COOK ANSWERED EVERY QUESTION

Cheerfully Submitted to Very Severe Cross-Examination by Forty Newspaper Men.

HE SHOWED THEM HIS DIARY

Reason for Imposing Secrecy on Whitney and Others Was His Desire To Announce Discovery Himself.

New York, Sept. 22.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook tonight submitted cheerfully to one of the severest cross-examinations he has undergone since he announced his discovery of the north pole. The interview, which was conducted by 40 newspaper representatives, including several from foreign newspapers, proved at least that he was not afraid to meet the public.

Incidentally, the city of New York officially recognized Dr. Cook's achievement today, when the board of aldermen passed a resolution commemorating his discovery and providing for a public welcome at the city hall.

The material points of Dr. Cook's answers today did not differ in a great degree from his original recital. Some slight details were cleared up, however, which throw light on the way in which the polar dash was effected.

As the questions asked were put by laymen, they did not go deeply into the scientific aspect of the expedition. But Dr. Cook was ready to answer anything pertinent to the issue.

Dr. Cook was asked if he would object to showing his diary. He immediately consented, and produced a small octavo notebook, which he showed freely to all. It contained 176 pages, each of which was filled with 50 or 60 lines of writing in the most minute characters. The book, he said, contained considerably more than 100,000 words, while he has besides other books embracing his observations and other data.

ANSWERED EVERY QUESTION.

Dr. Cook answered every question in a low voice, without hesitancy, as though in full possession of all his facts. The interviewers were rather severe in regard to details, but nothing indicated that the polar traveler's memory was at fault, even in the most minute particulars. Sometimes, when a petty question indicated ignorance, he smiled with good humored sympathy at the lack of technical knowledge displayed.

Not once did he refuse to reply, except when the name of Commander Peary was broached. Even then he said he always had and did now consider Peary as his friend, but controversial subjects in connection with his rival he avoided entirely, saying that they could wait.

When requested to say what had occurred at his meeting with Harry Whitney, the New Haven sportsman, he said he preferred to let Whitney tell his own story, as Whitney was quite unbiased. His reasons in imposing secrecy on Whitney, on Pritchard, Commander Peary's cabin boy, and the Eskimos, were prompted by his desire to be the first to tell the world of his discovery. He had done the work, he said, and was entitled to relate how it had been carried out.

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS.

Some of the more important questions put to Dr. Cook, and his replies, follow.

Q.—Did anything ever occur in the life of yourself and Mr. Peary that would create an enmity or bitterness between you?

A.—No, nothing whatever that I know of.

Q.—Do you look upon Commander Peary as a friend or an enemy?

A.—I must say I do not know. I have treated Mr. Peary as a friend, and until I know more about the situation I shall continue to do the same.

Q.—Did you ever say anything in Etah that indicated that you feared for your life if he got there?

A.—No.

Q.—Would you be willing to meet Peary in a debate when he gets here?

A.—As far as I am concerned the Peary incident is closed. Mr. Peary is not the dictator of my affairs, and I do not care to say anything further about him.

MEETING WITH WHITNEY.

Q.—Did you know Mr. Whitney when you met him on your return to Etah?

A.—No, he introduced himself, but I did not catch his name and did not know it until the following day.

Q.—Did you know that Peary was going to start up at that time?

A.—No, I did not know.

Q.—What caused you to have such confidence in Whitney that you entrusted your instruments to him?

A.—I knew him by name, and circumstances that arose while I was with him justified my confidence. I gave him the instruments to bring back because I thought they would be less liable to injury on board his vessel than if I took them across glaciers and rough ice covered country.

Q.—What is your opinion of the story told by the negro, Henson, of the information he obtained from your two Eskimos?

A.—Well, the Eskimos were bound down by me not to tell any one where they had been. I should like you to have Henson here and cross-question him yourself. Henson's testimony is entirely founded on hearsay.

Q.—Knowing that a ship was coming north this summer for Whitney, why did you not wait for that ship and come direct to New York instead of going to South Greenland and sailing?

A.—I knew the Danish government ship would get me home before Whitney's ship.

COOK'S INSTRUMENTS.

Q.—What instruments did you have with you from Cape Thomas Hubbard and back?

A.—Sextant, artificial horizon, three compasses, three chronometer watches, thermometers, barometers and a pedometer.

Q.—What kind of a sextant did you have and how many?

A.—One sextant, a French apparatus.

Q.—What kind of artificial horizon did you have?

A.—Glass.

Q.—What kind of a transit or theodolite did you have, and how many?

A.—We did not use any.

Q.—What kind of a compass did you have?

A.—We had one liquid compass and one surveying compass.

Q.—What kind of compass did you use to determine your compass variation?

A.—Surveying compass; it had an azimuth attachment.

Q.—What compass course did you take from Cape Thomas Hubbard north?

A.—Well, that changes every day. If you follow the course of a map you have got the compass course.

DETERMINATION OF POLE.

