THE BRIGGS CASE.

Explanation of the Views of the Committee Whose Duty It was to Investigate it.

THEY WERE ACTUATED BY KINDNESS AND FAIRNESS.

No Long Debate Anticipated, Although the Matter Should be Carefully Discussed.

By Telegraph to the News.

DR. PATTON.

Address to the Presbyterians on the Briggs Case.

DETROIT, May 28.—After the usual preliminaries at the Presbyterian general assembly this morning, Dr. Patton spoke a few words explaining the views of the committee on the Briggs case. He said: "You are, no doubt, ready to credit our committee with a desire to do simply what is best. Recognizing our liability to error, we have had only the desire to do what was demanded by the exigencies of the case in a spirit of kindness, and recognizing the rights of all persons concerned. If the discussion brings any new light we will welcome it. We are ready to give the reason for every decision we have made. We hope there will be no long debate, although we are prepared for it. A proposition to terminate the usefulness of a minister should be discussed carefully."

Arrested for Aiding and Abetting a Fight.

LYNN, Mass., May 28.—Matthew McCann, referee, and Andrew J. Gardiner, one of the managers, of the late Burns-Tracy glove fight Monday night, have been arrested, charged with aiding and abetting the contest.

A Congressman's Many Crimes.

CITY OF MEXICO, via Galveston, May 28.—Senor Rojas, member of the lower house of Congress and former judge of the Supreme court, accused of theft, robbery, fraud and other crimes and who claimed immunity on the ground of being a deputy, has been tried before Congress. It was decided to deprive him of his privileges as congressman and surrender him to the courts.

The Czar Travelling.

LONDON, May 28.—The Times' correspondent at St. Petersburg says: The Czar has started secretly for Moscow and the whole railway route is strongly guarded by troops.

ANOTHER VERSION.

A St. Petersburg dispatch to Reuter's Telegraph company says the Czar's visit to Moscow has been postponed.

A Mutiny Among the Soldiers Feared.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., May 28.—The sheriff of this county has asked the Governor to send arms and ammunition, as an outbreak of the soldiers is possible when some of their number, who have been indicted for complicity in the Hunt lynching, will be arrested today. The governor has sent the necessary orders.

The English and the Portuguese.

LONDON, May 28.—A dispatch from Lourenzo Marquez, South Africa, says another fight has taken place between the British and Portuguese, on the banks of the Bembe river. The Portuguese were defeated.

Baron Hirsh on the Hebrew Question.

PARIS, May 28.—Baron Hirsh, in an interview regarding his plans for the amelioration of the condition of the Hebrews in Russia, said there are two ways to do it. The first plan is to acquaint the Czar with the truth in regard to the cruelties perpetrated daily in his name. The baron said he was convinced that an appeal to the Czar's sentiments of justice, humanity and mercy would not be in vain. The other plan is, that some orderly and method should be established in expelling the Hebrews from Russia. He continued as follows: "If the Russian government wants to get rid of a million of Hebrews, let it allow many people who, like myself, are prepared to make the greatest sacrifices in their behalf, to save them from the privations, hardships, discomforts and sickness which naturally attend a wholesale and disorganized expulsion.

Frightened the Authorities.

NEW YORK, May 28.—An Acapulco dispatch dated yesterday says: The "Esmeralds" frightened the authorities of this town to such a degree that at six this evening the Chilian warship was coaling. She will probably leave here tomorrow.

Extraordinary Conduct of an Army Officer.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—The War Department is now giving its attention to the conduct of Captain Markley, Company I, twenty-fourth infantry, now at San Carlos, Arizona. From time to time reports have been coming in to the effect that this officer was having trouble with his command and court martial after court martial has been ordered upon his instance, to try enlisted men. It was finally quietly charged by the men that their officer was persecuting them. Meanwhile, news came that the captain had thirty days in which to arrest. Secretary Proctor himself took cognizance of this extraordinary state of affairs and ordered the release of the soldiers without court martial. It is now probable that a court of inquiry will be ordered, and if they so recommend, court martial will follow.

