A STARTLING OPINION.

City Attorney Hall offered the following startling and unexpected report:

To the Honorable Mayor and Members of the City Council:

Gentlemen: In answer to your communication of the 21st inst. I have to say that, upon a careful investigation and consideration of the matter submitted, I have reached the conclusion that under the laws of Utah Territory, relating to school districts, and the laws of bonds by the Board of Regents of such districts, and also the law of the Territory relating to indebtedness which may be incurred by a municipal corporation, and also by the law of Congress which limits the amount of indebtedness which may be incurred by a municipal corporation, county or other subdivision to any of the territories of the United States, school bonds do not and cannot constitute any part of the indebtedness of Salt Lake City, as a municipal corporation, and therefore such bonds could not constitute or form any part of the four per cent limit. In fact, each school district, in virtue of the law and several cases, is a municipality distinct and separate from the city in which it is situated, though the boundaries are identical.

Received and filed.

AGAINST THE DISTRIBUTION OF HANDBILLS.

The same officer also submitted the following report:

To the Honorable Mayor and Members of the City Council:

Gentlemen: In answer to your communication of the 21st inst., I have to report and herewith report an ordinance relating to the unlawful distribution of hand bills on certain streets in this city.

Received and filed.

BOND NOT INVALIDATE.

The city attorney also stated that he had carefully considered the constitutionality of the ordinance relating to the filling of the office now vacant in the Council by the resignation of Mr. Pendleton.

The introduction of a message to Mr. Pendleton does not in any way invalidate the action of the Council, but recommends that the vacancy be filled as soon as possible. Received and filed.

JOINT BUILDING REPORT.

The joint city and county building committee reported as follows:

"The subjoined motion was unanimously carried at the meeting of the joint city and county building committee, held at the Mayor's office May 25th:

"That the joint city and county building committee recommend to the City Council and County Court that the plans of Messrs. Monohan, Ware & Proudfoot of Salt Lake City, Utah, be accepted, on condition that for simplicity, a full set of plans, specifications and detailed drawings and more fully in contract with bonds that will be satisfactory to the City Council and County Court.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 26, 1891.

To the Mayor and Members of the City Council:

Gentlemen—I respectfully call your attention to the condition of First street, at the intersection of A and B streets. The street superintendent says the street is down so much that the sewage backs up in their original position, and must be lowered. The people in that neighborhood have been without water for a few weeks and need water badly, but I cannot give them water until said railroad tracks are lowered. I respectfully submit the matter should be taken in this matter at once.

A DANGEROUS CROSSING.

A Valuable Horse Killed on the Rio Grande Western Track.

A big smash up occurred about 10:30 this morning in the neighborhood of Third North street, some five or six blocks distant from the Rio Grande depot. At the point named the railroad track crosses the street. A man named Bert Dewesday was in charge of a delivery wagon belonging to Howlett Bros., soda water manufacturers, and drawn by two powerful horses. The wagon was just passing over the track when it was run into by an approaching passenger train, which at the time, it is said, was traveling at a rate of from twenty-five to thirty miles an hour. One of the horses, valued at $250, was struck by the corner of the engine and a frightful gash inflicted in its side, causing almost instant death; the other animal escaped without any injury. The wagon was demolished, the force of the collision was hurled nearly ten feet from the rails—was much damaged; but the driver, as if by a miracle, escaped without injury, having jumped to the ground just as the wreck occurred. It is asserted that the engine driver neglected to sound his whistle, or even to slow up much on the street crossing, and in this fact the accident is wholly attributed. It seems that the residents in and around the vicinity of Third North have repeatedly protested against the neglect of engine drivers to signify the approach of trains by the blowing of the whistle, and that petitions in this regard have been presented to the City Council, but thus far without any good effect. Messrs. Howlett intend to at once send in a claim to the Rio Grande company for the loss they have sustained.

Returned Missionaries.

