NEWS OF THE WEST.

A Sixty-year-term Highwayman Seeking Release from Prison.

THE OREGON CHINESE RIOTS.

An Unfortunate Miner at Butte—A Schoolboy's Weakness for Setting Buildings on Fire.

Game of all kinds is said to be very abundant within five or six miles of Gardwood Springs, having been driven from the mountains by the snow.

There has been a very large amount of merchandise shipped out of Montana this month. The owners of the books have been short as soon as well as the dickensers. The shipments will close in a few days.

Upon request of Mayor Hixon of Red Mountain, Colo., the sheriff has arrested J. N. Cason, town treasurer, who was about to leave the locality. Cason is charged with being $600 short in his accounts.

Owing to the unfavorable weather which has prevailed in Montana for the past six weeks, many of the miners have not been able to fetch their goods. It is very late that Montana miners are thus obliged with their out work.

The trial of H. C. Comer and twelve others, charged for participating in the Chinese hose cutting incident, has to be completed in the district court in Kandy, through the jury disagreeing a number of times lately.

Threshing and potato digging are almost completed says the Kandy Herald-Press. The potatoes will not prove as plentiful as usual, so farmers will have to largely supply for winter consumption.

It is reported from official figures that there will be at least 7,000 cattle shipped and sold from the Dickens part of California this year. The trail is said to be in good condition, and the cattle are doing nicely considering the dry season.

Charles H. Stinger fell through a door in the floor of the Western House Delivery on Nov. 10th, at San Francisco, and so injured his hip that he has not been able to leave it which he now resides. He has brought suit to recover $5000 damages.

There is said to be an increasing demand for Montana fuel. The Colorado Fuel Co. is turning out an article far superior to the Dakota product, while the Bozeman and Great Falls mills have enough first-class hard and soft wood on hand to last them all winter.

William Jackson, about twenty-one years of age, was run over by the Denver Pacific train, about five miles east of Cheyenne, on Sunday. He was taken to Cheyenne and his leg amputated below the knee. He was badly injured about the head and body, and the physicians believe he cannot live.

The work of boring the gas well deeper has been temporarily suspended at Illinois Junction, Colo. The north angle is at work running out the hole so that it will have a well-size at 1,000 feet. As soon as the casing is in place and the tools drawn out, the boring will be started in the bottom and sent down to 2,000 feet.

Tom O'Connor, alias Jim Clements, was caught by officers at Denver on Saturday morning, while in the act of effecting an entrance to Heath's pawn shop on Market street. O'Connor is well known crook, though he is well connected in that city, and the officers are some over his capture. O'Connor is known to have been implicated in several other burglaries.

In northern California nearly all the crops have been gathered in, and fall plowing is nearly completed. Plowing and seeding have been retarded somewhat by lack of rain. The weather has been almost perfect for all outdoor pursuits. The fruit shows no damaging frost on the tray slightly, were really beneficial in many respects.

Dr. Rudolph F. Fries, formerly of Denver, at late of Portland, Or., is in the Arapahoe county jail and is liable to remain there, says the Denver News. He returned from Portland at the "solicitous" of his bondsmen, who, when they got him to Denver, quickly proceeded to give him into the hands of the law. His bond was raised to the sum of $20,000, and as there is no prospect that he will be able to give bail in that sum, it is extremely probable that he will remain the guest of the jailer until he is brought before the criminal court to answer charges of performing a criminal operation.

The Clement Grammar school, at Los Angeles, containing seven hundred young children, was discovered on fire during school hours the other afternoon. The children marched out in orderly manner, and there was no panic. The fire was in the garret, and was extinguished before much damage was done. Miles Baird, a 14-year-old boy pupil of the school, was arrested on a charge of arson. He confessed that he had started the fire in the garret to see how the pupils would get out of the school in case of a real fire. Young Baird has always had a mania for setting buildings on fire.

The attorneys of Sydney Bell, the highwayman, now serving a sixty-year term at the state prison at Folsom, Cal., have filed a brief in the supreme court, which is the first step towards securing Bell's release. The grounds taken are that the indictments on which Bell was found guilty were not good, having been all wrong and the cases in drop from the docket. This was due to a murder charge which was hanging over the prisoner, as which it was expected he would be convicted. The prosecution was also supposed to be ready to drop the charges of robbery were taken up and passed. It is believed among lawyers that the conviction of Bell on a charge of murder would be extremely difficult, so that if the technical point is sustained the burglar will be at liberty in the near future.

A terrible scream, a crash of glass in Smith's tailoring establishment, and the boy of a year came flying through the glass door of the store and landed on the pavement, says the Denver News of Sunday. A Harbaugh, with a red-hot iron rod in his hand, ran out of the alley and stopped over him. A sergeant was coming out of police headquarters and the alarming appearance of affairs drew him to the scene. He found the man lying on the sidewalk to be William Owen Harbaugh, a tailor, and he was suffering from several broken cuts on the head and was badly cut by the glass. Harbaugh alleges that Smith owes him $12 for work. He went to your d[illegible] and [illegible] the door [illegible] and then [illegible] through the glass.

A Singular Greetings.

There was a new arrival at Poulter's house, but to her disgust, not to my wrath, it was a girl. Three elder successors have taken the edge off her enthusiasm as to the advantages of little sisters, and she stood glowering at the little bundle of swaddled humanity. "How much you gave for it?" "Twenty-five dollars," she was told. "Bunkey" and Polly's disgust disgusted. "Why, we were about to sell ours for fifty! You guess we got a lot!"—Kickapoo.
