THE WORK OF TWO THUGS.

Held Up Three Men and Are Run Down and Captured By the Police after a Hard Fight.

The highwayman contended to again ply his vocation last night and try it he did, but not to such a successful termination as he very likely expected, as in less than forty minutes, two men knew to the police as hard characters, who have formerly dined at Kimball's hostelry, and giving the names of John Robinson alias Dimbledecker, and Frank Miscale were placed behind the bars with the grave charge of highway robbery resting them in the face.

THE EVENING'S INITIAL HOLD UP.

It was about 6:45 last night when word was received at police headquarters to the effect that three men had been held up in the vicinity of the old county court house on Second south street. The first victim was Mr. R. Hodge, an iron molder in the employ of Silver Bros., as he was returning to his home at 545 West Third South, after his day's work. At about 6:30 o'clock, Mr. Hodge was passing along in the vicinity mentioned when two men with red bandanna handkerchiefs over their noses, hailed him with the usual salute.

Mr. Hodge was greatly surprised, to say the least, and was viewing the situation to find if it was in fact a reality, when the larger of the thugs poked a revolver into his face, demanding of him to immediately obey orders. The gentleman quickly complied, and the smaller of the two so quickly examined into the contents of his pockets. Mr. Hodge was penniless at the time, and all the desperate characters got was a small numb and a pocket knife. They had no use for these articles, however, and very "generously" gave them back, at the same time telling Mr. Hodge to "get," which he readily did.

GOT A WATCH THIS TIME.

The next trick turned by the desperadoes was on the person of Mike Amanti, an Italian, who is employed by the Salt Lake Lumber company, and resides at 357 south Fifth West street. Mr. Amanti was also returning to his home after his day's labor, when "hold up your hands" was applied to him. Amanti not being very conversant with the English language did not understand the import of the expression and consequently was slow to act. The ever-handy gun, however, soon brought him to a normal condition and then realizing the danger he was in, he readily yielded to the command. The highwaymen were more successful this time, as Mr. Amanti possessed a silver watch, which was quickly torn from him, and then he was allowed to proceed on his way home.

SOURED HIS SOUTHERN BLOOD.

Mr. McAvoy, a bald Scotchman, was the next victim of the foot pads. He is a Deep Creek miner, and was on his way to his lodgings near the Rio Grande depot, when he was hailed by two men and ordered to show his fingers.

McAvoy was not to be shaded so easily, and paying no attention to the men he gave them a knock with his elbow and attempted to pass on. This the gun was leveled at him, but still the sturdy Scot insisted on having his own way, and was about to go at them in true pugilistic style, when a threat was made to empty the contents of the gun into him.

This did not have the desired effect, however, as the Scotchman invited his assailants to step to the corner and he would whip them both. The invitation was ignored and quite an exciting colloquy then ensued. The conversation drew a large crowd to the scene, and as the highwaymen felt it was getting rather too hot for them, they concluded to put off.

These thrilling occurrences were witnessed by quite a number of bystanders, but as they were law-abiding citizens and did not carry "concealed weapons," they dared not interfere. The county jailer was quickly notified and he hurriedly communicated with the police station.

OFFICERS IN PURSUIT.

Not many minutes elapsed after receipt of the news, until the officers were scouring the city in quest of the thugs. The vicinity in which they were seen was quickly surveyed, and the conclusion soon arrived at that they had got into hiding on East Temple street.

SPIED AT THE MINT SALOON.

Shortly after the perpetration of the hold-ups, Joe Raleigh, a guard of city prisoners, was on a still hunt and followed two men answering the description of the thugs into the Mint saloon on Second South. Joe went into the saloon right behind them, and as soon as they saw him they recognized him and made a short cut for the street.

Joe followed and grabbed at one of them, when the pair pitched in and directed numerous kicks and blows at him, bruising him badly and then making off. Raleigh, although painfully hurt, followed them and was soon joined by Officer Roberts and a citizen named Wright. The fellows ran like deers and the pursuers just a little faster. Down East Temple and through Lamson's alley they darted, the officers gradually gaining on them, and finally making their capture just north of the Knutsford.