Secretary Blaine Getting Well.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Dr. Dennis said this morning that Blaine is getting along very well and would leave the city for Bar Harbor, Maine, early next week.

Sir John's Health.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 28.—Sir John McDonald had an attack of indigestion yesterday. The report that he had congestion of the lungs is incorrect. His condition is not in any way alarming.

One of the essentials to a good photograph is a clean face—not a relatively but an absolutely clean one—and it is said that photographers have much trouble because they do not like to make a suggestion which might be resented by their sitters.

NEWS IN A NUTSHELL.

Lord John Russell died May 28, 1878.

Noah Webster, of dictionary fame, died May 28, 1843.

Thomas Moore, the poet, was born May 28, 1779.

Agassiz, the famous naturalist and Harvard professor, was born May 28, 1807.

The great fire in Quebec May 28, 1845, by which 1650 houses were burnt. There was another fire in June the same year, when 1300 houses were burned.

Pineapple juice is said to cure the worst cases of diphtheria. The juice should be squeezed into the throat, it being certainly in its nature, cuts out the diphtheria mucous immediately and gives instant relief.

If the world is coming to an end in 1892, as Lieutenant Totten of Yale says it will, what's the use of all these heavy trials? Only wait a few years, brethren, and you may refer these disputed questions to the ultimate tribunal.

It is estimated that 100,000 Americans visited Europe last year and spent $100,000,000. Have we taken a contract to support these countries? What with the money we spend there and the people they send over to us to feed, we are very nearly doing it.

The use of asbestos has now become so general that there seems no longer any reason for being burned. Complete suits for firemen, fireproof mantles, mittens for handling heated articles are made and entire dresses of the material are designed for women working in dangerous proximity to fire.

Ellington, the man who enticed New York girls to New Orleans to make waitresses of them in the lowest dance houses, was sentenced on the 22d inst. to five years and eleven months imprisonment. The only bars shed over the sentence were shed by Ellington himself.

Clement Wragge, the Ben Nevis meteorologist, threw overboard 150 well corked bottle messengers during the passage from Australia to England in 1888. Only six of them were heard of afterward. One was picked up at the entrance of Mobile bay, after having made a circuit of 5,000 miles in 240 years. It had drifted from 37 degree north latitude, 38 deg. west longitude, through the Caribbean sea into the Gulf of Mexico.

Prohibition in Maine works in a remarkable manner. Each saloon keeper pays a man $2 a day to attend an electric button at the front windows to distinguish desirable from undesirable customers. It is further agreed that in case of a successful raid the man who pulls the button is to go to jail as the proprietor of the place, his pay continuing during sentence. The real proprietor would then get another dummy and the trade go merrily on. This it will be seen that it costs judge a day to beat the prohibition laws.

A fashionable scandal is just beginning to look out, in which Mr. and Mrs. Beaumont, well known in London society, are the principals. Mr. Beaumont is enormously rich. He married four months ago the widow of the late General Sir George Colley, who was killed in the Boer war, and a daughter of Gen. Hamilton. The reason assigned is incompatibility of temper on both sides. Mr. Beaumont wants his wife to leave him and she absolutely refuses to quit his home. Spicy developments are anticipated.

An Ohio millionaire has been discovered who has not paid taxes since 1862. At 5 o'clock on the 27th inst. papers were filed against Governor James M. Ashley, president of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Michigan railroad, in which it is charged that since 1862 over $10,000,000 worth of bonds and stock of the road held by Ashley have not been returned upon the tax duplicate. Governor Ashley is well known as one of the leaders in Congress during the war, and led the fight in the House against President Johnson in 1868, when he was a member of Congress.