Elder George E. Woolley, of the Thirteenth ward of this city, returned home from a mission to Australia, on the 25th inst.

Elder Woolley left for his field of labor October 15, 1888. His time was largely occupied in the missionary districts of Victoria, Sydney and Queensland. A general indifference prevails concerning the Gospel, though little or no opposition was encountered.

Elder Lewis H. Brown, of Kanab, Kane county, Utah, recently returned from a mission in the Southern States, for which he left his home May 8th, 1889. Elder Brown labored entirely in the Middle Tennessee Conference. His efforts to promulgate the principles of the Gospel were rewarded with fair success. Many meetings were held and numerous friends were made.

Elder Brown returns to Utah in excellent health and spirits.

A COMEDY OF ERRORS.

Spells of Forgetfulness Among Some of Judge Zane's Jurisdiction.

Ordinarily things go with great smoothness in Judge Zane's Court, but this morning, just as the day's work began, "confusion worse confounded" reigned for a brief space. A most unnecessary case had been called on, and Mr. Riley, one of the two attorneys for the defense, was proceeding with all the eloquence at his command to state to the jury the defendant's side of the matter, when he! it was suddenly discovered that the accused was not present. "Then where is he?" asked Judge Zane with some asperity, at the same time reminding Mr. Stephens, the prosecuting counsel, that he should have notified Marshal Parsons to have that the defendant brought. Away went Mr. Stephens, and soon after the missing offender was ushered into court. Then Judge Zane called for Mr. Stephens, but that gentleman was no longer visible. "Now go on," said Judge Zane, upon the appearance of the prosecuting attorney, in tone of voice savoring something of impatience. "But where are the papers in the case?" anxiously inquired Clerk McMillan. "In your office, I suppose," ventured Deputy Stephens. He off tripped Mr. McMillan and the laughter of the spectators in this comedy of crime. Then he came back to the witness stand, after Attorney Riley again took up the cudgels, and nothing further occurred to stop the running of the wheels of justice.

"Utah 1847 to 1870."

This lecture by Mr. Charles Ellis is now in print. It is a valuable contribution to the literature of the long-vexed Utah question. It contains in brief form a vast amount of historical information, told in an entertaining style. The writer has been fair and impartial throughout and has written in a spirit of earnestness that must carry conviction to the mind of the candid reader.

In a brief introduction Mr. Ellis tells of his coming to Utah two years and a half ago and his bewilderment in trying to distinguish between "Mormon" and "Gentile." He calls attention to the manner in which he came to enter upon the investigations that led to the writing of the essays of the "Mormon" people. An anti-"Mormon" paper had attacked him for speaking in defense of the rights of the vast majority of the people of Utah. The attack was for the mean and brutal, and the paper making it refused to publish Mr. Ellis' reply. That awoke in his mind a wonder that had prompted the "Mormons" had been treated in the same way, and with as little cause had been maligned. The pamphlet, "Utah from 1847 to 1870," gives the results of his investigation. It is on sale at 72 Main street, of the Utah Book and Stationery company, for 25 cents. It will be an excellent document to mail to non-"Mormons," and all who have not heard the lecture delivered will want to read it. Even those who have heard it will want it for reference. The News welcomes it as an addition of the truth that is all the more valuable because the author is not a "Mormon."

Third District Court.

Before Judge Zane, in the Third District Court this morning, the trial of James Hamilton for a crime against nature began. The defendant is about twenty-four years of age, and his general appearance is very far from prepossessing. The case was tried at the former term of court, but the jury were unable to agree and were discharged. This is, therefore, the second trial.

United States Assistant District Attorney Stephens prosecuted. Messrs. Riley and Andersen defended. The offense is alleged to have been committed on the 25th of February last, in the rear of the Rayahna saloon, on Commercial street. The facts of the case are of a most disgusting nature, and wholly unfit for publication.

An Unwelcome Visitor.

