FEEDING POULTRY.

Different Breeds Require Different Winter Management as Regards Their Food.

Experiments conducted in the poultry department of the dominion experiment farms at Ottawa, according to Manager Gilbert's report, make it appear that the different breeds require different winter treatment, especially as regards the food. Manager Gilbert says: During the winter—

1. Brahmas, Cochins, Langshans, Plymouth Rocks, etc., require more oats, less wheat, little or no Indian corn, soft or stimulating food in moderation and a generous supply of vegetables. Less meat twice or thrice a week and plenty of exercise.

2. Leghorns, Minorcas, Andalusians, Hamburgs, etc., will take more soft or stimulating food, more wheat, Indian corn, with meat and vegetables in liberal supply.

3. It is essential to success that lime, grit, gravel, etc., should be before the fowls at all times, and that the fowls be kept in activity by throwing the grain fed to them in chaff, straw or dry leaves scattered on the floors.

Soft or stimulating food is generally fed in the morning and is composed as follows: A warm morning mess for the heavy breeds may be made of shorts, ground oats, bran and lean meat scraps mixed with boiling water. This can be varied by giving cooked vegetables instead of the ground oats or bran. Clover hay cut in small pieces, steamed and mixed with the morning food, is one of the best of green foods and cannot be given too often.

For the Spanish family a more stimulating morning mess may be made of shorts, cornmeal, ground oats or barley with ground meat or meat scraps in about equal quantity every morning, with a modicum of black or red pepper. Vary by mixing boiled potatoes or other vegetables in lieu of the ground oats or barley. Steamed clover hay at any time.

"August Flower"

Biliousness. Constipation. Stomach Pains.

"I have been afflicted with biliousness and constipation for fifteen years; first one and then another preparation was suggested to me and tried but to no purpose. At last a friend recommended August Flower. I took it according to directions and its effects were wonderful, relieving me of those disagreeable stomach pains which I had been troubled with so long. Words cannot describe the admiration in which I hold your August Flower—it has given me a new lease of life, which before was a burden. Such a medicine is a benefaction to humanity, and its good qualities and wonderful merits should be made known to everyone suffering with dyspepsia or biliousness.