New York will soon have another newspaper. Announcement that Col. Cockerill and George W. Turner, both of the New York World, and a syndicate had agreed to start an independent city newspaper, is supplemented today by the positive statement that the plant of the Commercial Advertiser has already been purchased, and the new company will take formal possession next Monday. The price paid is not known, but the new company will have a capital stock of $750,000. It is undoubted that a morning edition will be one of the features of the new enterprise.

James MacHenry, known in New York as Jay Gould's nemesis, died in London on the 27th inst. Mr. MacHenry was a romantic and remarkable career. Although born a plain American, he became the protector of Empress and queens, and his social acquaintance on both sides of the Atlantic was very large and included most distinguished people. Mr. MacHenry was the son of a physician, and was born in Philadelphia eighty years ago. He was a wonderfully genial man and a captivating talker. One of his boasts was that after fifteen minutes' conversation with Queen Isabella of Spain he induced the lady to assertle $750,000 to one of his schemes.

Waterville, Wis., has a sensational Wolfe Cup outrage. Lawrence Dreer was awakened at 1 a. m. on the 27th inst. From an upper window he saw twenty armed men wearing white masks and armed with clubs and whips. They demanded admission, which was refused, upon which they assaulted the house, breaking the door and all windows. Dreer produced a double-barreled shotgun and fired at his assailants, causing them to beat a retreat. No cause for the outrage is known, but it is believed the messengers from Durand and assailed the wrong house by mistake. At least three of the men are known, but it is doubtful whether arrests will be made, as no one was hurt and there is fear of retaliation if active steps are taken.

Ditch, the man who assaulted Miss Gerber, the schoolteacher, near Peoria, a few days ago, was arrested on the 27th inst. The Tazewell county farmers who pursued the wretch on the path, drove him into the heavy timber in the Illinois river bottoms, and the theory is that some time during the night he stole a boat and escaped to Peoria county shore. He made strong denial of the crime, and stated that he spent last night in Peoria. When pursued down river, he could not say where. Where he made the assault on Miss Gerber he wore a white mask over his face, but the lady accurately described his clothing, and even the peculiarities of his voice. Ditch has on his hands a number of scratches supposed to have been inflicted by Miss Gerber during the struggle.

Jesse Pomeroy, the "boy with the white eye," who is serving a life-sentence in the Massachusetts penitentiary for a number of atrocious murders of children, had dirted and sawed off the lock from the door of his cell in the "dark," where the worst prisoners are confined at State prison. The drill and saw were found in the cell, and how Pomeroy got them is a mystery. Pomeroy had sawed his iron bed in two and taken off an iron leg with which to shave back the bolt. Pomeroy is now completing the fifteenth year of a life sentence imposed for a series of the most horrible crimes that were incurred in this country. He had made half a dozen attempts to escape, and the guards usually once take their eyes off his cage at night. Once he tried to blow off the lock of his door with powder and was badly injured with the explosion.

A low salt is now going on in the New York courts in which Edison is one of the plaintiffs. He maintains that all the systems of incandescent lighting are infringements on his patent. Edison has a patent on a glass globe, within which is a carbon spiral of peculiar metallic fibre, connected by platinum leading in wires. Thitherto he has not finished in the particular system form of incandescent, but was the first patent showing a filament so formed that conductor of current in any shape. The Edison company expect to virtue of their patent to be entitled exclusively to enjoin the use of every incandescent lamp. The defendants dispute the allegation that Edison is the sole originator of the system of incandescent lighting. They say that the patent in question only covers the particular lamp describes, in it, and that high resistance incandescent lamps are the work of a number of inventors in this country and in England. If it be said that verdict in this action means royalties of $25 a lamp year for the Edison company, besides a settlement in full for the lamps that have been made by other concerns since the patent was granted in Edison in 1880.

ITEMS FROM EMERY.

That County is Developing Rapidly and Solidly.

Editor Deseret News:

Quite an extensive trip has been made through Emery county and it must be acknowledged that few counties in Utah are making more rapid progress. The population is steadily increasing, and the agricultural and mineral resources are being developed. Coal and asphaltum mines are being opened up in various parts, and it requires no great stretch of imagination to observe that Emery will yet be one of the richest counties in Utah.

