TWO THINGS TO AVOID.

THE death of Richard Fowler, whose body was buried to-day, brings sorrow and distress to at least two families. We have no doubt that his slayer feels an acute consciousness of the wrong he has done. We have no desire or disposition to dilate upon the offence nor dwell upon its sad consequences. But we wish to point out two evils connected with the lamentable occurrence which ought to be considered and avoided:

Indulgence in outbursts of anger is one. While every passion of human nature is proper when rightly controlled, there is none but brings evil when allowed to run riot. If man give way to ebullitions of wrath the disposition to do so will increase with using. If David Gallifant had contracted the habit of curbing his temper instead of indulging it on trifling occasions, in all probability he would not now be waiting the judgment of a legal tribunal for a deadly act committed in the heat of passion. Let every hasty person, male and female, beware of anger and strive to guard against its ebullitions.

The other evil is the practice of carrying deadly weapons. Officers of the law and persons in extreme danger from violence may be justified in carrying such instruments of defence. But ordinarily there is no need for it. In this city and Territory, except upon extraordinary occasions, civilians have no necessity for carrying dagger or pistol. Some young men imagine it looks brave to carry a revolver in the hip pocket. Not so, it is rather a mark of cowardice, it shows that the wearer does not feel able to "hoe his own row" with his fellows. If David Gallifant had not been in the habit of carrying a pistol, in all probability he would not now be in his present jeopardy.

The practice should be discouraged in all civilized places, and ordinarily it should be frowned down as a savage custom unfit for decent society. And the propriety of waiting for any action, either of speech or deed, until violent anger has subsided, must be recognized and conceded by every mind imbued with common reason.

THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE HORROR.

THE shocking catastrophe at the Brooklyn Bridge reflects very heavily on the officials who permitted people to crowd upon the structure in such numbers and such a manner that it was impossible for the throng to pass over in safety. The stupidity which permitted crowds to enter upon the narrow footway from both ends of the bridge until the tide of humanity became a solidified mass, pressed together by an ever-increasing forces was simply amazing.

After such a successful effort of mechanical genius and skill as the grand bridge which connects the two great cities, it is lamentable that this awful tragedy should take place upon it through terrible blundering and criminal mismanagement. The affair ought to be fully investigated and the blame placed where it properly belongs.

A surging crowd generally loses its judgment and self-preservation, often banishing all regard for the safety and lives of others. But the wrong lies at the door of the managers who permitted the jam of passengers, and they appear to be responsible for the terrible results of the calamity.

THE TARIFF QUESTION.

A GREAT deal is being said upon the attitude of the Democracy on the tariff question. The coming political struggle will no doubt turn on this point. Protection and free trade will meet in battle array and the result cannot yet be foretold with reasonable certainty.

That there are some industries in this country that need to be protected until they are able to stand alone and contend without extraneous support for existence and success, cannot be successfully controverted. And on the other hand that protection in many cases means only the enrichment of great corporations at the expense of the public, must be evident to every well informed individual.

Now although free trade is generally considered the doctrine of the Democracy, and protection that of the Republicans, the line between these parties is not very rigidly drawn, and there are many Republican free traders and protectionist Democrats.

The latest position on this important subject taken by live and progressive Democrats is a tariff for revenue, and the explanation of this given by the American Register, which is a true exponent of genuine Democratic principles, is so plain and pointed, and ought to be so well understood by those who are watching the tide of public affairs that we clip it entire, as follows:

On the tariff question let the distinction between a protective tariff and a revenue tariff never be forgotten or overlooked. The main object of the former is protection, not revenue, while the main object of the latter is revenue, not protection. With the former revenue is simply an incident, and where the protection becomes prohibitory no revenue at all is produced, while with the latter (a revenue tariff,) protection can be afforded as an incident where necessary and proper and dictated by sound policy. Under a revenue tariff productive industry and labor can be fostered, encouraged and protected, where necessary, and practicable without creating monopolies. But a protective tariff being that which makes protection its chief object, gives unjust advantages to the few over the many, and creates monopolies. The protective tariff is the tariff of the Republican party and its leaders, while the revenue tariff is the tariff of the Democratic party. Never forget or overlook this distinction, well founded and grounded upon principle. The history of tariff legislation in Congress, from 1789 to the present time, shows this distinction. The opposition to the Democracy have always insisted on a protective tariff, while the tariff for revenue with merely incidental protection has always been the policy of the Democratic party. And such was the doctrine of the leading Democrats in Congress up to the close of the last session. The Democracy has never at any time repudiated incidental protection or encouragement to domestic industry. And the attempt, which has been made to exclude entirely from the Democratic platform the idea of incidental protection or encouragement to home productive industry has been, whether intentional or not, an attempt to keep the Republican party in power.

DOCTORS, TAKE YOUR OWN MEDICINE.

