How Shall It Be?

How shall it be,
When life's warm tide is falling,
When the heart's throbbings faint and racing grow,
And mortal weakness lays the body low,
When ebbs the breath,
And the stern angel Death
The line of chaos is pacing,
How shall it be,
How shall it be at last?

How shall it be?
Shall the brain cease its thinking?
Shall the eye close its sight in hopeless night?
Have I authority full about me the end?
Has science work
To more, no longer heard,
All in silence sinking—
How shall it be,
Shall it be alone in me?

Or shall it be
A glorious awaking,
When the pure spirit bursts from bond of clay
To life celestial, to the soul's new birth,
From clouds of night
To the world of light,
Like dawn of day, now breaking?
How may it be,
Oh may it be so me!

Oh, may it be
The opening of the portal,
The shining, pearly gates of Paradise,
Supernal home of the one God above,
Transcendent love,
The embrace of the angels
Of life, of life immortal,
How may it be,
Oh, may it be to me!

Oh, may it be
With those whose fairest places
Our shining one from heaven down may bring
To meet me, bear me on the upward way,
And, at the door,
The loved and lost once more
Shall smile with angel faces.
How may it be,
So may it be,
O world of light, where never,
Ah, sorrowers, begin now with sorrow's night,
But love shall know that love is infinite!
All things above,
Light, life, beauty and love,
The joy of love forever,
So may it be,
Oh, may it be to me!

YOUNG MAN, LOOK AT THIS!

Appalling Statistics of the Crimes Due to Gambling.

At the recent anniversary of the Society for the Prevention of Vice Mr. Comstock gave a partial report of crimes arising from gambling in this country in 1890. We give facts which produced an impression of terror like a hideous nightmare. One hundred and twenty-eight persons were either shot or stabbed over gambling games. Four were stabbed and five shot at poker. Twelve stabbed and twenty-four shot over the game of craps, a game of dice much played by bootblacks and newsboys upon the sidewalks and by fast young men and negroes. Twenty-eight were stabbed and fifty-five were shot over the gaming table or directly resulted therefrom. Besides these, six attempted and twenty-four committed suicide, and sixty persons were murdered in cold blood, while two were driven insane. Sixty-eight youth and persons have been ruined by pool gambling and betting upon horse racing. Two burglaries, eighteen forgeries and eighty-five embezzlements were committed to get money to gamble with, and thirty-two persons holding positions of trust in banks and other places of mercantile life absconded.

The enormous sum of $2,897,272 is shown by this same record as the proceeds of these embezzlements and defalcations. To these crimes must be added the long list of thefts, robberies, embezzlements, larcenies and defalcations which are never known except to the immediate friends or persons especially interested. In this city the brother of a publisher, a young man 20 years of age, lost $14,000 at gambling, a part of which did not belong to him. Two clerks embezzled funds from their employers, one of whom beggared his wife and three little children. A young lawyer brought the secretary to close a place where he had lost all. The suicide of the late cashier of the postoffice in New York, who stole a large sum in small amounts, which he sent out by bootblacks and others to be staked in bets upon horse races with the bookmaking sharps. Only a few days ago and this community was shocked by the account of the downfall and suicide of a prominent society man in Albany. He resided in a beautiful home with his five motherless little children. He was in a position of high trust and responsibility, and enjoyed the confidence of his employers. After embezzling over $100,000 he was discovered, and he took his own life, leaving his little orphans destitute that neighbors had to contribute for the necessaries of life. Murders and suicides occur frequently as the direct harvest of this kind of seed sowing.—Christian Advocate.

Gems.

Let men laugh, if they will, when you sacrifice desire to duty. You have both time and eternity to rejoice in.—Theodore Parker.

I believe that if you and I were more to heed the whispers of our Father we should not have so many of his troubles.—J. Harington Evans.

Let us make a practical reality of our religion. Be assured that, to know the depths of its consolations and the strength of its support, we must engage in it ourselves.—Rev. Hosea Ballou, 2d, D. D.

If there be one thing on earth which is truly admirable it is to see God's wisdom blessing an inferiority of natural powers when they have been diligently and zealously cultivated.—Dr. Arnold.

