BREVITIES.

Mrs. Livermore, in her speech at Indianapolis, lately, said that when she became a mother she turned her face to the wall and wept because it was a girl.

A young lady, in the course of a lecture the other day, said: "Get married, young man, and be quick about it, too. Don't wait for the millennium, hoping that the girls will turn angels before you trust to one of them. A pretty thing you would be alongside of an angel, wouldn't you, you brute?"

Before a contemplated attack, when a regiment was floundering through the mud in a very wild part of the country, a company became scattered, and the officer called out to the men to form two deep. "Why, hang it!" shouted out a soldier up to his knees in soft clay, "I'm too deep already."

An emigrant writes from Kansas to the New York Sun, that the soil is good, water excellent, and all that sort of thing—but it is difficult, on account of the Indians, to keep one's hair on the head, as nature intended it to grow. In other words—it is a poor place to set up a hair cutting saloon, with that unscrupulous sort of competition.

A correspondent of the Journal of Commerce in the East Indies, writes that the feeling of the native population is even more intensely hostile to England than it was at the massacre of Cawnpore, twelve years ago, and is only silenced by hand power. "Remove the troops to day, and in sixty days there would not be a living European in the Peninsula.

Early and late, let the warfare go on. Weeds in the seed-leaf may be swept off thousands at a blow, or pushed off by the push-hoe. Stirring of the ground kills multitudes, and lays it open for a fresh lot of seeds to start. In using the push or common hoe to kill weeds, walk backwards, so as not to step upon the loosened soil, for this will replant weeds, which would otherwise be killed.

Mrs. Deborah Willoughby died at the residence of her son-in-law, William Lambert, at Detroit, June 10th at the age of 112 years. Her parents were natives of Africa, and she was born in Raleigh, N. C. She went to Kentucky with Daniel Boone, and passed a large part of her life in that State. She had been a resident of Detroit for many years, and died surrounded by five generations of her descendants. Her youngest offspring is aged forty-five years.

A chemist in England has discovered a fluid preparation which he affirms will cause bodies plunged into it to petrify and become stone within five years' time. The secret of this process is known only to himself. He throws out the suggestion that, in time, if persons will only preserve their relatives and friends with this fluid, they will be able to construct dwellings with them, and thus live in residences surrounded by their ancestors.

The New York Sunday Mercury says false calves are in extensive demand. They are composed of lamb's and other wool woven into the material of merino leggings, just like a pair of masculine drawers. Sometimes bran is used. A good article can be procured for from $7 to $8, warranted in all respects to look like the natural limb, and oftentimes much better. At one theatre in New York 23 pairs of false calves are used; in another, about 27, and in another, 18.

A preacher was once sent for by one of the ladies of his congregation. "Well, my good woman," said he, "so you are very ill, and need the consolation of religion? What can I do for you?"

"No," replied the old lady, "I'm only nervous and can't sleep."

"How can I help that?" asked the parson.

"Oh, sir, you always put me to sleep so nicely when I go to church, that I thought if you would only preach a little for me!"

The parson didn't do it.

The New York Directory just out, contains 189,443 names; an increase of 3,692 over last year's. Wall street, though the shortest street in the city, furnishes 2,330 names. People and business may be said to be packed in, in that street. Pine street, 1,120; Broad street, 1,210; Beaver street, 500; Exchange place, 1,670; William street, 1,405; Nassau street, 1,570. No other spot on earth, unless it be the region around the Royal Exchange, London, presents so complete a mass of business activity as these streets. Broadway contributes 8,500 names; the Bowery, 1,400; Madison avenue, 295.

"Oroide," the new alloy resembling gold, is a French discovery, and consists of pure copper 100 parts, zinc or (preferably) tin 17 parts, magnesia 9 parts, sal-ammoniac 5-6 parts, quicklime 4 parts, tartar of commerce 9 parts. The copper is first melted, then the magnesia, sal-ammoniac, lime, and tartar in powder are added little by little, briskly stirring for about half an hour, in order to mix thoroughly. After which zinc is thrown in the crucible in small grains, stirring it until entirely fused. The crucible is then covered and the fusion maintained about 25 minutes, when the dross is skimmed off, and the alloy is ready for use. It can be cast, rolled, drawn, stamped, chased, beaten into a powder or leaves.

Every one who has even but a small patch of ground, ought to have a few tomato vines to supply his table through the season. To economize space it may be advisable to train them on a trellis or stakes; but the better way is to let them run in the ground, as they strike root at the joints of the stalk and thus draw more nutriment from the soil. To keep the fruit from rotting, pieces of waste boards, tiles, or even bricks, may be laid around the vines, which will answer the double purpose in dry weather of an excellent mulch. After the blossoms begin to form, the ends of the vines may be nipped off occasionally, in order to send the sap into the fruit rather than the stalk.