FOUGHT LIKE DEMONS.

The pair fought like demons to regain their freedom, but to no avail, and they were finally subdued and taken to the police station. On their persons were found articles that had been stolen, and they were positively identified as the highwaymen by some of those who had been held up.

Mr. Raleigh's injuries are very painful, but after they had been bandaged and attended to, he wended his way homeward with no regret whatever, that he had been mixed up in the affair.

SAINTS IN KANAS.

New Organ in the St. John Meeting House—Notes of the Mission.

[St. John News, Nov. 8.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will until further notice have regular services at 7 o'clock in the evening as well as 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Elders Beesley and Samuel Kirkham came in from quite an extended mission trip last Saturday evening, reporting a good trip and splendid treatment. Elders Loran and Bowring are expected in by next Sunday. Report comes to us that, like the remainder of the boys, they are having good success.

Elder Henry Kirkham, of the Saints' Church, who, by the way, is a splendid cornetist, has added his strength to Kane's concert band, greatly to the pleasure of the present members as well as the improvement of the organization, thus doing that much more toward making their entertainments better. Always room for as proficient talent as Mr. Kirkham.

We had the extreme pleasure of examining and listening to the new chapel organ ordered for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints of this city. It came in last Monday noon, having been delayed, for some unknown cause, almost a week. However, it is now here, and placed in the building, its merits tested, and to say it is by far ahead of anything in this part of the country is not exaggerating in the least. The instrument is of chapel model, contains five complete and distinct sets of reeds, and embraces all of the latest and popular attachments, and the music produced by it under the skillful manipulation of Elder Beesley of Kirkham, stirs the soul and brings to the surface the better man.

BISHOPS PRESTON, BURTON AND WINDER.

SALT LAKE CITY, NOV. 12, 1895.

AMUSEMENTS.

The appearance at the Theatre this evening of Pauline Hall, in the comic opera Dorcas, will give the music-loving public in this city an opportunity of judging for themselves of the merits of a performance which has received so much encomium wherever presented. Pauline Hall is, herself, a brilliant star in the theatrical world, and she is said to be only the center of a whole cluster of luminaries, inasmuch as all the members of her supporting company have been selected with the utmost care. The engagement is for one night only.

AT THE GRAND.

Ferncliff was presented last night to a large audience who manifested their appreciation of the patriotic drama popularized here a couple of seasons ago by the Grismer-Davies company. The incidents of the play hinge around the war, so much the scene is laid at the peaceful home of the Hewins, the only warlike incident being the appearance of the twin brothers in uniform during the third act. Otherwise the picket fires and other implements of war are conspicuous by their absence throughout the entire play.

Willard Hilton, the smooth friend of the family, appears on the scene and proceeds to get rid of obstructing heroes in the approved style by getting Tom Hewins drafted to the front. Jim, the family black sheep, however, volunteers and goes as a substitute. A little thing like that does not foil the villain, who later on produces forged evidence that Jim has deserted. The only thing remaining for Tom to do to save his family honor is to take the deserter's place. During the absence and supposed death of the brothers Hilton lays siege to Tom's wife's heart with ultimate success. The brothers appear on the scene in the nick of time, Hilton saving them the trouble of killing him by gracefully dropping over the cliff.

Everyone filled their respective roles successfully, Messrs. Edwards and Ingersoll being the two central figures that held the audience's sympathy from the start and were given a triple curtain call at the end of the third act. Mr. Edemon's Dad Hewins ranks as one of the best of his many artistic character sketches. Mr. Tucker's Willard Hilton was an agreeable contrast to the orthodox stage villain. He portrayed just what the character calls for, an every-day common-place scoundrel hidden beneath a polished veneer. H. J. Ward was cast in one of his favorite roles, he and Miss Pollock furnishing the fun as the love-sick twain. Miss Roberts Warren as Tom's wife had very little opportunity of showing her capabilities as leading lady, but gave a sweet rendition of the faithful wife. Mrs. Chester's Maida, the old nurse, added to the merriment of the evening, and last but not least, precocious little Jessie Conrad in knee pants had her "fitters and bustiness" like a veteran.

