DID NOT INTEND TO KILL.

She Was Only Celebrating Her Mother's Birthday.

GAMBLING CASES DISPOSED OF.

Chamberlain's Apiary Raided by Juvenile Thieves.—A Rude Carriage Thief Convicted.—Other Items.

MISS Edith Ashby, twelve years old, who resides with her mother on Ninth South street, was arrested by the police on Saturday night on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

The complaining witness was Mrs. Louisa Eggleston—a neighbor of the Ashby family. The affair was investigated in the Police court this morning before Justice Orse. It was alleged that the youthful offender fired a revolver with the intention of killing her mother. In rendering a decision the defendant explained to the court with tears trickling down her cheeks that the charge was the result of vexation in fact, and it did her great injustice. She admitted discharging the weapon, but said that it was pointed in the opposite direction from where her mother was standing, and that her only reason for firing it was to celebrate her mother's birthday.

In response to a question put by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Dickson as to whether she was accustomed to handling firearms, and if her parents approved of it, the defendant answered in the affirmative. Mr. Eichner then proceeded to deliver a dissertation on the criminal outcome of such practices, referring the child's son to pay with firearms. The court followed briefly in the same strain, and concluded his remarks by saying that he would suspend sentence, inasmuch as no criminal intent had been established.

THIRD GAMBLING CASE.

John Bird, a sporting man, who was arrested a few days ago a charge of having outbanked a "tenderfoot" out of a considerable amount of money, in a gambling joint in this city, appeared for trial promptly at 10 o'clock. The prosecuting witness failed to materialize and Bird's cash money—$180—was returned.

Charles Steele, a confederate of Bird's, did not appear until whatever minutes after the appointed time for trial and his security of $100 was declared forfeited. Mr. Newton, counsel for the defendant, said that the case should be retrieved, but the prosecution objected, and a spirited colloquy then ensued. The court was asked to and and replied that the defense could now only seek redress by appealing the case to a higher court if it were dissatisfied with the result.

HONEY THIEVES.

A gang of juvenile thieves made a raid on Chamberlain's apiary on State street, between Tenth and Eleventh South streets, on Saturday evening and partially demolished a number of hives and carried away a considerable amount of honey. Two of the young scoundrels were caught in the act and placed under arrest. The older and probably more guilty ones made their escape. A warrant was issued for their arrest today. The couple who were captured were arraigned before Justice Orse this morning. After receiving a lecture from the court they were discharged.

HOLD A HACK CARRIAGE.

An individual who gave his name as George Smith, who is a baby carriage by profession, had been temporarily left standing on Commercial street, in front of the Tontine restaurant. He was arrested and lanced in the city jail where he passed the night. This morning he was taken before Justice Orse and subjected gently. A sentence of twenty days' imprisonment was imposed.

FRAUD PRACTITIONERS.

Julius Cane, J. J. Brown and C. F. Conner, a trio of drunken peace disturbers, were arrested by Deputy Marshal Calder on the Warm Springs road this on Saturday night. They were taken to police headquarters, where they deposited $10 each to appear for trial at 10 a. m. today. They did not, however, "show up," and their security was forfeited.

MR. WANTLAND RETURNS

From the Trans-Mississippi Congress at Omaha.

MR. C. E. Wantland, of the Union Pacific, has returned from Omaha, where he has been attending the Trans-Mississippi Congress. The convention was slimly attended, the largest representatives being from Texas, Iowa and Nebraska. Montana and Utah had two delegates each. Nevada and Idaho had none. The convention was in session three days and produced the silver resolution adopted by the Trans-Mississippi Congress held in Denver in May last, which declared for the free coinage of silver.

Senator Warren, of Wyoming was the special champion of the resolution. Missouri and Colorado were the strongest opponents of the measure.

The convention also endorsed the platform adopted by the Irrigation Congress, recently held in this city. Considerable time was devoted to the resolution calling for the abolishment of the interstate commerce commission, but final action in the matter was deferred until the next meeting of the Trans-Mississippi Congress which will convene in New Orleans in February next.

The basis of representation was enlarged so as to provide for the attendance of a greater number of delegates from the various States and Territories interested therein. A number of able papers were read and several resolutions on general subjects passed.

CRIMINAL BUSINESS SUSPENDED

Trial Cases Will Now Go on in Judge Zane's Court.

The further disposition of criminal business in the Third District Court has been fixed on the only part of December and in the District Court Judge Zane will assist Judge Anderson in clearing off the cases on the long still docket. His Honor states in this morning with the action reported below:

A CONVERSE OF CONTRACT.