THE Christian Union has had much to say occasionally about the "Mormon" system of marriage, which is an integral part of their religion and is inspired, entered into regulated and governed by religious motives, ceremonies and ordinances. This of course it has a right to do if it discusses the subject in a proper manner. But in view of the unkind, not to say intolerant and unchristian manner in which it has treated upon this matter, we respectfully call the attention of its "Reverend" editors to the following sentiments, which we clip from the columns of their paper:

Why should you make your conscience a law for other people? Why should you decide what is right or wrong for your neighbor to do? Who made you a judge over him? It is true that conscience is your supreme guide, and must be implicitly obeyed. It is true that you must do what your moral judgment, with all the light it can obtain, decrees to be right for you to do. But who gave it authority over your neighbor? What reason have you to think that it is any better conscience than your neighbor's conscience? If a man plumes himself on being always right in his judgment on questions of expediency, and looks with contempt or indifference on the judgment of men as wise as he, we call him self-conceited. Why is he less self-conceited if he thinks his conscience is superior to all other consciences, and he looks with contempt or indifference on the moral judgment of men as good as he? Why not compare moral judgments and reach conclusions by conference and consultation?

In the home life, among pious people, no more prolific cause of heart burnings and estrangements is there than a self-conceited conscience. The husband decides what is right, taking no illumination from the more sensitive conscience of his wife; the wife decides what is right, taking no wisdom from the larger view and broader experience of her husband. The decisions are different and the two consciences come in collision; and because, forsooth, it is a matter of conscience, neither will yield or even sympathetically listen to the other. Nay! not uncommonly this convenient word "conscience" is made to cover a proud self-will. "My dear, you know I always wish to yield to you, but this is a matter of conscience!" and that settles all. Pray, sir! why is your conscience any better than hers? Pray, madam! why is your conscience any better than his? Has your conscience been summoned up into the holy mount to receive the Tables of Law and your mate's conscience been left down in the plain? * * * * *

You cannot be too conscientious, but you can have a conscience too self-conceited, too tyrannous, too papal. Your conscience is not an infallible conscience. You are not a Moses nor a pope. Take counsel of other consciences. Consider their judgments. Give them due weight. Then judge for yourself, but not for your neighbor. Why not?

LATEST BY LIGHTNING.

Fatal Accident.

BOSTON, 31.—This morning a freight train on the Grand Trunk railway went through the iron bridge at Stratford Hollow, Vermont. The accident was occasioned by a broken rail. The engineer and fireman were killed.

Mrs. Thompson.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, 31.—The statement of Mrs. Phil. B. Thompson, the first she has yet made for publication in relation to matters causing the killing of Walter Davis, by her husband appeared here this morning. She denies pointedly that she was drunk at the St. Clair Hotel, and calls Goff to witness that Walter Davis was innocent of any wrong towards her when she went into his room that night. She says they could not waken Miss Buckner and therefore she went into Davis' room. Her story was told at Mrs. Davis' house and in her presence.

Will Shut Down.

CHICAGO, 31.—From interviews with managers of leading iron mills in and about this city, it appears inevitable that all the mills will close down to-morrow owing to the failure of the mill owners to accede to the Pittsburg scale. The controversy will no way affect the steel rail mills which will continue o, erations. The managers of the mills join in asserting that the advantages rest with them as the market is inactive and prices only moderate, while employees were only recently engaged in a long strike from the effects of which they have not yet recovered.

FOREIGN.

LATEST TRANS-ATLANTIC DISPATCHES.

The Afghan War.

CALCUTTA, 31.—Fighting between the forces of the Ameer of Afghanistan and Shinwars is renewed; losses heavy on both sides. A raft loaded with dead bodies has been brought down Caual River.

Jealous Germans.

Berlin, 31.—It is hoped here that if France declares a blockade of Chinese ports, that Great Britain and America will refuse to recognize it. The French blockade cannot be effectual, and Germany will certainly support England and America in opposing it. The German government is considering the question of sending more vessels to the Chine coast.

The Duke of Albany.

London, 31.—The Duke of Albany recently received an urgent request from Canada to consent to become successor to the Marquis of Lorne. The Duke, after studying the affairs of Canada, wrote to Gladstone on the subject. The prime minister replied that the Duke was too young for such an important position and also that he lacked experience in government work. The physicians of the Duke of Albany were of opinion that his health would not permit of his acceptance of the post.

A True Bill.

London, 31.—The Grand Jury returned a true bill against the Gallaghers and other dynamite conspirators, charging them with treason and felony.

Stirring Russians.

St. Petersburg, 31. — The manifesto issued by the Czar, the day of his coronation, created an unfavorable impression here. A riot occurred on the evening of the 28th among the crowds assembled in the streets. The mob assaulted the Director of Police who was endeavoring to restore order. A detachment of Co-sacks was called out and dispersed the rioters, one hundred of whom were arrested. The riot did not arise from political causes.

Theatre.—"Friend and Foe" was performed for the last time at the Theatre on Wednesday evening. It was as interesting as ever. Scanlan stands in the front rank as an Irish comedian of the rational order, and his singing comports with his acting. The company are very good. The forest scene introduced in the second act is one of Tryon's masterpieces and is worth going to see if there were no performance. The internal arrangements of the Theatre are improving all the time.