Q.—Was your determination of the pole solely by an observation of the sun's altitude, or did you take observations of the polar star 12 hours apart and by the determination of the celestial pole midway between the two positions prove the accuracy of your position on the terrestial pole?

A.—How are you going to take an observation by the polar star when you have a continuous sun? There is no night; you cannot have any stars; there is no darkness.

Q.—What kind of observations did you make at the pole and how many? And what was the altitude of the sun?

A.—We have told that the altitude of the sun gave us our positions; that is all there is to say about it. We made regular astronomical observations such as would be made by the compass and other instruments. We merely made the nautical observations that a captain would have made aboard a ship.

Q.—Will you describe in detail any single observation taken by you at the north pole with the exact figures of the results and the corrections applied?

A.—Not at this present moment. We will describe every one of them in detail when they go to the University of Copenhagen. They will go there within two months. The entire records will be delivered to the university and after that they will go to everybody that wants to examine them.

NIGHT OF APRIL 7.

Q.—In your original narrative, as published in the New York Herald, you said: "The night of April 7 was made notable by the reclaiming of the sun at midnight over the northern ice. Our observation on April 8 placed the camp in latitude 88.26, longitude 94 2." The astronomers say that in the latitude you mentioned the midnight sun would have been visible on April 1, and that if you really saw it for the first time on April 7, you must have been 250 miles from the pole, instead of 224, as you supposed. Therefore, to have reached the pole on April 21, you would have had to travel 29 miles daily. What is your explanation of the apparent discrepancy?

A.—In the first place that indicates the point I have taken—that nobody can pronounce judgment on a matter of this kind until they get the complete records. The north horizon at midnight had been so obscure that we could not tell whether the sun was below the horizon or above it. We were not making observations at midnight. Therefore this statement is based on the fact that we have said that it was possible to see the sun at midnight of that day. I have not looked through the Herald's story as it has been written in full. My impression is that we were absolutely unable to see the sun the midnight before that. The horizon was obscured.

Q.—Why was it necessary to entrust your records to Mr. Whitney under a pledge of secrecy?

A.—I don't know that there is anything further to say about that; ask Mr. Whitney. I do not think I am bound to divulge to Mr. Peary the news of our work. I am perfectly willing to give it to the world, and have given it to the world. There is no reason why I should give any news to Peary. I am perfectly willing to give it to the world and I have done so.

Q.—Why did you submit your proofs and data to the University of Copenhagen?

A.—The people of Denmark were most kind to me. They never doubted my word, nor asked me to furnish proofs of my discovery immediately. They were willing to give me a chance to see civilization again, and it was for this courtesy that I thought it was due the people of Denmark and the professors of the university that they should be the first to make my records and data public.

To the question, "Why should it take two months before the proofs of your claim can be made public?" Dr. Cook replied:

"My observations and the other proofs of my discovery took two years for me to compile, and it will be at least two months before they will be ready to be given to the public. I have promised and I will keep my word, that as soon as they are in that shape, they will be given to the press."

REFUTED AN INTERVIEW.

Dr. Cook refuted a purported interview with him in which he was quoted as saying that he noticed a peculiar condition of the sky line while at the north pole. He declared that the condition of the sky line at the pole was no different from that at any other northern point. The doctor was asked if he would submit his proofs to Commander Peary when he returned. His answer was that he did not see why Peary should be the person to pass judgment on his claims.

Dr. Cook absolutely refused to say a word regarding Peary. He had taken an entirely different route than any other arctic explorer and did not see signs of any previous expeditions during his dash to the pole.

"Will you submit your data and proofs to the members of the coast and geodetic survey?" was asked.

"When the University of Copenhagen is ready I will submit my proofs to any geographical society that may want to examine them," replied Dr. Cook. "They will have to wait until that time."

The doctor said the coast and geodetic survey had not asked him to submit his observations.

HIS EQUIPMENT.

"My expedition was not badly equipped," said Dr. Cook. "We had 19 men, 11 sledges and 103 dogs. Our sledges were made of the best possible material for such a trip, American hickory, and the contention that I had only one sledge was a falsehood. I considered my expedition perfectly equipped. We carried no superfluous matter."

A deluge of telegrams and cable messages poured in upon Dr. Cook today and all these were turned over to his secretary.

UNPLEASANT TASTE OF FAME.

Dr. Cook's first full day on his home shores brought to him the first unpleasant taste of fame. Visitors began to arrive at daybreak. They came on all sorts of errands, with all sorts of urgent messages calculated to get an interview.

There was a regiment of publishers' agents. They got only as far as Dr. Cook's secretary. Some of the more insistent visitors were escorted from the hotel by house detectives.

Among the various proposals that the horde of callers had were offers of free accommodations in the royal suites of other hotels; men with cigars they wanted Dr. Cook to approve; promoters with schemes to make Dr. Cook rich and themselves comfortable at the same time. Offers of entertainment, private and public, arrive by the score.

It was announced tonight that Thursday, Sept. 30, has been selected as the date of the banquet of the Danish societies of Greater New York in Dr. Cook's honor.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."—Mrs. ALVENA SPEHLING, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration.
