A SETBACK FOR SUFFRAGE.

The result of the vote on woman suffrage in Massachusetts last Tuesday was a pulverizing blow to the hopes of the equal suffragists of the Old Bay state. If it showed one thing plainer than any other, it was that the opponents of the suffrage were the women themselves, for an analysis of the vote clearly proves that they were the ones who defeated the project by simply staying at home and saying nothing. The suffragists may as well prepare themselves, therefore, for an educational campaign among the indifferent members of their own sex, and leave the men alone for the present. The ones upon whom it is proposed to confer the ballot are just now the ones who need conversion up to the point of accepting the proffered boon; and while it may seem a little harsh to say it, we nevertheless believe the truth to be that equal suffrage in the United States would have been well-nigh universal before this if its opponents had not been able to say and to prove by actual figures that the women themselves did not want it.

The apathy of the women of Massachusetts, however, must not be taken as an evidence of the temper of the sex in other sections of the country. The East has long ago ceased to be the leader in all lines of progressive thought and reform. No such results as are telegraphed out from Boston could be reported from Wyoming or Colorado, in both of which states the suffrage for women is not only appreciated but exercised with effects that are unquestionably beneficial. While the Massachusetts setback may cause a momentary disappointment, therefore, to the equal suffragists of America and the world, there is abundance of encouragement as to the growth and popularity of the cause in other places where it has actually been tried.

THE TURKISH SULTAN DEFIANT.

The situation throughout the Turkish empire is still occupying the attention of the statesmen of Europe and of the public at large, and so far there are no signs of returning order. On the contrary, according to the latest advices, anarchy seems to be spreading all over the country. The Armenians are in arms. In Palestine a Mohammedan mob is reported to have attacked the English mission station and killed some of the servants there employed, and would have slain the missionaries, had they not escaped. And in Arabia the wandering descendants of Ishmael seem to have risen against the Turks and had a sanguinary engagement with some of the military posts. It is impossible to consider all these events without feeling that the history of the world in all probability is nearing the end of one important chapter.

Only a few days ago the feeling in Europe was one of grave apprehension, owing to the uncertainty of the situation, but now it seems again to be more tranquil. Lord Salisbury's speech on Saturday at the lord mayor's banquet produced that effect, although it is admitted that it was highly pessimistic. He did state, however, that the powers had agreed upon concerted action in case any emergency should arise and that, as far as he knew, the opinion was unchanged that the integrity of the Ottoman empire must be maintained, inasmuch as any other policy would spread the conflagration throughout Europe. There was no intimation whatever as to what steps had been agreed upon in case of certain contingencies, but the inference was drawn that the sultan might be deposed and his throne given to one in whom Europe may place confidence. But in seeming contrast to this conclusion are certain rumors from Russian sources to the effect that the British prime minister has proposed to the powers the immediate dismemberment of Turkey. With the rapidity with which affairs are drawing to a crisis, it must soon become evident whether the agreement referred to involves only a change of dynasty or the existence of the Turkish empire itself.

In the meantime the sultan seem to be carried onward as if by that kismeth or unalterable fate which is so prominent in the Mohammedan creed. The formation of a new impotent cabinet in response to the demands of the powers for vigorous action in Armenia and the promotion of officials distasteful to Europe's representatives, are acts everywhere interpreted as defiance to the powers, if not a challenge and an insult.

POTATOES IN POLITICS.

The professional ticket fixers of the country, and the newspapers for whose dancing they furnish the piping, have sought to have a great deal of amusement with Mayor Pingree of Detroit, who was practical enough to devote some attention to the raising of potatoes for the poor of his city. He has been called "Potatoe" Pingree, "Potato-Potatoes" and "Not-Many-In-A-Hill," and various other names of flippant and insulting suggestiveness. There has been no attempt to deny that he showed himself a genuine benefactor to the needy by his potato scheme; that in obtaining the use of vacant lots and having them well cultivated by unemployed and deserving people, he succeeded in securing a large crop of this staple article of food, and good potatoes, too; that when the hostile newspapers of his city refused to publish his communications and orders, he reached the masses of the people quite effectively by using the billboards and the dead walls and fences; and that through all this unusual and eccentric program he has won a place in the hearts of his people from which neither ridicule nor more tangible attack can shake him. For the fourth consecutive time his fellow-citizens have honored him with triumphant election to the mayoralty—a rare tribute to his popularity in these days of swift political changes and dizzy ups and downs.

The incident gives force and emphasis to the view that eccentricity in a public official is not always a bad thing, and that as between what is called peanut politics and potato politics there is a wide and ominous gulf. Among public servants throughout the land there are not enough Pingrees, just as, among the poor people of our larger cities, there are not enough potatoes.