Life is made up, not of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, in which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually are what preserve the heart and secure comfort.—Sir H. Davy.

Keep the home near heaven. Let it face toward the Father's home.—James Hamilton.

John Smith's Queer Name.

There is a quaint old man in Manchester, England, who goes by the unique name of Gagnalg Gignbdn. His original name, as the story goes, was John Smith, but many years ago he began to brood over the possibilities of mistaken identity involved in such a common name. The name figured frequently in the criminal records, and he became abnormally apprehensive lest he might be confused with some of those bad John Smiths.

At last what he feared so much actually happened. One morning the papers recorded the rupture of an accountant in a bank for embezzlement, and through some blunder of the reporter the identity of the embezzler was confused with the subject of this paragraph, who was also a bank accountant. Then and there he determined to assume a name like unto no other ever borne by mortal man. And in Gagnalg Gignbdn most people will agree that he has done so.—N.

A Striking Illustration.

Of what use to a stone mason or a bricklayer is a plumb line? Why not build the wall by the unaided eye and hand? Because they are insufficient; because if there be a deflection in the wall it cannot further be corrected; because by the law of gravitation a wall must be straight in order to be symmetrical and safe. A young man is in danger of getting a deflect in his wall of character that may never be corrected. Remember that the wall may be one hundred feet high, and yet a deflection one foot from the foundation effects the entire structure. And if you live a hundred years and do right the last eighty years, you may, nevertheless, do something at 20 years of age that will damage all your earthly existence. All you who have built homes for yourself or others, are I not right in saying to young men, you cannot build a wall so high as to be independent of the character of its foundation? A man before thirty years of age may commit enough sin to last him a lifetime. A cut that has killed one person cannot be cured. Keep it from killing the first pigeon.—Talmage.

Points of Interest.

Bran fed liberally twice a day will often prevent a sow from going crazy and devouring her pigs.

It is written by the finger of destiny that agriculturists in the northwest must abandon exclusive grain farming and take to mixed farming and live stock raising. Amid the vast amount of experimenting, moreover, it is becoming clear that sheep will be full of profit. They are well adapted to dry uplands.

Where a cow's new born calf is taken away from her it is well to give her at first her own milk to drink, as the colostrum it contains has beneficial medicinal properties.

In the case of twin male and female calves the female is usually sterile.

There is no certain cure for the feet of a foundered horse. The soreness can be lessened by applying occasionally a light blister to the coronet, keeping the feet soft and healthy, and using bar shoes when the animal is shod. Foundered horses sometimes are useful for a long time in farm work, but are no good for travel on hard roads.

Pressing cut edits and starving them does not make great trotters of them, neither does pampering and housing them from all weathers. The true course here as elsewhere is half way between the two extremes.

Toronto has expanded her Clydesdale spring stallion show into an exhibition for all breeds. The exhibition is under the management of the Agricultural and Arts association.

By persistent kindness teach all your domestic animals to become attached to you. This is possible in the case of all except, perhaps, a Texas steer or cow. But the Texas bovine cannot be called a domestic animal.

The Peach Tree Borer.

Dr. Lintner, in remarks made before the Ulster County (N. Y.) Farmers' institute, said:

The best remedy is a solution made of soft soap and carbolic acid dissolved in water, with which wash the trees. One gallon of soft soap and one-half pint of crude carbolic acid, dissolved in two gallons of water, is the formula. The egg is usually deposited near the ground. A newspaper wrapped about the tree is also a preventive, but the wash is the more effective.

A Decorative Screen.

No floating article of furniture is more decorative than a screen, and there are so many varieties that it is a difficult matter to decide which of them all to prefer. A novelty in a single panel screen that can be imitated successfully by an ingenious home worker is made in the ordinary style, with a stalwart wood frame, and the panel covered with material, which in this case is gaily flowered silk more flamboyant in character than good taste would approve were it not to be partly covered. Strips of the cloudy or semi-transparent cellulose are interwoven diagonally in a sort of lattice work across the silken panel, leaving regular diamond shaped spaces, through which the gay flowers reveal themselves entirely. The reverse of the panel can repeat the arrangement, or if the screen is for actual service a gathered lining of plain silk may be used, dispensing with cellulose, which is too inflammable in its composition to be brought near a fire with safety.—Exchange.