The musical program rendered by Prof. Weihe's orchestra was up to the usual high standard of excellence.

LAW ECHOES OF THE DISASTER

Change of Venue Granted in the Coal Miners' Widows' Cases, Wyoming.

RED CANON, Utah, Wyo., November 6, 1895.

To the Editor:

The claims of the widows upon the Rocky Mountain Coal & Iron Co., in the district court at Evanston, for damages arising from the disaster on the 20th of March last, was met by an appeal for a change of venue by the defendant's attorneys.

The suits were called up before Judge Knight, and the attorneys for the plaintiffs, Judge Vandersender and Judge Lacey, responded to the call; but the defendant's counsel, Judge Brown and Cyrus Beer, Esq., stated that a change of venue to some other county would be filed and asked that they be given time in which to prepare the same; the court granted until 7 p. m. the same day to file the motion.

At 7 p.m. the court reconvened and Mr. Beemer, head agent of the company, accompanied by his counsels, appeared and presented his motion for change of venue, supported by affidavits, which claimed that there is a local prejudice in Uinta county against the defendants which would preclude them from obtaining a fair and impartial trial of the case. The court granted the appeal and allowed the defendants ten days to pay cost of change and give bonds for same to the clerk of the court of Uinta county in preparing files for transmission to the clerk of the court of Cheyenne.

A number of boys belonging to the U. P. troops of Army were filed before Justice E. E. Unsie and fined one dollar and costs each for throwing over a number of cutlasses in No. 7 mine.

Messrs. Browning Brothers have placed with a representative of the Sumchers Hardware company of St. Louis, an order for 525 bicycles to be delivered for next season.

One of Pasteur's Boldest Experiments.

The secret of attenuation had thus become an open one to Pasteur. He had held out the murderous virus of splenic fever and succeeded in rendering it not only harmless to life, but a sure protection against the virus in its more concentrated form. No man, in my opinion, can work at these problems so rapidly as Pasteur without falling into errors of detail. But this may occur while his main position remains impregnable. Such a result, for example, as that obtained in the presence of so many witnesses at Melun must remain an ever memorable conquest of science. Having prepared his attenuated virus, and proved by laboratory experiments its efficacy as a protective vaccine, Pasteur accepted an invitation from the president of the Society of Agriculture at Melun to make a public experiment on what might be called an agricultural scale. This set of Pasteur's is, perhaps, the boldest thing recorded in life book. It naturally caused anxiety among his colleagues of the academy, who feared that he had been rash in closing with the proposal of the president.

But the experiment was made. A flock of sheep was divided into two groups, the members of one group being all vaccinated with the attenuated virus, while those of the other group were left unvaccinated. A number of cows were also injected to a precisely similar treatment. Fourteen days afterward, all the sheep and all the cows, vaccinated and unvaccinated, were inoculated with a very virulent virus; and three days subsequently more than two hundred persons assembled to witness the result. The "shout of admiration," mentioned by M. Radot, was a natural outburst under the circumstances. Of twenty-five sheep which had not been protected by vaccination, twenty-one were already dead, and the remaining four were dying. The twenty-five vaccinated sheep, on the contrary, were "in full health and gaiety." In the unvaccinated cows a hundred were dead, while the remaining fewer was groaned, while the presentation was so great that they were unable to eat. Tumors were also formed at the points of inoculation. In the vaccinated cows no tumors were formed; they exhibited no fever, nor even an elevation of temperature, while their power of feeding was unimpaired. No wonder that "directors of cattle overwhelmed Pasteur with applications for vaccine." At the end of 1881 close upon 34,000 animals had been vaccinated, while the number rose in 1883 to nearly 500,000.—November Review of Reviews.

CURED BY USING

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

A PREACHER'S EXPERIENCE.

"Three months ago, I took a violent cold which resulted in an attack of acute bronchitis. I put myself under medical treatment, and at the end of two months was no better. I found it very difficult to preach, and concluded to try Ayer's Cherry

The first bottle gave me great relief; the second, which I am now taking, has relieved me almost entirely of all unpleasant symptoms, and I feel sure that one or two bottles more will effect a permanent cure.