BEET SUGAR IN EUROPE.

The Louisiana Planter presents some figures of the European beet sugar industry of general interest. The crop of beet sugar in the season of 1877-78 was 1,420,827 tons, since which time the enormous increase of 350 per cent has taken place, the crop in the season of, 1894-95 reaching 4,800,000 tons. This increase is entirely due to the fact that the industry has proved of the greatest benefit to the agriculturists financially. Experience has led the farmers to a full appreciation of the fact that sugar production in the temperate zone is one of the great possibilities in agriculture that has not yet been completely developed. The gradual awakening of the beet growers and sugar manufacturers in Europe to the grand opportunity that the sugar industry offered them as a new and profitable crop has finally so affected every leading continental nation in Europe that they are all of them legislating carefully to foster their sugar industry, with the results of enormous production in excess of the home consumption, until now, with their great crops, they are compelling with each other actively for the good will of the only two large buyers left to them—Great Britain and the United States.

In a circular issued by one of the continental houses the sums paid in bounties by the several governments are estimated as follows:

Germany	$4,125,000
France	10,000,000
Austria	2,400,000
Belgium	800,000
Total	$17,325,000

The consumption of sugar per capita is given as follows:

	LB.
Great Britain	[illegible]
United States	[illegible]
France	[illegible]
Austria	[illegible]
Germany	[illegible]
Belgium	[illegible]

The following table shows how the beet sugar production has increased the last four years while the cane sugar industry has remained almost stationary:

	1892-3.	1893-4.	1894-5.	1895-6.
Germany	1,100,000	1,050,000	1,250,000	1,300,000
Austria	700,000	750,000	850,000	1,000,000
France	600,000	700,000	750,000	850,000
Russia	350,000	400,000	600,000	800,000
Belgium	150,000	200,000	250,000	300,000
Holland, etc.	150,000	200,000	250,000	300,000
	3,050,000	3,300,000	3,950,000	4,350,000
Production of cane sugar	700,000	700,000	700,000	700,000
Total	3,750,000	4,000,000	4,650,000	5,050,000

THE SUPERLATIVELY intelligent Boston Standard informed its breathless readers on Tuesday last that "there are no new developments at Salt Lake, Utah, in regard to the probable Great Northern strike." If Salt Lake had only known that Boston was waiting for news, she would have been accommodating enough to get up some kind of developments in this important though rather remote matter.

THERE is encouragement in the news that according to the statistics the supply crop this year is equal to furnishing almost a barrel apiece to every man woman and child in the United States; and a statistical genius figures out that everybody who is able to eat them can have two per day the year round. Now will some other genius please tell where and how they may be had.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Collonette, Druggist, Dayton, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Z. C. M. I. Drug Department.

Catarrh in the Head

Is due to impure blood and cannot be cured with local applications. Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured hundreds of cases of catarrh because it purifies the blood and in this way removes the cause of the disease. It also builds up the system and prevents attacks of pneumonia, diphtheria and typhoid fever.

Hood's Pills become the favorite cathartic with every one who tries them. 25c. 5

Troubled With Periodical Dysentery.

Henry P. Silvera, of Lucea, Jamaica, West India Islands, says: "Since my recovery from an attack of dysentery, some ten years ago, it comes on suddenly at times and makes me very weak. A teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy taken in a little water gives me immediate relief. I could get a dozen testimonials from people here who have been cured by this remedy."

You may eat cheap food and not be seriously hurt by it; but you cannot take cheap medicines without positive injury. If you use any substitute for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, you do so at the peril of your health, perhaps of your life. Insist on having Ayer's, and no other.

The demand for Ayer's Hair Vigor in such widely-separated regions as South America, Spain, Australia, and India has kept pace with the home consumption, which goes to show that these people know a good thing when they try it.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is, unquestionably, the best preservative of the hair. It is also curative of dandruff, tetter, and all scalp affections.

To the Gas Consumers in the Commercial District.

Owing to the failure of the Welsbach Lamp company to have on hand sufficient natural gas lamps to meet the demands of the gas consumers for the use of natural gas, and to satisfy the public until such time as there will be a sufficient supply of the said burners in the city, notice is hereby given that we have turned in again into our gas mains in the commercial district the manufactured coal gas. We hope, however, that this will only be temporary. Salt Lake and Ogden Gas and Electric Light company.

While staying in the Delta (Mississippi bottoms) last summer, E. T. Moss, representing Ludlow, Saylor, Wire Co., of St. Louis, suffered from malaria and became subject to attacks of cholera morbus. In every instance when attacked he was relieved as if by magic, by using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I regard it as the 'one plus ultra' of medicines."
