FRAGMENTS.

THE ranks of the Bonhalter Hides were increased by three last night. The new members are Messrs. Cannon, Kenner and Pratt.

A MEETING of the American Natural Gas company will be held tomorrow for the purpose of amending its articles of incorporation.

THE Salt Lake Gun Club was indulging in its regular weekly shoot on State street this afternoon. Five new electric traps were being used. There were twenty single and ten double.

PAVING proceeds painfully slow on State street. Unless greater energy shall soon be displayed business men say that the work will escape most of the summer and they will lose thousands of dollars in consequence thereof.

LAST night the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Building of St. Marks school was held in the school chapel on East South street. The exercises were varied and interesting and listened to by a large number of people. The whole affair ended by an ice cream supper and dance.

MR. T. R. JONES is expected to arrive in this city tomorrow from San Francisco, with the remains of his wife, who died there of diabetic on Tuesday last. The deceased was a most estimable woman and her death will be mourned by many warm friends. Interment will be made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

IRVINE GREATLY CHANGED.

The Strain of the Terrible Ordeal Has Greatly Affected Him—His Offense Not Bailable.

City Recorder Stanton and Councilman Wantland returned from Lincoln, Nebraska, this morning, where they went to offer aid and sympathy to W. H. Irvine, who shot and killed Montgomery, the incentious Lincoln banker, for reasons heretofore given in these columns. The strain on Irvine's mental and physical constitution, they say, has been terrible. They expected to find him changed somewhat, of course, but were not prepared to see the one time robust, fearless and active man, the pale, haggard and nervous creature that he now is. His greatest anxiety seemed to be for little Irvine, "Fessie," of whom he constantly and feelingly spoke. The child is still with her mother in Chicago. Mr. Irvine has received nearly one hundred telegrams from all parts of the United States, expressing sympathy for him in his trouble and asking him to cheer up. Mr. Irvine is confined in the penitentiary and it is only with the utmost difficulty that he can be seen at all. His attorneys are all able and prominent jurists, and are doing all in their power to have a special session of the court ordered by the Governor of the State. Otherwise there can be no hearing of the case until September next.

Public sympathy at Lincoln, says Messrs. Wantland and Stanton, is almost entirely in Irvine's favor and against the dead financier, who it is said had for a long time been regarded as a most dangerous character with the opposite sex.

In Police Circles.

Arthur W. Keepley is registered at the police station as a plain drunk. In addition to that common imprepriety he is charged with cruelty to animals. He will be allowed the privilege of making an explanation before Justice Rasbo this afternoon.

H. Keukle is in durance vile on a charge of larceny.

Jas. Read, a belligerent basket maker is awaiting arraignment for drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

An some part or other of the world bonus, cattle and sheep are found wild, but, it is asserted, nowhere can be found wild onnels.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT

Motions Heard Before Chief Justice Zane This Morning.

Chief Justice Zane sat this morning, passed judgment upon one prisoner and heard several motions which were wholly devoid of public interest. The day has been one of unusual dullness in legal circles.

THE HELPER VOTER.

Jacob Johnson, who was found guilty on Wednesday afternoon of stealing a heifer, came up for sentence.

In reply to the court, the defendant said he was a tinker, and had resided in this Territory for twenty-six years, most of the time in Salt Lake. He had never been in trouble until this affair happened.

Judge Zane imposed the lighest sentence allowed by law—one year in the penitentiary.

FORECLOSURE PROCEEDINGS.

William Hardman vs. Wm. J. Harvey et al. This was a motion for foreclosure of certain mortgages and drew forth a large volume of talk among the several attorneys engaged. The amount involved is considerable, running into some thousands of dollars, and there are one or two points in the suit. A large number of issues were contained in the pleadings, both as to law and equity. His Honor granted the decree of foreclosure prayed for.

JUDGMENT BY CONSENT.