Have Plenty of Clean Table Linen.

Do not use a tablecloth a whole week, or a napkin after its freshness is gone. Soiled table linen will spoil the daintiest dishes. Stores of handkerchiefs, with plenty of money for all household expenses, are absolutely stingy in regard to the use of tablecloths. Think of a wife not denying her family any dainty of the season, and sending many superfluous articles each week to the laundry, yet compelling her family to sit around a soiled tablecloth five or six days of the week, and providing only one or two napkins for seven days. It seems incredible. Even to small families the cloth should be changed two or three times in a week, and the napkins once every day or two at least. Table linen should be ironed until perfectly dry, and folded lengthwise, with the ends even.—Washington Star.

Other woes have a share and may be fathomed, but the sea of God's love—eternity—has no plummet to strike the bottom, and immeasurably no man bound shore to confine it. Its tides are lifted by the heart of infinite compassion; its waves are the lessons of the redeemed. The expanse that sail out to drop anchor at last amid the thundering salvos of eternal victory.—Talmage.

Horticultural Jots.

Farm Journal gives expression to the following dos'ts:

Don't plant in wet soil.
Don't buy large trees.
Don't buy shelter trees.
Don't plant honey trees.
Don't plant a tree without good roots.
Don't let flat skin the trees with the swingle tree.
Don't use horses in the orchard without nose nets on.
Don't rip the grain in the orchard.
Don't let a tree agent shut up your eye on wonderful varieties, and
Don't let anybody plank your trees; do it yourself.

Where Flowers Look Best.

There is no place where flowers show to such advantage as in the house. The flowers and plants should be placed in their proper shading so as to produce the best effect. Never overcrowd in floral decorations. This is very important. The most popular way of decorating the home consists in placing beautiful foliage plants in different shades of green in corners on small stands and stagers. Flowers are used with long stems and their own foliage, put in vases. A very neat thing is a small number of miniature vases and cut glass bowls, placed on little tables and filled with different colored carnations, lilies of the valley, mignonette or other suitable flowers. Each specimen should be set by itself. This produces an exceedingly pretty effect.

The fireplaces should be well filled with potted plants, such as ferns and variegated foliage plants. Over pictures and doors a neat effect is obtained by draping long trailing ferns and possum vines in bloom. To keep flowers fresh as long as possible be sure to cut a little of the stem each day. A hard crust forms on the end of the stem which prevents the water from ascending, and this should be cut away each day. A little charcoal in the water in which the flowers stand will sweeten them and keep them fresh longer.—C. F. Kleinler in Ladies' Home Journal.

WHAT IS A GUARANTEE?

Many merchants and salesmen are in the habit of indiscriminately "guaranteeing" their wares with no thought of being called upon to make the "guarantee" good. It is a pernicious and foolish custom more respected in the breach than in the observance.

A guarantee, to have any value, should be made with knowledge of the meaning of the word and a set purpose to carry out the terms of the guarantee. On the tools the makers instruct us to warrant, and we replace any tool found imperfect in use.

We have used our best judgment, acquired by a considerable experience, in selecting the following items for our stock and sell them to our customers with an absolute guarantee that if they do not prove to be all that we represent them, we will refund the purchase money in full.

"Jewel" Steel Ranges. A finished article, perfectly proportioned, made of the best material. Don't fail to see it. It will pay you.

"Quick Meal" No Generator, Evaporating. Light it as you do your gas burner. No smell. No danger. No complication. Every objection to the use of a Gasoline Stove done away with. Think of the discomfort caused in Summer by enabling the heat of a big Kitchen Range.

"Superior" Cooks and Ranges. Superior as bakers. Superior in economy of fuel. Superior in design. Superior in construction. Superior in everything that goes to make a perfect cooking apparatus.

The "Foote Refrigerator." An ice saver. A Health promoter. Cellular stone lined. What is that? Investigate it. It will more than repay you.

Our stock of Builders' Hardware, House Furnishings, Garden Hose, Lawn Sprinklers, Lawn Mowers, etc., is complete in every detail.
