TABERNACLE SERVICES.

Addresses by Elder George Teasdale and President George Q. Cannon.

There was a large congregation in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon. After the usual opening exercises, of the quorum of Apostles was the first speaker. He supposed, he said, we were a peculiar people because we worshiped the true God and held a sacred relationship to Him, being His children whom He had drawn into His fold and given us a knowledge of the truth. Our lives were in His hands, and in the efforts of life we seek His counsels, endeavoring to offer Him our affections and desiring to walk in His paths.

ELDER GEORGE TEASDALE

At the parliament of religions of the world the Latter-day Saints were excluded. He thought this consistent, for we were not of the world. The Lord had given Apostles and Prophets to teach us. He had chosen the lowly of the earth to call mankind to repentance and to preach the Gospel, that a people may be prepared for the coming of the Messiah. The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation. It was greatly to be desired, because by it we could be prepared for an exaltation and a higher society beyond the veil, and be filled for a glorious resurrection. We must have faith in the living and true God in order to worship Him. Christ said that the doctrine which He taught was not His own but that of the Father who sent Him; and that if any man would do the Father's will he should know of the doctrine whether it was of God or not.

We could see the evil effects of ignorance of the truth. Men had been turned at the stake for their religious convictions and for the perpetrators of these terrible outrages they were ruling the service. Even the disciples of our Lord on one occasion desired that fire might come down from heaven to destroy some of those who were opposed to the doctrine of Christ. But Christ told them of what spirit they were. It would be well for us to know what spirit we were of. Self-examination was a good thing, and could prove of greater benefit to ourselves than examining the characters of others. We often said that we were willing to take upon ourselves the name of Christ and to keep His commandments; therefore, it was good for us to examine ourselves to see that we were carrying out the requirements of the Gospel.

Our faith and practice were different from the beliefs and practices of the world. Many thought because of the world believed that baptism with water either mode of baptism, and that it was essential to the salvation of infants for its practice to be observed. The speaker had not so received, nor he endeavored the Gospel of Jesus Christ. When people were converted to the Faith they should repent of their sins in order to enter the fold of Christ and be worthy to be one of the royal family of heaven. It was necessary for them to be born of the water and of the spirit to enter the kingdom of God. Although the ordinance of baptism was the saving power of the penitent child of Christ who's sins were forgiven and prepared them to receive the Holy Ghost.

The object of the Gospel was that we might be redeemed from death, hell, and the grave, and that we might be Christ's at His coming. Besides the two Gospel were two Priesthoods—the Aaronic and the Melchisedec. The duties of deacons, of priests and of teachers pertained to the former. The ministrants of these duties filled them for the Melchisedec Priesthood. As they magnified the various degrees of the Priesthood they became fitted as candidates of righteousness.

We were here in a state of probation. We were living in the dispensation of the fulness of times. The angel whom we saw John saw bringing the Gospel to the earth had come. The Aaronic and Melchisedec Priesthoods had been restored. We were engaged in the redemption of the human family. This was a gathering dispensation. Many of the Latter-day Saints had come from the nations of the earth and the isles of the sea. Those of them who were not at age might inquire of the Lord whether or not these things were true. This was your privilege.

He could tell his hearers with all earnestness that Joseph Smith was a true Prophet of God. It had been the speaker's privilege to travel to many countries and to bear his testimony to many people but he was sorry that he had not been still more faithful in bearing his testimony. He was conscious of his failings and, therefore, felt to have compassion on others. Had he been perfect perhaps he would not have had charity for mankind. He believed the Lord permitted us to have failings that we might feel sympathy for our fellow-beings.

He desired to be faithful to God's kingdom and to see his brethren magnify their callings in the Priesthood. He desired to see our young men advance in the Priesthood, and would urge that parents instruct their children in the principles of the Gospel. Mothers should not leave this duty to the teachers, but rather attend to it themselves. There should be a family altar in the home in the interests of the spiritual welfare of the young.

PRESIDENT GEORGE Q. CANNON

also addressed the assemblage. The main topic dwelt upon by the speaker was the unity of the people. The discourse was a convincing one and applicable to all.

The Dispute at Coalville.

The case of Seldon L. Clawson vs Coalville city, reported in Saturday's News, dragged its slow length along until an advanced hour of the afternoon, when the testimony closed and postponement was taken till Saturday next. On that day the arguments will be made.

Logan Republicans.

The Republicans of Logan held their city convention there on Saturday evening at 7 p. m. and were in session till nearly midnight. There were several nominations for mayor, a number of those named positively declining the candidacy. When the voting began, James Quayle, the present incumbent, was nominated on the first ballot. A full city ticket was nominated, the candidates selected for general municipal offices being:

James Quayle for mayor.
Adolph Anderson for recorder.
A. M. Fleming for treasurer.
Charles Kelstrom for marshal.
Wm. Brangham for justice of the peace.

HELD FOR MURDER IN MEXICO.

Set to Be Killed Until After His Job is Finished, and He Works Slowly.