William Steinhart et al vs. A. F. Shipsey et al. In this case the demurrer was withdrawn and attachment dissolved. Judgment was entered for the plaintiff for $1,296.35, by consent of the parties.

TEN DAYS TO ANSWER.

F. D. Cobb vs. C. W. Veltch. The demurrer to complaint was withdrawn and ten days were allowed to answer.

MOTION TO DISSOLVE.

In the case of Alex. Goldberg vs. Joseph Simon, motion was made to discharge and dissolve attachment. (Stephens & Schroeder for the plaintiff; Mccosh & Marshall for the defendant.) Plaintiff asked for time to file affidavits, and the hearing was postponed till June 11th.

A DEMURRER ARGUED.

In the case of Henry Dinwoodey et al. vs. Salt Lake county, the demurrer to the complaint was argued by County Attorney Walter Murphy for the defendants and Rawlins & Critchlow for the plaintiffs. The action was originally brought to recover damages from the defendants for taking gravel from certain land belonging to the plaintiffs in or near Sugar House ward, for use upon the public road. The matter was submitted to the court at the close of the legal arguments this morning.

THE ESCAPED CONVICT.

The first persons to learn of the escape of Charles Maupin from the penitentiary yesterday afternoon were Deputy Marshal Will Goodell and Detective Perkins. The information was conveyed to these officers by a man who had seen the prisoner going along the railroad track north of the penitentiary and he knew him by sight. Maupin, being a "county," had managed to secure a pair of pants and a vest belonging to one of the teamsters at the "farm," and donned these as a substitute for the prison garb, which he dropped in the brush near the roadside. The deputy and detective started off for Parley's canyon shortly after five o'clock, having learned that Maupin was making tracks for Parkcity. When in the canyon the officers were sure within a distance of thirty yards of the convict, who on spying them dropped down in the brush and there concealed himself until they had passed, when he doubled back and made for the city, where he was caught in the lodging house.

ON PLEASURE BENT.

A assistant District Attorney Stephens is about to take a well-earned holiday, and expectant extremis himself from the legal cobwebs, for a couple or three weeks, within the next few days. Mr. Stephens has lately been performing some very hard labor in connection with the office of deputy prosecuting attorney.

"VALENTINED" FOR SOMEBODY.

Several of the deputy marshals were shrewdly watched the city this morning serving subpoenas.

ON A PROMISSORY NOTE.

In case of George E. Ellerbeck vs. Max et al., in which plaintiff is sued to recover $241.10 and interest, on a promissory note, was being tried in Commissioner Pratt's court at noon today.

A Correction.

Editor Deseret News:

In one of the city papers I observed an erroneous statement regarding Mormon colonization in Mexico. It is headed: "More Mormons for Mexico," and dated May 24, 1892, from El Paso, Texas—"Another Mormon colony has been granted a large concession in the State of Chihuahua, Mexico. The concession consists of 100,000 acres of fine farm land through which runs the Rio Conchos. A delegation of Mormon Elders went through to Utah last night, and as soon as the crops in Utah have been gathered this year they say 500 families will be moved to the new colony."

As I am one of the delegation of "Mormon" Elders referred to, I feel in duty bound to say in behalf of the Church authorities in Utah, that the statement of 500 families going to Mexico after harvest is entirely without foundation; also I utterly deny a concession of 100,000 acres by the government of Mexico. But I will state that an organized company in Utah has bought 100,000 acres of land as a stock and stock ranch, and for colonization. I was selected to go to Chihuahua to receive the land, as agent. So there is a shadow of smoke for so great and fiery a report. Mr. A. J. Stewart has been successful in procuring a very favorable concession from the Mexican government. He was in Mexico at the same time as myself. To my knowledge, what Brother A. J. Stewart has done as a citizen accords with the government of Mexico and what the company which I represented in the purchase of the 100,000 acres of ranch land in Mexico did is of individual responsibility and not a Church affair. There is no doubt that some families will colonize Mexico, but that the Church will send five hundred families is incorrect and unauthorized. I feel that the correction was due both to President Woodruff and the Church generally.