About two o'clock this morning the residence of Mrs. John F. Miller, 240 north First West street, was entered by a burglar, through the bathroom window. The thief passed through the parlor, dining room and hall and made his way noiselessly upstairs to the bed chambers.

Mr. Fred Price and brother were occupants of one of the rooms into which the midnight visitor went. Being sound asleep at the time, the thief had things pretty much his own way. The sleepers' clothes were taken into the hallway, where their pockets were turned inside out and $28 in cash abstracted from the clothing of Mr. Fred Price.

Quietly and undisturbed the burglar left as he came. A gold watch and chain in Mr. Price's pockets were left unmolested.

Three weeks ago the same house was similarly broken into and a small amount of money stolen evidently by the same person.

To the People's party club, Twentieth ward, city:

Gentlemen—I hereby tender you my resignation as a member and as president of your political organization. In so doing myself from your ranks I beg to thank you for the able assistance you have rendered me in the work and for the courtesy and consideration you have always extended me while we have been associated together.

Fully believing that the perpetuating and maintaining the local political parties that have existed have up to the present time been the principal cause of prosperity of our great and growing Territory, I, prior to the movement just inaugurated, have taken public upon national lines in this Territory, and having identified myself with the Democratic party I hope to be found within their ranks henceforth.

Respectfully,
DAVID L. MUNROE.

Amusements.

"Credit Lorraine" was presented last night at the Salt Lake theatre to a very good house, by the Lillian Lewis company. Miss Lewis assumed the principal role in the play, the Countess of Castile. Her presentation of that character was on the whole very good. In many of the situations she showed real merit, and gave evidence of genuine histrionic talent, while in others she fails to the commonplace, and in one or two instances degenerates into rant. She was well received last night, and no doubt will in time become a favorite with Salt Lake theatregoers.

Mr. Collier as Phillip Ranson was not a complete success. His stolidity and stiffness were more characteristic of a London policeman than of a French republican leader.

Mr. Wenzel as Minister of Police, and Mr. Hilliard as inspector, were both admirable. The former threw into his rendition of the character all the craft, cunning, intrigue and lack of the ideal stealth in its lowest depths. But Mr. Monk as the paralytic, avaricious spy was the climax of perfection.

Miss Helen Dauvray as the dashing, unconventional widow was a masterpiece. Barry Johnson, the journalist in search of a fortune, was good and contains a little realistic. On the whole the piece was splendidly presented and the audience manifested their appreciation with enthusiastic delight. "As in a Looking Glass" will be presented tonight.

Next Monday, June 1st, the celebrated company of unique actors, known as the Lotta Company, will return an engagement at the Salt Lake Theatre, which will last only three nights. A matinee will be given on Wednesday afternoon, June 3rd.

The company is a unique and novel organization, the principal actors being imitators who measure from twenty-eight to thirty-eight inches, while their supporting actors are fairly five years. All of these are highly accomplished actors. The advance sale for the engagement, which promises to be a fashionable as well as artistic success, will commence Saturday of this week.

Tomorrow night the Logan Opera company will appear in the opera "Black Hussar" at the Theatre.

High Priests.

Out of respect for Decoration services on Saturday, May 30th, the High Priests will not meet until 2 p.m. on that day. As heretofore the brethren will convene in the Assembly Hall.

A general invitation is extended to all the Priesthood of the Stake to be present.

ELIAS MORRIS,
President of Quorum.

They were adjudged guilty and were bound over in the sum of $1500 each to await the action of the grand jury. The complaining witness was the proprietor of the Death House (formerly the Jewish synagogue), into which they broke, at a late hour yesterday afternoon.

San Luis Stake Conference.

Editor Deseret News:

The quarterly conference of the San Luis Stake was held Sunday and Monday, May 17th and 18th, in the new Stake house at Manassa, President Silas S. Smith presiding.

