—Fox.

To wake in the happiness of others is humanity our work to gladden it is to make it more than our own.—Amiel.

The thoroughly good men are those who have done everything thoroughly, and who have never dreamed anything, however small, of God's making.—Ruskin.

I hate to see a man's work drop down or it for who shall, before the edifice fairly struck, just as if he's never a life's plan and delight in's work. The very grindstone will go on turning a bit after you have it.—George Eliot.

You must be sure of two things; you must love your work, and no neighbors looking over the wall of it, wasting your play to begin. And the other is, you must not be ashamed of your work, and think it would be more creditable to you to be doing something else.—George Eliot.

You can never know whether you are willing to work for Christ by simply quenching your heart, to something, do everything for His sake—all of them for Him. Let daily domestic duty be thus consecrated. Let it not be doing this or that particular thing that we serve Christ so much as by doing all in the name of Christ.—Ibid.

People talk of "fighting every a inch" as a mere phrase—meaning it by, literally. It has not come. No one ever does that at least, no nature which can be injured by the feeling of grief. The only way is to pass through the waves of affliction solemnly, with humility and faith, as the ransomed passed through the sea. There is very water of misery will divide and become to us a wall on the right side and on the left, until the gulf narrows and narrows behind us and we land safe on the opposite shore.

A gift, to be perfect, when given to persons of mature years, must still itself in its operations, that is, the responsible hand, be laid by him given and received, not upon what it is, but upon what it expresses. It is the feeling of esteem, of respect, of sympathy, of appreciation, which is to settle through the gift. Hence, as regards the gift, the question, or rather the inquiry, is not, is it costly, is it rare, is it beautiful, is it in good taste? but is it such things as shall convey the kindness, the esteem, the respect, the sympathy, the appreciation which it is intended to express? Unless it be such, it is not a gift at all, or it is a gift of little value.—Ibid.

Unless one's selfish energies are from a moment to moment, and from hour to hour, in motion, one lagging behind, inertness, temperate or idle, begins to grow cumbrous, sluggishness is one's companion, uncomfortable is the result, pettiness of the soul has fastened on it, and it becomes a prey to the worst of all tyrants, the tyrant self. Nothing is so cheerless as a life of idleness, nothing so miserable as a life of pleasure and delight, for it is a life of self-indulgence. All go on turning a bit after you have it.—George Eliot.

You must be sure of two things; you must love your work, and no neighbors looking over the wall of it, wasting your play to begin. And the other is, you must not be ashamed of your work, and think it would be more creditable to you to be doing something else.—George Eliot.

PITH AND POINT.

A fool can start a fire that the wisest man in the world cannot put out.

We sometimes teach others by our actions the very things we do not want them to know.

It has been observed that the man with the frowsy fallings is the man most tolerant of those of his fellow-kind.

Endurance is more valuable than cleverness. It is the patient, steady plodders who gain and keep fortunes.

A great many people are like the ordinary cur dog—too small for a watch dog, and too large for a pet.—Atchison Globe.

An unfair thing in this world is that we never know there is an ounce of prevention until after we have taken our pound of cure.

They who are most weary of life, and yet the most unwilling to die, are such who have lived to no purpose—who have rather breathed than lived.

The doctor who cuts a man open after death and tells what is the matter with him has the advantage of the doctor who is compelled to guess what is the matter with the patient before death.

It is every man's duty to do right. In order to do right deliberately, a man needs to know what is right. Finding out what is right is, therefore, an essential principle of right-doing.

Good Work on the Ocean.

Mrs. Laura Ormiston Chant recently had her safe return to England, and recounts an incident which shows her wonderful power of turning to helpful uses each incident that transpires. By reason of the crowd on deck a woman fell overboard, dragging a boy with her. They were rescued by three of the ship's officers. Mrs. Chant wrote a poem upon it from the point of view of the woman's wife, and recited it in the evening to the passengers. It so pleased her hearers that they took up a collection, put up the manuscript of the ballad at auction and sold photograph copies of it, raising in this way nearly $100, which was distributed among the brave men who had risked their lives.—London Letter.

Bands to Export Meat.

A. K. Von Mohl, of Moscow, and an American citizen, S. Schreiber, have started a company for the exportation of meat from Russia to England. A great abattoir has been built in Libau, where the meat will be transported directly to London in refrigerator steamers. This opens a new prospect for the produce of the Russian farmer. Millions of cattle are annually killed in that empire merely for their hides, while there is no market in the country for their meat. The meat will be carried from the gate of Libau to London in three days and twelve hours.

That Would be Different.

"Then you have made up your mind, young lady, never to get married?"

"Yes, sir. I'll die an old maid."

"And if some young man were to propose to you?"

"Oh, that would be a different thing altogether."—Hunter-Herald Gazette.

Kettles for Preserving.

A porcelain kettle is the best for preserving, too large a quantity should never be cooked at one time. Large fruits may be put in the syrup, cooked rapidly at first and then slowly, to preserve the shape. If the fruit is cooked, and the syrup yet thin, take up a piece at a time carefully, boil the syrup until thick, return the fruit to it and cook slowly.—Ex.

HAIRS.

Nelles, Oct. 13.—Sunday night in a saloon at Pulleville, one Watson, who was considerably under the influence of red eye, was accosting and severely abusing an old man named Butler. Watson slapped Butler in the face, whereupon the old man remarked, "I might kill a man for doing that." Watson the second time slapped him, when Butler drew a penknife and stabbed him in the lower part of the left lung and cut him several times about the left shoulder and on the head. Neither of the cuts are dangerous. The old man very leisurely walked into Montana, which is only two miles distant.

Fitzsimmons: "Why have you pulled out from Rosenburg? I thought that orbit was advancing steadily?"

Second Assistant: "Rosenburg is a dead town, sir—slow—slow's the word, so pack there. Why, the comet gives it 2,000 more than it claimed."—Puck.

In a case before a Tennessee justice one of the lawyers made fun of another's grammar. The court at once arose and said: "Mr. Perkins, if you air one of them whut thinks grammar runs this court you're barkin' up the wrong tree. If I hear any more such remarks I'll fine you $10.—Detroit Free Press.

"Time is money, my boy. Remember that."

"I think, there must be some mistake about that, father. It's so hard to pass in some localities."—Harper's Bazar.

A CONTRADICTION!

Inasmuch as the statement has been made by a certain semi-weekly newspaper published in this city that its circulation, which FOR 1 PARTICULAR WEEK is quoted at 10,752 copies (which would be 5376 copies per issue,) is greater than that of any other paper in the West, it becomes the duty of the NEWS to say that

THE STATEMENT IS FALSE.

The NEWS is not in the habit of boasting of its merits as a newspaper or advertising medium, preferring to allow its patrons to judge for themselves; and under no circumstances has it ever resorted to the despicable practice indulged in by some of its competitors of seeking to build itself up by tearing others down. It has no disposition to do so now, but by way of correcting the false impression sought to be made by the statement referred to, it may be said truthfully (and affidavits substantiating it can be furnished if necessary) that DURING EVERY WEEK FOR THE PAST 5 YEARS THE CIRCULATION OF THE DESERET SEMI-WEEKLY NEWS HAS BEEN FAR LARGER THAN THAT QUOTED BY ITS BOASTFUL COTEMPORARY.
