REVERSES.

BY JOHN LYON.

Let reverses come,
As come they will, unsought,
To teach the human mind
What theory ne'er taught:
By ways and means designed
God's wisdom to impart,
By good and ill,
To guide the will,
And make us pure in heart.

Let reverses come,
However of hope bereft,
When all looks blank and dead,
And nothing hoped for left,
But misty visions fled;
Save the sad thought, to know
That all is lost,
The phantom ghost
Of misery and woe.

Let reverses come,
Though hard to bear, designed
Our schoolmaster severe,
To teach the selfish mind
A safer course to steer
Than grumbling at our fate,
That ebbs and flows
In mental throes,
Urged on by love or hate.

Let reverses come,
When hope can hope no more,
Nor consolation bring,
From life's long garnered store,
That scared on Fancy's wing
In youthful happy days;
A frowny mead,
Withered and dead,
To crown our wished-for days.

Let reverses come,
Though riches, power and fame
Lie levelled with the dust,
Yet there's an inward flame
That cannot fade nor rust,
Beyond all earthly strife,
That leals the soul
To bear control—
The hope of endless life.

Let reverses come:
Though wisdom's dearly earned,
'Tis worth all else beside,
When in God's way we've learned
Which we could never know
From books, or schools, or men—
Intelligence;
The recompense
Is past all human ken.

NOTES FOR THE LADIES.

Seventy-four per cent. of the Michigan school teachers are women.

"No cards" is what a western gambler attached to his wedding notice.

"O, George, your sister is a nice girl, but she does dress her head up so." "Yes," said George; "but it is the fashion; there's nothing in it, you know."

To dance all night is "so nice!" the young ladies assure us. To have danced all night is not "so nice," we judge from their looks next morning.

There are seven ladies on the staff of the Chicago Balance, a monthly paper, and their remarks only cover eight pages. It is wonderful how they keep their balance with so little scope for the expression of their feelings.

The most confiding woman lives in Providence. She went to an auction, and, knowing the prevalence of thieves at such places, asked a nice-looking man to take care of her pocket-book, containing eighty-five dollars. He is still taking care of it.

It isn't always best to call things by their right names. A young gentleman called a coach dog a Dalmatian hound, and was informed by his fiancee that if he could not refrain from profanity in her presence, they must henceforth be strangers.

A residence in Indianapolis has the following conspicuously posted up in front:

"NO YOUNGE man ALLOWED
To come And COURTE my DARTER EMMA
he has $20 to PAY DOWN on a HOUSE and LOD
balance in 1 2 & 3 years
for SAIL by me. WITHIN."

Daughter of the House (to a privileged old friend of the family)—"Dear Mr. Lupus, you don't seem to be enjoying yourself. I should so like to have you waltz this once with me." Privileged old friend—"My dear child. I don't dance; but, if it suits you, I wouldn't mind sitting here with my arm around your waist while the others are making themselves dizzy."

"Her Face Was Her Fortune," will soon be followed by "His Cheek Was What Made him."

A genteel appearing loafer addressed an insulting remark to a lady of Troy, N. Y. She had a pail of yeast in her hand, and answered his impertinence with a dash of the lively liquid, which covered him from head to foot. His friends now regard him as a rising young man.

The possible functions of an Oakland editor are multifarious and inscrutable. Yesterday morning, about one o'clock, a bright and exceedingly handsome little boy came panting into our room and reported that his mother was in personal difficulty. The town was shut up; everybody was a-bed, and he didn't know what to do. "Something had got to be done," he said. We assured him that the imminent crisis was no fault of ours; moreover, that we didn't know anything about such business, and directed him to Dr. Verhave, as being the nearest at hand. The Doctor had the rheumatics, and wouldn't get up with the necessary alacrity, and so we showed our excellent little friend where Dr. Holmes lives, who is reported to be "a very present help in time of trouble." We wish to the Lord our lady subscribers would recollect, that the duties of an editor are limited to a certain extent.—Oakland, Cal., Transcript.