There were present Francis M. Lyman of the Apostles; John Morgan and B. H. Roberts of the Presidents of Seventies, and a fair representation of the local Priesthood. On Sunday the time was principally occupied by Apostle Lyman and President Morgan, who laid before the Saints the temporalities of the Gospel, showing the necessity for reformation in the financial affairs of life, that we may become an independent and prosperous people, surrounding ourselves with the necessaries and comforts of life, that we may be able to administer aid and succor to the unfortunate and those in distress.

The general and local authorities of the Church were sustained by the unanimous vote of the conference.

On Monday, reports were given by President Smith of the Stake, by Bishop Dalton, of Manassa ward, and Counselor George W. Irvin, of the Sanford ward, all of which were of an encouraging nature, showing the Saints to be energetically engaged in the performance of the requirements of the Gospel.

Pres. B. H. Roberts gave an interesting discourse upon the establishment of the Kingdom of God, and the fulfilment of ancient prophecy, as expounded to the Prophet Joseph Smith, by the angel Moroni, in his second vision, and at the Hill Cumorah.

Counselor Jos. F. Thomas addressed the conference briefly upon the blessings we enjoy in belonging to the servants of the Lord organized into as the principles of present and future salvation.

President Morgan related some of his experience in traveling among the peoples of the world, seeking to learn their the fulness of the gospel, as it has been revealed in our days; that Satan always made manifest his influence in opposition to the truth, as likewise he does among the Saints in their gathered condition, hindering them if possible from observing the commands of God.

Apostle Lyman dwelt at some length upon the sacredness of the Lord's temple, and of the necessity of Saints preparing themselves for it, that it is worthily, for it is offensive in the sight of God for people professing to be Saints to refuse to fellowship one another, and without the Temple of the Lord, and the great salvation He has wrought out for the human family.

The conference was one long to be remembered, and the universal expression seemed to be that we had never had a more interesting conference, nor one where more practical and encouraging instructions were given. Inevery heart there seemed to be renewed faith and new determination to hold fast to the "rod of iron."

A. R. SMITH, Stake Clerk.

OBITUARY.

SNOW.—The announcement of the death of Harriet Orilla Snow, which took place May 21, 1891, will be read with sorrow by a host of friends and relatives. The deceased had been been intimately acquainted with her in later years. Sister Snow was widely known in Ogden and vicinity, and was highly respected by all, she was especially esteemed and by her earnest friends and relatives on account of the many attractive and genial qualities of her noble heart, which eminently qualified her to shine in the domestic circle.

She was the eldest daughter of Robert Austin and Harriet Rawlins, and was born February 3d, A. D. 1826, at Tewkesbury, in Gloucester county, State of New York. She resided with her parents until the day of her marriage, when she was united in the bonds of holy matrimony to her husband, Mr. Orin Snow, who has lived with her for over forty years. Sister Snow was a faithful member of the Relief Society, and was called to Manassa county, Colorado, at the request of the Relief Society of Salt Lake City, to assist in the organization of the society from the Stake. After residing at the best of our family school in Illinois, she took up her journey with the saints, sharing in the hardships and privations of that long and tedious exodus from Nauvoo to the valleys of the Great Salt Lake, arriving in the latter place just as the sun was about to disappear, crossing the plains in Lorenzo Snow's first company.

During all the trials and privations that her family were called to pass through during the persecutions of Illinois, and early settlement in this valley, never does we recollect to remember or complain of her lot, but bore up under it with a heroic fortitude worthy of the wife and children of the Prophet Joseph Smith, of whom we dead, she has thirty-seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Her devotion as a wife and mother was exemplary, and her tender watchfulness, love and solicitude for her children appreciated by the children.

Dearer her protracted illness, sister Snow had obtained a wonderful degree of patience and fortitude; and as she breathed her last expostulating she called her children together and with all the fervency of a mother's love earnestly pleaded with them to never turn their backs upon the Gospel, for she knew that in so doing they would forfeit their duty of love she recognized as well as her Maker, and the last counsel of her departed with an apparent peace.
