OPINIONS OF OUR LEADING MEN.

President Angus M. Cannon says of the Keeley treatment.

"I thought it impossible for one man to do what Dr. Keeley has done scientifically in counteracting the terrible evils of intemperance. His treatment strengthens men physically, mentally and morally. Under these circumstances they are given another opportunity to become men amongst men. Is there a man who loves his fellow beings that can fail to say, I view Dr. Keeley as engaged in a most commendable work? I trust his good work may continue."

ANGUS M. CANNON,
President Salt Lake Stake.

Every warrant issued by the county court during the year is included in the expenditures, a separate account being kept of each fund. The court was authorized to expend during the year $165,000 but left short about $25,000, leaving that balance in favor of the court.

Lewis-Ellerbeck.

On Tuesday evening last, at the Ellerbeck home, 32 State street, Miss Ezra Ellerbeck was married to Mr. T. D. Lewis, Dr. James E. Talmage performing the ceremony. The bride is a daughter of Mr. T. W. Ellerbeck and the groom is a young attorney who for a time has been in the Fifth ward congressional ward. The ceremony was witnessed only by the family and immediate friends, including members of the Sunbeam choir ecclesiastical ward. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and plants, the delicate perfumes from which well emblemed the happy occasion. The bridesmaids were the Misses Clara and Zerpha Ellerbeck. After the ceremony there was a wedding supper which all were delighted and at which toasts and merriment had sway. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will reside at 32 State street.

RAILWAY CONTEST.

Great Salt Lake and Hot Springs and Rapid Transit Railways.

A suit has been begun in the Third district court between the Great Salt Lake and Hot Springs railway company and the Rapid Transit company. The controversy involves the rights of each company to the right of way on Third West street. The Great Salt Lake and Hot Springs company prays for damages against the Rapid Transit street railway company in the sum of $5,000, and each of the litigants asks to have the other enjoined to prevent interference.

A row of electric light poles in the center of the street also enter into the case. The Rapid Transit company claims that when the Great Salt Lake and Hot Springs company laid its track upon the east side of the street the track was laid three and a half feet from the poles. A year later, according to the defendant's claim, the Hot Springs company moved the electric light poles still further away. The Rapid Transit company then moved the poles back, and, according to the confession of the plaintiff, placed them so close to its track that its road could not be safely operated. The claim is also made that the Rapid Transit company placed its trolley poles on a line with the electric light poles.

In a cross-complaint the Rapid Transit company alleges that it constructed its track before the plaintiff began to lay its track on the west side of the center of the street, and occupied a portion of the space upon which the defendant had been granted a right-of-way to construct its line. Upon a protest being entered by the defendant the plaintiff then moved its line over to the west side of the street.

Defendants then allege that the plaintiff threatens to lay a double track upon the street from Fifth North to Ninth North street, and in so doing take possession of a portion of defendant's right-of-way. Hence the defendant prays for an injunction to prevent the track from being laid. In a supplemental cross-complaint the defendant alleges that after the issuance of a temporary restraining order, the plaintiff vacated it by secretly and in the night time, removing the electric light poles two feet or more to the west of the center of the street, where they had been placed by the defendant, and an order was prayed that the plaintiff be directed to place the poles in their original position.

The plaintiff is represented by Rawlins & Critchlow and the defendant by Williams, Sutherland & Van Cott.

Cycle Assignment.

The Beveridge-Hockley Cycle company yesterday made an assignment to J. W. Langley. The liabilities amount to $5,270.48, the preferred accounts amounting to $294.48. The assets consist of twenty new bicycles and one second hand one, together with bicycle supplies, store fixtures, furniture and book accounts.

Hon. Moses Thatcher will not be able to go to Chicago on account of railroad times and therefore in accordance with authority granted by the Democratic State convention he has selected his own alternate. The gentleman chosen is Hon. F. J. Kiesel of Ogden.

Home From Kansas.

Yesterday afternoon Elder Henry Kirkman of the Tenth ward of this city, who came home on Wednesday, called on the News. On the first of September, 1894, he left on a mission to the Indian Territory, and for thirteen months traveled and preached in the Chickasaw nation. He was then transferred to the Kansas conference of that mission and later became its president, remaining in that position until released to return home. Elder Kirkman reports the mission as being in a favorable condition. He was kindly treated by the people both in Chickasaw nation and in Kansas. The headquarters of the latter conference is in St. John, where the missionaries have many warm friends. For the past few weeks Elder Kirkman's health has not been first class, but he was not deterred from performing his missionary labors. He says the outlook for crops in southern Kansas this season is not very good, the drouth having destroyed much of the corn, and chinch bugs doing great damage.
