A TRIP TO MORGAN.

Elder Edward Stevenson Visits the Place and Takes in the Sights.

MORGAN CITY, Morgan Co., Utah, May 18, 1896.

To the Editors:

Apostle J. H. Smith and I left Salt Lake City on the U. P. train at 7 a. m. in the midst of a rain storm, and in fifty minutes we were in Ogden city, thirty-eight miles north of Salt Lake, where we changed cars for Morgan city, east, and up the Weber river, passing through Devil's gateway, in the midst of towering rocks, and elevated mountain peaks, dotted here and there with cedars and pine trees, but capped with snow. Indeed the panoramic scenery was sublime and as the tourist from the flat, level country passes through these mountain gorges all is exceedingly. Eager eyes turn toward the grand scenery. Doubtless God's angel was stayed when His early begotten Son was ignominiously murdered. No wonder if the solid rocks were rent in twain, mountains cast up and the face of nature changed!

Carriages were prepared on the arrival of the train, in the broad fields where the mountains opened up space for a lovely valley and the city of Morgan. We were conveyed to a meeting house where about 400 souls were waiting for spiritual food. Jesus said to his earliest Apostles, and why not to his modern apostles: "If you love me, feed my sheep, feed my lambs." The morning services were coupled by speaking comforting words and instructions, and by reports from the various wards of this stake of Zion, located in the cage of low mountains.

In the afternoon Sacrament services took place, with the outpouring of the Holy Ghost. Eighteen pieces of silver sacramental service, glittering in their burnished beauty, was presented to the Church by the Young Ladies' Mutual Improvement society and was gratefully received with vote of thanks. The cost of the service was $85. Apostle Smith and visitors were the first to sip from the cup, the emblems of the spilt blood of a crucified Redeemer. Two beautiful chandeliers had also been presented by the Relief societies for the benefit of the sisters. These were procured by the sisters by plural subscription. What sweet the sisters do when they take to rule their house! The original cost of the three chandeliers was over $100. Five meetings in all were held. Monday's meetings were crowded and a happy time was enjoyed.

There is a useful industry started up near this city, which proves a blessing to many. It is a creamery. Milk is bought even in small quantities and taken from the dairy of wife and the poor and needy is given to work partly on the factory books. A store is kept by the company from which credits may draw their groceries and necessaries. Eight hundred dollars was paid out in money and goods for the past month. This amount scattered among the people monthly relieves many wants. A widow may have a cow or two, especially just out with the city. Father Rich, one mile and a half out, milks his cows and lets them out on the sides of the mountains to feed, and they return home generally in the evening.

I met Father Martin Hiner at the conference, who crossed the plains in our company in the year 1852. Then his family numbered only 13 souls; now, including his grand and great grandchildren, they number 124 souls, and most of them are in this county.

Brigham Young Academy.

The commencement exercises of the Brigham Young academy were held yesterday in the Tabernacle. Elder John Nicholson delivered the commencement oration, to which he paid eloquent tribute to President Young, the founder of the academy, President Smoot, Dr. Maeser and others who have been instrumental in advancing the school to the high position it occupies today. Good and timely advice was given the graduate for their guidance through life.

Short addresses were delivered by President B. Cluff Jr., W. H. Dusenberry and Mrs. Rosa Y. Giles, and the following diplomas were awarded: Graduate in normal department: degree of bachelor of pedagogy, presented by Director George T. Reynolds, Irene R. Mendenhall, J. W. Hoole, Janette Fielding, Grace Brimhall, Rachel Hammond, Elmo Christensen and Knull Maeser.

The following graduates of the commercial class were presented with diplomas by Director W. H. Dusenberry: James W. Lesser, Daniel Eldredge, Dan C. Babbitt, Collins H. Hayes, L. E. Jordan, S. W. Nielson, Warren Shepherd and Edgar T. Hall.

Graduates in kindergarten work to receive diplomas were Emeline Wells, Alice Clark, Ruby Wells, Winifred Cooper, Aggie Sharp and Laura Andrews. Eighteen certificates were given to pupils who had completed the kindergarten course and five to students who had completed the phonographic course; thirty six pupils were promoted from the Eighth grade to the first year normal grade.

President Cluff's annual report shows that the total enrollment for the year has been 851 divided among the following departments: Academic, 24; normal, 422; kindergarten normals, 22; M. L. normals, 42; Sunday school normals, 24; commercial, 80; primary school, 204; kindergarten, 57.

The music organization under the charge of Prof. Brimhall is divided into four wards, and meetings have been held in each ward once a week.

The theological department under the direction of Prof. Keeler has held fifteen testimony meetings, seven fast meetings and twenty-six special meetings, besides the class exercises. Elders Reynolds and McKenzie have each delivered a course of lectures in this department.