A recent traveler in Mexico tells that at San Luis Potosi several years ago, on the anniversary celebration of "Cinco de Mayo," some Mexicans celebrated with frequent indulgence in mescal. They were soon in a very patriotic frame of mind.

A party of American stonecutters, very skilled workmen, were engaged at work for a fine government building of stone going up. In honor of the day the stonecutters imbibed in whisky. Presently the stonecutters and Mexicans came together.

"Viva Cinco de Mayo!" yelled a Mexican.

"To—— with your Cinco de Mayo!" yelled a stonecutter. "Hurrah for the Fourth of July!"

This was an insult to the Mexican, but none the dirk and he started at the American. That individual responded with a stonecutter. He used his weapon first and there was one more Mexican dead for the 5th of May.

At this more dirks came out. So did more stonecutters. It was a very sad affair for the Mexicans, four more of them being killed.

The stonecutters knew that the result to them would be sudden and early death in the event of their capture, and accordingly made away to El Paso, where all actively engaged in work who had shouted for the Fourth of July.

He was caught and tried and sentenced to be shot.

Tom Mexican's relatives interceded in the behalf of the condemned man. The stonecutters were sorry, very sorry, but what could they do? Mexicans had no law, and let this man go would be to invite the wrath of the people. Tom was therefore shot. A confession accordingly came that he killed his man in cold blood, for the sole purpose of cutting on the stone.

Today that stonecutter lies in a cell at work on the cornice, near the glass, guarded by a corporal and eight soldiers. He is worried, but not unhappy. Jailers of the same say nothing he has done in the past five years he will not be shot within the next 200 years.—Detroit Free Press.

POLITICAL CHAT.

While it is tolerably safe to believe laughable to think of the valuations placed on most of the city's realty by the committee of the Council who are so nearly in need of a demurrer. Take for instance all of lot 3, block 147, plat D. The committee put this piece of property in as an asset at $900. Now, if the owner would only take the trouble to ask some real estate man, who is a competent judge of valuations of property in his city, it will venture to say that the highest possible valuation which would be placed on that lot would be $700.

Again, this same committee puts down all of lot two, in block 110, plat D, as being valued at $7,000, when the city does not own the property at all, not any part thereof.

And again, this same committee, who knew perfectly well that they were positively misrepresenting the city's financial condition when they made these indorsed of valuations, has placed the value of lots in blocks 113, 172, 173, 179 and 187 at $60,000, making a total of $80,000. I say that if the council should authorize this same committee to negotiate a sale for this property tomorrow, they know perfectly well they could not go out into the open market and dispose of the five blocks in question for $20,000 each, or $100,000 in all. Such a valuation of $80,000 more than the most enthusiastic property owner in that locality would ever dream of putting on his land cuts no figure with a "committee" who are struggling to free themselves from the odium which has been cast upon them by the citizens of this community.

When the Tribune "carefully reviews" the recommendation of the "committee" to the Council, I trust it will carefully take into consideration those valuations which that committee placed on the city's realty.

The question naturally arises for what purpose will the Liberal convention nominate a city committee at its convention tonight?

The friends of Charley Stanton are of the opinion that it is still county in the west.

An observer was heard to remark today that the Citizens' headquarters represented a hive of bees, while that of the Liberals represented the hive without the bees.

Sam Carlisle has finally concluded that there is nothing in the Liberal party for the Washingtonian. Sam is a little behind many of his colaborers in this regard, but he has got there just the same. Sam no doubt will never forget a certain banner, on which was emblazoned the following: "Arise, ye workmen, arise! Raise your voices to the skies, and let liberty reign supreme."

The election of the Citizens' ticket means that the people of this city will be liberated from a political despotism.

From a certain quarter comes a terrible howl about fusion. How is this for hatchet: Fred Leonard, a professional Republican; O. W. Powers and Violet Pat Moran, two presumed Democratic Populist, C. E. Allen, and a score of others of every conceivable shape, size and color, all joined hand in hand; and still they declare there is no fusion about that.

It is said a certain gentleman of this city at one time proffered to lay all the water mains at fifty per cent less than the present cost to this municipality, and to solicit therefor taken a present of $25,000 to the Liberal campaign fund. His offer, however, was rejected. Probably if this gentleman would make the same offer now it would be accepted by those who not so very long ago rejected it.

It can truthfully be said that Louis Cohn, Jonny Wiscomb and Harry McCallum are "cracking" in their politics.

It is said by those who are supposed to know that the Americans succeeded in nominating six members of their organization on the Liberal congressional ticket. How successful they will be in their convention tonight remains to be seen.

I would suggest to Johnny Axton that instead of endeavoring to procure a nomination for himself, that he turn his energies toward the nomination of his father. He may succeed this time.

Judging from the manner in which James Devine was nominated by the Republicans on Saturday night, one might think it would be a suicide to have the nomination of this gentleman. He has throughout the life of the Utah Democracy.

Harry McAllister having resigned the Liberal campaign, it is said the republicans this date have been knocked giddy with getting his chief opponent, and he cannot recognize them to the time of wit. FREE LANCE.
