SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

INSTANTLY relieves and permanently cures this loathsome disease in all its varying stages. It possesses the soothing and healing properties of Manna, herbs and barks in their essential form, free from every foreign contamination, and in this respect differs from every other known remedy. In one short year it has found its way from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and wherever known has become the standard remedy for the treatment of Catarrh. The proprietors have been waited upon by gentlemen of national reputation who have been cured by this remedy, and who have, at considerable expense and personal trouble, spread the good news throughout the circles in which they move. When you hear a wealthy gentleman of intelligence and refinement say, "I owe my life to Sanford's Radical Cure," you may feel assured that it is an article of great value, and worthy to be classed among the standard medical specifics of the day.

THE benefit I derive from its daily use is to me incalculable.
HENRY WELLS, of Wells, Fargo & Co.

IT has cured me after twelve years of uninterrupted suffering.
GEO. W. HOUGHTON, Waltham, Mass.

I FOLLOWED the directions to the letter and am happy to say I have had a permanent cure.
E. W. GRAY, M. D., Muscatine, Iowa.

I HAVE recommended it to quite a number of my friends, all of whom have expressed to me their high estimate of its value and good effects with them.
WM. BOWEN, 225 Pine St., St. Louis.

AFTER using two bottles I find myself permanently cured. I have since recommended over one hundred bottles with the greatest success.
WM. W. ALMY, 129 Harrison Ave., Boston.

WE have sold Sanford's Radical Cure for nearly one year and can say candidly that we never sold a similar preparation that gave such universal satisfaction. We have yet to learn of the first complaint.
S. D. BALDWIN & CO., Washington, Ind.

THE cure effected in my case by Sanford's Radical Cure was so remarkable that it seemed to those who had suffered without relief from any of the usual remedies that it could not be true. I therefore made affidavit to it before Seth J. Thomas, Esq., Justice of the Peace, Boston.
GEORGE Y. DESMORE, Druggist, Boston.

Each package of Sanford's Radical Cure contains Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for its use in all cases. Price, $1.00. For sale by all wholesale and retail druggists and dealers throughout the United States and Canadas. WEEKS & POTTER, General Agents and Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.

COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTER

An Electro-Galvanic Battery combined with a highly Medicated Strengthening Plaster, forming the best Plaster for pains and aches in the World of Medicine.

A MORBID SWELLING.

Gentlemen,—I sent for one of COLLIN'S VOLTAIC PLASTERS, and it has been of great benefit to me. Inclosing a dollar, my left side that two physicians pronounced Enlargement of the Spleen, and one pronounced it an Ovarian Tumor.
A. BISTER.
Centralia, Ind., March 20, 1877.

THEY ARE THE BEST.

Gentlemen,—Inclosed you will find $2.25, and I wish you would send me another dozen of your COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTERS. By the above you will see that I am distributing them to others in some way even if I am not able to be up and around. There is a great demand for your plasters when we have given out that all plasters were good for nothing, and now join with me in saying to the world that your plasters have kept sales this winter better than I have before in three years. Wished I could have heard of your plasters before.
LORETTA M. CROSS.
Ballston Spa, N. Y., March 27, 1877.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Excellence of the American Mechanical Collection at the Exhibition—American Inventions—The Type-Writer—The Electric Pen—A Machine that will Make a Pair of Shoes from the Hide in Fifteen Minutes—Recent Improvements in Military Firearms, etc., etc.

PARIS, Aug. 24th, 1878.

Though the American section at Paris is not large compared with those of other manufacturing nations, there are present so many of the contrivances which illustrate subtile mechanical genius, so well recognized already, that "Yankee" is almost a synonym of inventor, that the little railed off spaces of the American collection is to amateurs in mechanism, a most fascinating stroll. Few of these contributions occupy more than a few square feet, but many of them are already widely known. The writing machine, by which the operator touching a series of keys, like those of an accordeon, prints his thoughts, or anything that he may desire to copy, more rapidly than they can be written legibly with a pen; the sewing machines, whose name is legion, and which here are illustrated by new variations for special work, a little device attached to one making it an embroidering machine. The telephone and phonograph are here, and besides them an electric pen by the same inventor—a pen which, carrying a tiny electromotor at the top, drives a needle through the paper 10,800 times per minute, forming a stencil sheet through which, with an ink roller, copies may be produced more rapidly and economically than with a lithographic press; and of an excellence that must be seen to be appreciated.