EDWARD STEVENSON.

P.S.—Mexico has good roadbeds and climate, but it has no taxes. E. S.

THE G. O. P. "DUSKY ROARERS."

They Toot Out Their Lungs for the National Republican Convention at Minneapolis.

Ben Powers' detachment of "Republicans" Tooterers left for Minneapolis this morning, from which place it is generally believed they will return disembodied and discouraged without having received recognition from the convention.

The delegation consists of C. C. Goodwin, H. H. Meeker, W. S. McCornick, Walter Alvey, Dave Keith, James Glendenning, D. C. McLaughlin, John Judge, W. H. H. Spofford, J. E. Dooly, F. M. Merrill, C. S. Varian, J. J. Daly and W. L. Snyder, and A. C. Cleveland of Nevada.

Allen, the "unthematical tonsorial," and Dolliver, the "windy constitutional," left yesterday for the same place, it is said, to make arrangements for the obsequies of their respected collaborator.

A significant feature as to what the party expects can easily be seen from the fact that all were advised, it is said, by the great Warren to be sure and "constitutional" pellets good for thirty days.

HARBOR DEFENSES.

PLANTING DEADLY EXPLOSIVES TO PROTECT THE COAST.

What a Vast Amount of Labor, Skill, Time and Money is Needed to Complete a Thorough System of Coast Defense—Advantages of the Torpedo.

There is a very widely diffused idea among people who have not made a special study of the subject that torpedoes, and torpedoes alone, can defend any harbor against a hostile attack.

The destructive effects of a few torpedo explosions under the most favorable circumstances have caused this branch of warfare to assume an undue importance, an importance wholly unwarranted by the results revealed by generalizations from isolated instances, entirely without regard to the natural limitations of the efficiency of any torpedo system, however perfect.

It is the object of this article to endeavor to show the actual capabilities of torpedoes, the results attainable by their use, and the restrictions inevitably attending their indefinite expansion into a complete system of defense.

Great guns must play an important part in all harbor defense, but for the proper and adequate defending of navigable channels against mines, explosive by contact, are the mainstays.

With their use, however, a host of perplexing conditions arise, the twisting and warping of the cables and moorings, the deposition due to the currents, the danger of sympathetic explosions, the leaking of the cases, the obstruction of the channel for friendly navigation—all these have to be overcome as best they may be.

Where a port has several navigable channels, and it is practicable to secure five one or more, their closure by means of self acting torpedoes is easy.

Where a channel, however, cannot be entirely abandoned, self acting mines are useless, for in order to be thoroughly reliable they must be as dangerous to a friend as to an enemy. Furthermore, their planting, and much more, their removal, requires the presence of a boat to be manipulated only at great risk. The limited applicability of general mines is well known. Torpedo mines furnishes two other types for harbor defense, the harpoon mine and the dirigible torpedo, although the latter properly forms a distinct class.

Great injury in planting torpedoes cannot be expected, and this fact, coupled with the inevitable shifting of the mines from various causes, leads directly to the conclusion that a great number of mines must be relied upon rather than precision in their manipulation.

Despite the number of mines, a vessel attempting to pass the lines may still fail to strike a mine hard enough to work the circuit. Only in cases where contiguous a perfect torpedo system must provide means for firing the mines at will in groups of three or four, at all times it is possible to accurately locate a vessel within a dangerous space of three hundred feet, and the resultant tremendous explosion will have the desired effect.

To furnish a passage for the electric current many cables are needed, and to avoid confusion some regular method of planting must be adopted. It is convenient to plant the torpedoes in groups capable of being fired by judgment, these groups constituting the main, which are combined into the larger unit whose limit is generally the number of mines that can be operated through a single seven core cable.

The grand groups thus formed are arranged in lines, the latter radiating in all directions from the firing stations, and the separate units can be easily located by triangulation. The intervals between the lines are filled with skirmish lines—single mines strung on a single conductor cable and exploding by contact only.