The settlers of the town of Emery, or Muddy, in the southwest corner, two years ago, were scattered over a large area of country, but now are located on a townsite and are utilizing to good advantage the adjacent farming lands.

An excellent school was in session in the school house, which was well furnished last year, with automatic seats.

The towns of Ferron and Molen are also steadily progressing. A new canal is being made to supply the last-named town with better water for culinary purposes.

Orangeville is anticipating quite a boom with a prospect of a railroad from Price and the erection of coke ovens in the vicinity. There is an abundance of coal in the adjacent hills, which is said to be excellent for coking purposes.

This is one of the oldest settlements in the county, and the residents have established good homes, and are blessed with fine orchards which produce an excellent quality of fruit. About three miles below is the county seat of Emery—which is a town of Castle Dale.

Very little progress has been made of late years and its growth is not as observable as that of other towns in the county, and, as a consequence, less taxes collected during the past winter, in the upper rooms of a dwelling house which were not well adapted to the requirements of such a school. Recent Day, the principal, labored energetically and accomplished good results, considering the disadvantages and lack of school apparatus and teaching. This, however, will be remedied in the future, as orders have been placed for a full supply of these apparatuses.

A new meeting house is being erected, and this gives the town quite an imposing appearance. The district school house is well furnished but is much too small.

Huntington is the largest town in Emery county, and is still growing. Several mercantile establishments are vieing for the trade of the vicinity. A large and substantial brick meeting house is in course of erection, which, when completed, will be the finest Church edifice in the county. Graded schools have been conducted in various parts of the district, under the supervision of the principal—Prof. J. W. Nixon. Huntington has a school population of over three hundred, but is very much in need of a good, central school house. The district school house only accommodates about eighty children, and others are provided for in rented rooms, but quite a number have been debarred from school privileges for lack of room.

A Latter-day Saints' seminary has also been in session, and was well attended, and all the schools were filled to their utmost capacity.

A meeting was held recently to consider the propriety of bonding the district, in order to increase the school facilities and build an additional house. The writer was present and was well entertained by the opposition. It is to be hoped that a more progressive spirit will prevail and that school houses will be built that will do credit to the town and add to its stability and usefulness.

Cleveland is a small town in the north of the last named, and is progressing favorably, and its fine location will prove attractive to settlers. A school district has been organized and a spirit of progress is manifest.

A canal, also has been established to accommodate the people, and, with the assurance of water and fine farming land, we judge that Cleveland will be a growing town. Two years ago, your correspondent could not find a Wellington. Ranches and farms were located for miles along the Price river, but a town had not been located. Wellington is now an organized ward, presided over by Bishop McIlallie, who has induced new life into the district. A large, frame meeting house has been erected, which would look to credit to many older settlements. Greater attention is being given to educational sections, as everything seems to be prospering, indicating that the people appreciate the benefits of an organization.

Six miles west is the town of Price, also located on Price river, and this is the principal shipping point in Emery county. Freight for Fort Duchesne and the settlements to the south of the county is distributed here. A number of stores cater for the trade. Among them are the Emery County Mercantile Institution, Gilson Asphaltum company and Price Trading company. Emery County bank is connected with the first named institution.

Price river furnishes an abundance of water, and only substantial reservoirs are needed to cause Price to develop into an important town. We understand that a reservoir is now being constructed, south of the town, by which an abundance of water will be stored.

The school is now in session taught by H. G. Mathis, but two schools have been held during the winter.

Our notice of Emery county would not be complete without a brief reference to the new town of Spring Glen, about six miles west of Price. A very fine school district have been organized and a school house for a good and permanent term is erected. A large canal is being built, and, by tunneling through the hills, a good supply of water will be obtained from Price river. The residents are actively engaged in fencing and planting orchards and shade trees, and their fine residences and well cultivated farms indicate a spirit of progress. "CALEB."