Henry C. Hemelich, plaintiff, vs. Moyle C. Fox, executor of the estate of Sarah McRibben, deceased, commenced.

The plaintiff was represented by Attorneys Arthur Brown and F. S. Richards; Judge Marshall and Attorney Dickson were for the defendants.

On the part of the plaintiff it was stated that the deceased, on or about March 1st, 1890, arranged by correspondence to sell and deliver to him within forty days after said date 1414 shares of the capital stock of a corporation known as the St. Louis & Montana Transportation Co., organized under the laws of Missouri, for the gross sum of $92,100; that plaintiff then and there accepted the offer to sell the stock, promising to pay for it $65,100 on delivery. Before the time of the completion of the contract, however, had arrived Mr. McRibben died, and the executor now declined to fulfill the contract. The stock in question, it was said, at the time it should have been delivered, was worth $100 per share, or of the gross valuation of $141,400, and there had been offered upon the same during the period which has since intervened a division amounting to the gross sum of $85,484, making a total value of $226,884; that the actual value of the stock, between the date of the contract, between the price of purchase money and the value then at the date when the same should have been delivered, was $93,784. Plaintiff demands judgment for the amount last named and costs of suit.

A quantity of correspondence and depositions on the subject between the plaintiff and the late Mrs. McRibben were read by Attorney Brown, in proof of the contract.

The case was in progress this afternoon, and seemed likely to occupy the remainder of the day's sitting.

OTHER NOTES.

Criminal business having been set down as a dead season, Judge Zane has today opened his court for the trial of civil suit involving a question of contract, one of the parties to which is the late Mormon Prophet's widow, who is the defendant.

Junor Sutton, whose little fall out with Attorney Marsh on Saturday morning landed him subsequently in Commissioner Norrell's court, on a charge of assault, came up fresh and smiling as ever in Judge Zane's court this morning, waiting the court's call of his name from the petit jury panel.

The outlook for a new trial in the Hewlett Dynamite case was brighter yesterday than it had been for weeks, Judge Zane, with Attorney Hamilton as the defendant's counsel, having taken the matter under advisement. Two of the jurors had been once caught in the act and placed under arrest. The older and probably more guilty ones made their escape. A warrant was issued for their arrest today. The couple who were captured were arraigned before Justice Orse this morning. After receiving a lecture from the court they were discharged.

GEORGE SIMS

Looking for a Place Where to Invest English Capital.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 26.—George N. Sims, managing director of the Northern Pacific Co., (Inc.) of London and New York, was in the city for a short time. "I have been made the representative of about $5,000,000 of English capital and am directed to place it where the greatest benefit will be derived," said Sims. "I am not to use it for speculation, but to invest it in safe real estate, factories and industries. It is my intention to go to Tacoma, Seattle, Portland, Oregon and other places along Puget Sound. I shall probably put a great deal of the money in Everett and support towns, as we believe the Panama canal will be opened in five years, perhaps less; then there are two great outlets now under consideration that will affect the northwestern interests greatly. One is the establishment of a line of steamers between Puget Sound, China and Japan. The other is the laying of a submarine cable between the same places. These enterprises are not fully matured, but I can assure you they are almost certainties. I am not interested in either, but should like to see them. They will be beneficial. Sims was asked to tell who were the men back of the two enterprises, but he refused, except in so far as stating that part were Englishmen and others were Eastern capitalists.

The captain of the "Charlwood," his wife, son and governess and the stewardess, together with all the hands, officers and six of the seamen, a total of sixteen persons, were drowned in spite of the desperate efforts made by the crew, which succeeded in lowering the boats of the collision, to rescue them. The efforts of the would-be rescuers were largely hampered by the darkness which prevailed at the time of the accident. Drugs, Sickness, Death, versus No Drugs, Health, Life.

Dr. Wilbur Hall's Pamphlet on a Marvelous Triumph over Disease without Medicine.

The full knowledge of this discovery, by which all further outlays for medicine or losses from ill health may be avoided, costs but $4.00, and will last a person for life.

He also publishes "The Microcosm," a monthly journal of substantiation and collateral discussions. Fifty cents a year.

The pamphlet which unfolds the new treatment is sold at $4.00, on the purchaser's pledge not to "blow or boast" but to divulge the treatment out of his or her family.

It is full of the most important suggestions to the care and cure of disease without drugs of any kind, with the distinct understanding that after four years' faithful trial of the new treatment, if not found satisfactory, the $4.00 will be refunded on the return of the pamphlet, with a promise on the part of the purchaser that neither he nor his family will thereafter divulge its contents or use the treatment.

One copy of "Microcosm" may be had free on application.
