MIDDLE TENNESSEE.

Elder O. B. Southwick Writes from the Elders, Saints and their Labors in that Portion of the Southern States.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH, APRIL 2, 1896.

To Elders and Friends in Middle Tennessee:

Dear Co-Laborers and Friends.—Being under no obligation to you for your kind favors during my stay among you, I am under no obligation to write to the editor of the DESERET EVENING NEWS, but I do so because I am in the habit of doing what I can to keep the Saints and friends in touch with the work of God and the progress of Zion.

I have a little time to spare, so I will try and write a few lines to you, hoping they may be of some good to you.

I have had a very pleasant time since I left you. I visited my home in Southern Utah, and found my folks all well. I also visited my brother in Nevada, and found his family well. I also visited my sister in Southern Utah, and found her family well. I also visited my brother-in-law in Southern Utah, and found his family well. I also visited my brother-in-law in Southern Utah, and found his family well. I also visited my brother-in-law in Southern Utah, and found his