One of the finest types of American invention is the flexible shaft for transferring power around corners and to out of the way places. One sees the operator holding what at first sight, seems to be a small hose, but furnished with an auger at its extremity, with which he thrusts and bores in every direction—over his head, under his feet, to the right, to the left—it upsets all one's ideas of regularity in machinery. Pharoah could not have been more surprised at seeing Moses' rod turned into a serpent than some of the spectators were to see this rope-like device eating into the planks set on all sides for it to work on. It is as good as a piece of legerdemain. It is really a "flexible shaft", a cable of steel wires wound coat over coat, each successive coating in the reverse direction of the preceding, until the strength required is attained, and in which longitudinal flexibility is combined with circumferential rigidity.

Close by stands a "wire cork-screw machine," which catches a straight piece of steel wire and throws it out a corkscrew of such temper that it may be driven through an inch deal plank and not yield a hair's breadth. The deftest waiter will take as long to pull a cork as this machine to make a half dozen cork screws of an exceptionally good quality. Here is a screw-cutting machine. One tool cuts the rod down to the dimensions of the screw, another cuts it off, having the head the full size of the red, another takes it from the last and passes it on to have the thread cut, a cutter passes by and leaves the head slotted, another, with four iron fingers, takes it to a fifth cutter where the head is finished, when still another tool comes to push it into a pan placed to receive it. No intervention is needed until another rod is wanted.

A set of shoe-making apparatus, in another enclosure, takes the leather in the hide and turns out, with slight manual application, a pair of shoes, sewed, pegged or screwed, in about 15 minutes.

A novel planing machine shows a revolving cutter fixed in a disk which is, by means of an elbow arrangement of bands and pulleys, moved in any direction over the board to be planed, giving a very remarkable finish to the surface. In general, however, the wood-working apparatus is not so interesting, and by far less extensive than at Philadelphia.

It is a little remarkable, since necessity is the mother of invention, that we, who are not a warlike people, should excel these old bellicose nations in the construction of fire arms. The Remington Co., exhibit two new forms of military guns that are obviously an improvement on all simple breach-loaders. The breach block in one is the same as in the Martini, Henry rifle, but the opening is effected by the hammer, and can be worked by the thumb of the right hand. The motions are fewer and the action simpler than in the Henry rifle. But a more interesting arm is a breach loder on the piston system, with an auxilliary magazine so arranged that a reserve of seven cartridges may be held and the gun used as a simple breach-loder until a critical moment when, by pushing aside the key of the magazine, the reserve is brought into play and the seven shots may be fired with aim in ten seconds.

Spring Crops, etc.

SPRINGDALE, Sept. 8, 1878,

Editors Deseret News:

At about 10 o'clock p.m. of Tuesday last, the sky was suddenly enshrouded in a black mantle, and fierce and vivid lightnings flashed through the air, the report of which was almost terrific. The storm soon commenced with a sound like the rushing of ten troubled waters, and balls of frozen water fell, from a quarter of an inch to two inches in diameter. The hail stripped a field of corn for Brother Joseph Millet, about two miles above town. Melons, cucumbers, etc., were badly mangled. A large portion of our water ditch was completely filled with rock, gravel, sand, etc., adding to the already almost insupportable labor of the farmer. Storms have been so frequent of late that our time is mostly employed in ditching.

The rains have been mostly on the mountains, rather to the detriment of our crops, and yet the prospects for harvest are pretty good, wheat (which came off at an early date), was unusually good, although the number of acres were few. There is quite an amount of sickness in the Rockville Ward, some of our aged mothers in Israel are dangerously ill with the chills and fever, which is the prevailing sickness. Union is on the increase in this ward. Fruit is so plentiful, and laborers and lumber so scarce, that a portion must rot on the ground.

Yours very truly,
S. K. GIFFORD.

Rheumatism.

This disease is a standing "conundrum" to medical men, but Dr. Julius Pollock thinks that he has at least cleared the subject of some confusion that surrounded it. He says the term rheumatism is applied to several different diseases which are essentially distinct, although they have certain features in common. The two chief forms are articular and muscular rheumatism. The former is a disease of early adult life, more or less acute in character, with a tendency to get well in about six weeks. Articular rheumatism, when all severe, is called rheumatic fever. It attacks the synovial membranes and also the similar serous membranes, especially of the heart. There is a distinct predisposition to this disease in certain persons, which is sometimes inherited. The immediate exciting cause is exposure to cold or "taking a chill." It never attacks the muscles. Muscular rheumatism is a disease of middle and advanced life, is commonly chronic, and will continue indefinitely if not treated. It attacks, not the muscles themselves, but the tendons and other parts of the muscle which have a similar anatomical structure. Muscular rheumatism does not attack the heart, and is rarely fatal.—Journal of Chemistry.
