What the "Medical Record" Has to Say About It.

There is now no doubt that the epidemic of influenza, which has become epidemic in this country and in scattered localities over the country. It is also quite evident that its general characteristics in connection with the prevailing type of influenza in Germany and France, Portugal and Italy, is of such a mild type that it would scarcely be judged to be a dangerous epidemic. It is, however, a dangerous epidemic, and it is
