EVENING NEWS.

Correspondence.

Fatal Disease at Wasatch.

WASHIP, Summit Co., February 11, 1878.

Editors Deseret News:

Our settlement has been lately visited by a disease among the children which has proved fatal in a number of cases. The disease seems to be principally in the throat, and as soon as death ensues the back turns black from mortification. As all the remedies known to us have been tried, will you call the attention of the physicians in your city to this and have them give us all the light they can in regard to the treatment.

The following children have died within a short time: A little daughter of Brother Jno. Brannan aged 8 years; a daughter of Brother Robert Watson aged 14 years; a daughter of Brother Benj. Williams aged 2 years; a boy of Brother L. Huffaker aged 7 years; a daughter of Brother H. Meakum aged 7 years; a son of Geo. Moore aged 3 years.

The daughter of Bro. H. Meekum was buried to-day from the Schoolhouse. Prest. Franklin D. Richards, who had been in attendance at the quarterly conference held in Coalville, being here, delivered a very interesting funeral discourse; he also made an appointment to address the people in the Schoolhouse, commencing at 7 o'clock.

I understand that quite a number of deaths have occurred in Henneerville within a short time, some 15 children, if I am correctly informed, having died from the same disease, accompanied with the same symptoms.

Yours truly,
E. R. YOUNG, SEN.

The Boy Who Was Alone at Sea.

The rescue of the lad Adolphus Parker, who was carried to sea on the 23d inst. in the schooner Twilight, which broke her moorings at the inlet at Atlantic City and drifted out, has already been reported. The Philadelphia Times publishes the following statement from Parker in regard to his adventurous trip: "When she first parted her moorings I thought I would run her ashore, but she struck the wharf and sheered off into the stream. I then threw over a small kedge anchor, which dragged to the first buoy and there parted the cable. Noticing she was fast being driven on the bar, I hoisted sail to keep her off. The surf-boat put out to help me, but turned back. Meanwhile I tried to haul her close to the wind, after clearing the bar, in the hope of receiving assistance, which did not come. I now found myself fast being driven to sea, and I did not think the schooner would be able to stand the terrible waves which struck her. The rigging was poor, sails torn, and the prospect of her weathering the gale not very promising. On Wednesday night a heavy sea broke over the vessel and rolled me over the wheel. The rigging and deck were covered with ice, and it was with difficulty I kept myself from freezing. On Thursday I supposed I was near the Gulf Stream. There was about a foot and a half of water in the hold and a heavy sea rolling. The pumps gave out, and I was forced to bail her out with a bucket. About four o'clock on Thursday afternoon the wind sprang up fresh from the southeast. I then headed west, and about ten o'clock at night was hailed by a bark which cleared the schooner by only ten feet. The schooner's light went out and I took down the starboard light, put it and hung the signal light in the main rigging on the port side. On Friday morning I sighted land near Beach Haven, and after beating about all day headed up abreast Absecome Light. The sea was very rough, and failing to bring the vessel into the inlet, and as the water was up to the cabin floor, I launched her on Little Brigantine Shoals, where I was taken off, after being without sleep for four days and three nights."

"Pay the bill?" said a gentleman who is well known to collectors as the prince of procrastinators. "I should be happy to do so; but this damp weather has caused my money to become so scarce, and I do not get at my funds. Come the first dry day."

A Virginia negro boy, who professed to be dreadfully afraid of cholera, took to the woods to avoid it and there was found asleep. Being asked why he went to the woods, he said, "To pray." "But" said the overseer, "how is it that you went to sleep?" "Don't know, massa, 'nuff!" responded the negro, "but I spect I must have overprayed myself."

Free thinking has for its logical result free acting. "Ah, old gentleman once struck the keynote of the world's common sense in this matter. He said to a visitor, "Do you believe in God, sir?" The reply was, "God is a mere notion of some superstitious people, which men of thought have long since abandoned." "Young gentleman, I ask if you believe in the Ten Commandments?" "No, sir," was the reply; "they can be demonstrated to be the offspring of a barbarous age." The old gentleman rang his bell, and when the servant answered, said, "John, stand by the door until this person goes." Nothing is safe when a man neither believes in God nor the devil."