Many forms of movable torpedoes for harbor defense have been tried in different countries with varying degrees of success. For accuracy of direction and range of destructive power the Howe Edison fish torpedo is perhaps unrivalled. Extended trials at Willet's point have satisfactorily demonstrated its ability to carry 100 pounds of dynamite to a distance of two miles at a speed of about twenty miles per hour. The charge is exploded upon contact with the vessel or by the action of the operator on shore.

The dirigibility of the torpedo is perfect. It follows its prey as though endowed with life, swerving to the right or left as necessary, diving under booms or other obstructions, rising through nets, and never slackening its great speed until the end of its cable is reached. At present a two mile cable is deemed sufficient, although this could be increased if necessary, enlarging the "fish" itself.—Cosmopolitan.

Confederate Camp Fires.

The Confederate stars and bars were in 1861 supplemented by the camp fire. That was [illegible] kept like the other, except that it was made with sentiment, and the battle flag in the upper corner near the staff. It was found difficult to adapt scraps to that, displacing so much material, it was sometimes spoken of as a mosaic, it was sometimes spoken of as a patchwork. Mr. Davis, and on Feb. 22, 1862, it gave place to the last flag of the Confederacy, the other half being a red vertical line. Appearing so late in the war, it was not so familiar as the others—in fact, it was comparatively little known.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Largest Ocean Steamers.

The largest passenger steamships in consideration are the new ships City of New York and City of Paris, each now for 10,000 tons displacement. The dimensions being the largest accommodations for passengers are to be in the Cunard Etruria, which can carry 500. The longest steamship is the Teutonic, 685 feet.—New York Advertiser.

Rookeries Built in Trees.

The rare fire lookouts shows no signs of abating. Easter gifts were devised of them in every form.

Salt Water Sewers Have Gone.

Not long since it was believed that land at all with freight encountering a vast quantity of fresh eggs was sunk in the waters of the outer bay of the Battery, New York city. Working upon this idea a city paragraphist attached to a New York newspaper remarked that although immersed in salt water the eggs would undoubtedly be sold for fresh.

Whether he knew that his statement was one of truth or not cannot be ascertained, but the fact remains the same that the eggs were unimpaired when the fleet was raised, and were undoubtedly put on the market as such.—New York Herald.

The Age of the Harp.

The harp, which was suggested by the late, is ascribed to Jubal, 3873 B. C., and was King David's favorite instrument. The harp was used by the Welsh and Saxons, and also by the ancient peoples of Ireland. One of the oldest harps in existence is in the Dublin College museum, and originally belonged to Brian Boroihme, king of Ireland.—Harper's Young People.

BOA-UTOA, a city on the Ganges, is said to have been so named because a gigantic serpent, 120 cubits long and having a double head, was killed at the present site of the town about the year 201 A. D.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FAST TIME.

The Celebrated "Pennsylvania Limited" Fast Train Service by the "Burlington."

The Burlington has made another new departure in fast train service between Denver and Chicago, running the time to twenty-eight hours. The new train, known as the "Chicago special," leaves Denver at 9 a. m. and arrives in Chicago at 3:15 p. m. the next day, making the run, after deducting one hour for change from mountain to central time, in twenty-nine hours.

The line between Denver and Omaha is thirteen hours and forty-five minutes, and all trains, whether East or West bound, are vestibuled throughout, but are made up of the best sleepers, chair cars and dining cars, fitted up with all the modern character and latest improvements of the Pullman Company.

The Burlington has now four Fast Flyers ("F. F. F.") between Denver and Chicago, and the question may well be asked How can such phenomenally fast time be made with no accident of any character and with the safety and comfort of its passengers absolutely assured?

The answer is found in its excellent roadbed, superior equipment, and motive power, and in the perfect system of its operating department and in the uniform courtesy of its employes.
